In the interest of a safe Christmas tree season, the Minnesota state medical association recommends the following Christmas tree safety measures:

1. Eliminate the increased hazard of a large tree by choosing a select small one.
2. Try to find a tree that is freshly cut and wait until just a few days before Christmas to set it up.
3. Store the tree outdoors until the time of installation.
4. Stand the tree in water in the coolest part of the house and away from radiators, heaters or fireplaces. Don't block doors or exits.
5. Use only fireproof Christmas tree decorations.
6. Check th electrical safey of your ree. Set hat all wires exension cords and plug-ins are in good repair. Never use candles.
7. Never place an electric train around the Christmas tree.
8. Do not clutter the base of the Christmas tree with gift wrappings.
9. Employ a safety shut-off switch a safe distance from the tree.
10. Turn off the Christmas tree lights before leaving the house.
11. Refrain from smoking near the tree.
12. Discard the tree when the needles begin to fall. A daily inspection to determine whether the tree should remain as advisable.

In case of a fire, says the association, be sure to get everybody out of the house at once. Call the fire department immediatley. If you are in a public gathering and fire breaks out, walk, never run, to the nearst exit. Call the fire department at once and keep calm.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Privacy and the Census

During the last federal census, a disgruntled citizen decided the government was getting altogether too nosy. So he refused to answer certain questions, calling them an invasion of his privacy and an "unreasonable search and seizure"—forbidden by the Constitution.

But in a test case, the court held the questions within the proper scope of governmental curiosity.

"The authority to gather reliable statistical data reasonably related to governmental functions is a necessity," said the court, "if modern government is to legislate intelligently."

By and large, the taking of the census (itself authorized by the Constitution) has not run into serious opposition.

One big reason, no doubt, is that personal information is kept confidential—as a kind of compensation to the citizen for accepting a little prying into his private life. Federal law specifically provides that census information about any individual may not be disclosed "to his detriment."

What does this mean? In one case, an insurance company refused to pay a man's claim because it suspected he had lied about his age on the application form.

"To double check," the company told him, "we would like to see what age you gave to the census taker."

However, in a court hearing, the insurance company was denied access to the census records. The court pointed out that the desired information might indeed be to the man's detriment — and therefore could not be released without his consent.

That doesn't mean general statistics cannot be used, merely because they are unpalatable to some individuals. Thus:

A city wanted to use census figures to classify a certain block as a "blighted area." Property owners objected that this was using census information "to our detriment."

But the court overruled their objection, because this was not personal information but simply the statistical profile of a neighborhood.

A study of the attitudes of 1,000 women from middle-incom househoolds revealed that 70 percent want color in their next bathrooms.

CONTENTED CAT is this tiger-striped tom which bears the unpretentious name of "Oof Da". After disappearing from his owners along the Rainy river near Baudette, he found his way home, 122 miles away, to the Helmer Lind farm about seven miles west of Newfolden. The traveling tabby's ability to find home across some rugged country makes for some interesting speculation regarding his homing instinct.

The Travels of "Oof Da"

Cat Finds Its Way Home Across 122 Rugged Miles

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Take a tiger-striped kitten of unknown origin, add the somewhat unlikely name of "Oof Da" compound it with a lengthy journey and an amazing return, and thereby hangs a tale of an unusual nature.

"Oof Da" must be considered something of a "homing" cat, since he found his way home a distance of 122 miles after being separated from his owners. Only if the traveling tabby could tell the story himself would it be more interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. Helmer Lind, who live on a farm about seven miles west of Newfolden, found the kitten outside their farm home a year ago last fall. "When we realized we had no choice but to give him a home in our basement over winter, we both said "Oof Da" Mrs. Lind recalls. The Scandinavian expression was applied to the kitten which stills bears the name.

"Oof Da" seemed to enjoy his life with the Linds and grew rapidly throughout the winter. In June the Linds left for Lake of the Woods Bible camp located on the Rainy river between Baudette and Wheeler's point here Helmer was caretaker and Mrs. Lind was one of the cooks. Since the stay was to be for three months, "Oof Da" went along with his adoptive family.

While Mrs. Lind drove the family car, "Oof Da" rode with Helmer in the pickup. Although the cat was placed in a box to start the journey, he soon climbed out and crawled under the seat of the pickup where he rode the rest of the way to the camp.

"'Oof Da' seemed to enjoy camp life as much as we did and stayed around our trailer, sleeping in a box we fixed up for him under the trailer," Mrs. Lind said. "He was with us there for two months of our three-month stay."

Then nature intervened. One day Mrs. Lind noticed that "Oof Da" had a lady friend with him and shortly after that he disappeared. Amorous wonderings of male felines are legendary, and it was not unexpected that he didn't return immediately. But when he failed to return at the end of the Lind's third month in camp, they were sure he had met with some misfortune—perhaps hit by a car during the heavy summer tourist season.

In the last part of August, the Linds returned home from camp without the pet they had brought there with them.

It was two months later, when

Langen Named to High Position on Ag Subcommittee

Congressman Odin Langen has been selected by his colleagues as the ranking minority member on the House appropriations subcommittee on agriculture, according to the committee leadership. Approximately 400 Lions club members and their wives, including more than 300 from communities other than Thief River Falls, attended the District 5M-3 mid-winter conference held Friday, Saturday and Sunday in Thief River Falls. The district is comprised of clubs in northern Minnesota, southwestern Ontario and all of Manitoba.

Discussion of splitting the district along the border took place at the governor's cabinet meeting Saturday at the Lincoln high school auditorium. Following extensive discussion, however, the consensus of opinion was weighted heavily in favor of retaining the international structure and no resolution for splitting the district was introduced.

Presiding at the council meeting was Robert Hitesman of Winnipeg, governor of District 5M-3. Kenora, Ont., won in its bid for the 1971 conference, with the 1970 conference to be held at Brandon, Man.

One of the primary functions of the conference, to review the duties of officers in the local clubs and provide instructional information, also took place at the cabinet session. Coordination of activities among clubs was also stressed at the meeting.

Dr. Robert D. McCullough of Tulsa, Okla., second vice president of Lions International, was guest speaker at the conference banquet held Saturday evening at the National Guard armory. He stressed the community service of Lionism, and noted that the release of the Pueblo crew from North Korea was negotiated in large part by a group of Lions club members. Special guest was James D Foster, international director.

Most of the large crowd which attended the evening banquet remained for the governor's ball which was held following the banquet in the armory. Music for dancing was furnished by the Merle Rodgers 11-piece orchestra from Fargo, N.D.

Special recognition was given to James Parkins of Thief River Falls for whom the mid-winter conference was named. Parkins was honored at the Saturday evening banquet for his long and devoted service to the Lions organization.

Opening event of the conference, following registration which began at 4 p.m. Friday, was a dance at the Armory Friday evening. This was followed by a smorgasbord from midnight to 1 a.m. Closing event Sunday was a buffet luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Elks club rooms.

General co-chairmen for the conference were Francis Hamerlinck and Fred Sorensen of the Thief River Falls Lions club.

DRESS REHEARSAL for the Thief River Falls Community theatre's production of "Arsenic and Old Lace" was held Sunday in preparation for presentation of the play Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. In the above photo, Mortimer Brewster (left), played by Duane Mattson, has just realized that his aunts Abby and Martha Brewster (JuaNita Lieske and Alyce Weckwerth) are about to poison the elderly gentleman Gibbs, played by William Moeglein.

Kay Liden-Patrick Fischer Vows Exchanged at Trinity

Miss Kay Liden and Patrick Fischer, both of Thief River Falls, exchanged marriage vows recently at Trinity Lutheran church in this city. Rev. Reuben Wangberg officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Liden and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fischer all of this city.

Evergreen trees and two white poinsettia plants on either side of the altar graced the chancel for the evening ceremony attended by approximately 150 relatives and friends.

The traditional nuptial selections were played by Mrs. Walter Larson who presided at the organ. Mrs. Arnold Hammer was the soloist. She sang, "Song Of Ruth," "Wedding Prayer", and "The Lord's Prayer".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length, semi-fitted, A-line gown of white crepe. Embossed white satin trim edged the high neckline and long loose sleeves. Her floor-length train was attached at the back by an embossed satin bow. A double bow of matching embossed satin held her fingertip veil of silk illusion and she carried a cascade arrangement of white roses and carnations accented with holly foliage.

Miss Kathleen Roese of this city, was maid of honor and Miss Judy Nicholson, also of this city, served as bridesmaid. Both are friends of the bride. They were attired in identical floor-length gowns of forest green velvet. Designed in A-line, semi-fitted style, the gowns featured puffed sleeves and neckline trimmed with white lace. To complete their attire, they wore white gloves, green satin shoes and green velvet double bow headpiece with lace trim. Each carried a smaller replica of the bridal bouquet.

Attired similar to the bride's attendants was Miss Cristie LaCoursiere, a cousin of the bride, who serve as flower girl. She carried a white basket filled with white roses and holly leaves.

Miss Sandra Frolland, a cousin of the bride, served as the bride's personal attendant.

Allen Aaseby attended the groom as best man. Jon Efteland was groomsman and the ushers were Fred Sorenson, Jr., and Dennis Sampson. All are friends of the groom and all reside in Thief River Falls. For their attire, they wore black tuxedos with white carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Liden chose a mint green embossed brocade ensemble with matching shoes white gloves and a veiled hat. The mother of the groom wore a pale blue dress in princess style with matching pale blue shoes. Both wore identical corsages of white roses and holly.

Attending the ceremony as honor guests were Mrs. Oscar Liden, paternal grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Olaf Klemmetsen of Seattle, Wash., maternal grandmother of the bride, and Miss Emma Rhodegaard, great aunt of the bride.

A reception in the church parlors followed the ceremony. Serving as reception hostesses were Mrs. James LaCoursiere, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. B. I. Frolland, aunt of the bride. Miss Mary Liden presided at the guest book while Misses Debra Liden and Linda Liden served the punch. All are cousins of the bride.

Centering the serving table was a four-tiered wedding cake trimmed with green roses and accented by deep green leaves. The two upper round tiers of the three-tiered section, were separated by glass colonnades. A wedding bell ornament topped the cake and four heart shaped cakes formed the base. Mrs. Duane Liden and Mrs. Harriett Liggett cut and served the cake as Mrs. Kenton Liden and Mrs. Donovan Liden pured. All are aunts of the bride.

Friends of the bride also assisted at the reception. They were Suson Carlson and Geraldine Thompson, who served as waitresses, and Miss Elaine Efto and Miss Virginia Efto, who presided at the gift table.

Among the relatives and friends attending were Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Liden, Gary Liden and Miss Sue Ree, all of Henning and Mr. and Mrs. Alan Boor of Moorhead.

For her going away attire, the bride wore a red woolen A-line dress with a white collar.

The bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln high school and Northland state junior college. The bride is a student at Moorhead State college and the groom is employed by L. B. Hartz Wholesale, Inc. They are at home at 819 Main Avenue North. Photo, Chuck Agnew Studios, Mahnomen.

International Theme Highlights BPW Meeting

International knowledge, the February program theme of the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's dinner meeting, held Tuesday was developed by Mrs. Earl Dagg as she told of the role played by women in Russia. She emphasized that her knowledge was gained through study and personal impressions received in spending eight days in Moscow and Leningrad with her husband and a large number of other doctors and their wives.

While in Russia, she noticed that many women were employed in occupations that American women consider men's work, such as brick layers, doing cement work and on scaffolds doing carpenter work. Women there are engaged in the space there are engaged in the space program, are captains of ships and 70 per cent of the doctors in that country are women. Young women are tested screened and trained for the job for which they are the best adapted. Only the very best are chosen for higher education.

Mrs. Dagg stated that she saw very few homes in Russian cities. Apartment buildings are prevalent and the size of the unit alloted depended upon the size of the family. Small apartments and the provision of government nurseries for infants, makes working more lucrative for the women in the average income bracket. Older women were also in evidence among the employed. They work as shoe shines and supervisors in hotels apartment buildings and museums.

While in Russia, she attended excellent performances of the ballet, saw a fashion show and witnessed weddings held in assembly - line fashion in a wedding palace especially built for this purpose.

Mrs. Dagg concluded by stating that the women of Russia seemed content with their way of living. She thought a contributing factor was that only a very select few were allowed to travel outside of Russia. Even travel within Russia must be reported to the government.

Mrs. Dagg was introduced to the group by Miss Karen Svendsgaard, chairman of the program committee.

Membership chairman Stella Krankkala was in charge of the presentation of the honor roll pins given to the sponsors of recent new members. Sponsors receiving the pins were Clarice Collins from Ann Bornick, Dorothy Johnson from Helen Bushaw, Bertha Hasland from Dorothy Last and Norma Hanson from Beulah Wikstrom.

President Ruth Wilson presided at the business session that included the discussion on reviving the Career Girl activities. JoAnn Reeve and Clarice Collins volunteered to work on the steering committee. Preliminary plans were also made for the district spring meeting to be held in Thief River Falls. Marge Hanson volunteered to work on the committee with others who will be appointed by the president.

Several birthdays were also observed. Those who had noted their birthday recently were presented with a remembrance from the club by Mrs. Eileen Horejsh. They were Gloria Bugge, Mrs. Neil McKechnie, LaVaun Clinton, Lydia Dahlen, Norma Hanson, JoAnn Reeve, Karen Svendsgaard, Beulah Wikstrom, Stella Krankkala, Ellen Spray and Dorothy Last.

MEA President Gives Comments On Negotiations

What does it take in Minnesota to compete in the marketplace for manpower to teach schoolchildren? Are public schools going to maintain their generally excellent status as educational institutions?

If they are, says a state education leader nine-month salaries for teachers in excess of $7,000 are essential.

Executive Secretary A. L. Gallop of the more - than - 40,000 association (MEA) adds, "We welcome suggestions from school boards that teachers be employed for 12 months a year. That approach gets us out of part-time professionalism.

"The so-called 'three - month vacation is not a teacher choice. It's an anachronism dating from education's Dark Ages."

Gallop's remarks have been prepared for a news briefing Wednesday (in the Minnesota Press Club, Minneapolis) designed to inform the public on updated details of the MEA's legislative program.

The program, explains MEA's chief lobbyist, includes clarification and strengthening of the teacher - school boards bargaining law, and the MEA - supported H. F. 1, a bill in the House of Representatives that would provide major improvements for teacher retirement, "pulling Minnesota into a better competitive position for attracting and retaining quality teachers."

Gallop maintains that "The polarized positions of both teachers and school boards must change; the legislature needs to enact measures that will force both parties to 'good faith' bargaining."

If this doesn't happen, Gallop predicts, teachers and boards "are on a collision course—with all its consequences."

One suggestion in the legislature so far, Gallop reveals, is a bill that would put teachers under labor law, "which does nothing to solve the basic problem of what to do when impasse develops."

Another bill that has been introduced—with which Gallop takes issue "because it is basically educationally unsound"—would create a statewide salary schedule for teachers and provide for sweeping structural changes; it is based on the premise that it takes less preparation to teach in the elementary grades than in the secondary.

"Teachers throughout the state, with MEA's wholehearted support," Gallop concludes, "are making a sincere effort to improve the education process.

"In many situations, school boards are judging before they negotiate. They should negotiate before they judge."

Veterans Receive $95 Million In Pension Benefits

Veterans administration paid over $95 million in compensation and pension benefits to Minnesota veterans and dependent of deceased war veterans during 1968.

John R. Murphy, manager of the VA center at St. Paul, said that at the end of the year, 71,800 Minnesota veterans were receiving compensation payments for service-connected disabilities or nonservice-connected pension benefits based on need.

He said that widows, children and dependent parents of 23,210 deceased state war veterans were on VA pension and compensation rolls at the end of the year. These payments accounted for 55.4 per cent of total VA expenditures in Minnesota during 1968.

Remaining VA funds went for education and training assistance allowances for veterans and war orphans, GI home loans, hospital and medical activities, insurance and indemnities and administrative expenses, Murphy said.

Allison first accepted the chairmanship for the 1968 appeal. He will officially open the 1969 campaign on March 1 and continue his activities through Easter Sunday.

In accepting the chairmanship for the second time, Allison said "I have been impressed with the progress made by the Minnesota Easter Seal society during the last year.

"The public support of the society has enabled it to continue its past programs and to reach out into the poverty areas of Minneapolis and St. Paul with its services. But there is always more that can be done. I hope that we will be able to accomplish as much in 1969 as we have in 1968," he said.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Ole Lerol
215 Conley Avenue South

One thing most senior homemakers have in common is that the majority of their cooking is done in their own kitchen. Some like "Tiny Grandma" just "don't go for these modern mixes". Through the years they have collected a number of recipes and the good standard ones have become a part of their regular way of preparing meals.

We are grateful to Mrs. Ole Lerol for sharing two of her favorite recipes with us.

Lazy Daisy Oatmeal cake

1¼ cup boiling water
1 cup oatmeal
½ cup butter
1 cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

Method: Pour boiling water over oatmeal, mix and put aside while mixing the other ingredients. Cream butter and sugar and add eggs slightly beaten. Add flour, sifted together with the soda, salt and spices. Combine this mixture with the oatmeal mixture. Bake in a greased and floured cake pan in a 350 degrees oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until done.

Frosting

¼ cup butter, melted
½ cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons milk
One-third cup nuts
¾ cup coconut

Method: Combine ingredients and boil two or three minutes. Immediately spread frosting on cake. The cake may then be placed in the oven for a few minutes or under the broiler.

Mrs. Lerol also submitted another recipe which will be published at a later date.

The Lerols are retired farmers and now reside in this city at 215 Conley Avenue south. They are thoroughly enjoying their retirement, visiting, traveling and attending community functions. In 1961 they spent four months in Norway, where Mr. Lerol was born. Before returning home, they also traveled in Sweden and Denmark. They are now planning a trip in April to Kansas City.

Of their eight children, only two are residing in this area. They are Orlin, who together with his wife, resides on the home farm, and Mrs. Henry Anenson.

The couple celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary last year. They are active members of the Thief River Falls Senior citizens group and the Silverton Lutheran church.

Heart Programs National and Local, Chm. Says

Programs of the Heart association are both national and local in scope. The help we, as patients, receive when we go to our local physician is evidence of research and education that has gone on to make this service available to us through our local medical community, says Don Lindquist, chairman of the Pennington County Heart Fund drive.

Examples of this are control of high blood pressure, correction of in-born heart defects in children, nutritional knowledge to help reduce the incidence of heart attack and control of rheumatic fever along with the heart problems it can cause.

In Pennington county, residents realize an annual savings of well over $3,300 annually as a result of a low-cost rheumatic fever prevention program. This program not only helps to control the incidence of rheumatic fever, but also the accompanying heart valve and other damage sometimes incurred as a result of rheumatic fever, Lindquist said.

On a state-wide basis, the Heart association has been carrying on a program to encourage development of intensive coronary care units in many hospitals. Information has been catalogued and personnel have been available to help plan for and the train medical personnel in the workings of intensive coronary care.

Education, both professional and public, is carried on on a year-round basis to up-date physicians and nurses in the state on the latest methods in treatment and care of cardiovascular problems. Continuous effort is made to make the public aware of the risk factors that are involved in the development of heart attack. These include diet, exercise, smoking, control of high blood pressure and other factors pertinent to heart health.

Research, education and community servic programs of the Heart association are all made possible through the efforts of millions of Heart fund volunteers that annually help promote the Heart fund.

Asks Release Of Emergency Farm Home Funds

Congressman Odin Langen has asked the bureau of the budget to release an additional $12 million for the emergency loan revolving fund of the Farmers Home administration.

"These funds are badly needed by thousands of farmers who face the coming growing season without adequate sources of credit," he said. "Farm prices have been and are so depressed that a farmer who suffers a natural disaster during the year has nothing to fall back on except these emergency loans. It would be a tragedy if these farmers should be forced to discontinue operations through lack of credit."

Langen, ranking minority member of the agriculture appropriations subcommittee in the House, noted that there are ample amounts of money in the revolving fund to cover the $12 million requested.

"Making these money's available for loans is no government give-away," he emphasized. "Its actually a sound business investment. The emergency fund has an excellent record of repayment, with losses over the past 20 years of less than two per cent. The additional money should be promptly made available."

UNPACKING THEIR SUITCASE for the Lions Mid-Winter Conference held in Thief River Falls on Friday, Saturday and Sunday are Doctor and Mrs. Hiltesman of Winnipeg, Manitoba. Dr. Heltsman is the 1968-69 governor of Lions District 5 M-3, which covers northern Minnesota, Manitoba, and southwest Ontario.

Dist. Governor Of Lions Gives Views on Lionism

By Daryl Augustine
Times Reporter

The Lions are "a group of dedicated people whose object is to provide a better world to live in today and tomorrow," said Dr. Robert J. Hiltesman, governor of Lions District 5 M-3, in an interview on Friday.

Dr. Hiltesman, a native member of the Winnipeg Lions club since 1937, presided at the Lions Mid-Winter conference in Thief River Falls on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The three-day event according to Hiltesman, had two main objectives in mind: to bring the Lions in district 5 M-3 up to date, on the organizations programs and to encourage increased participation in the various aspects of the Lions clubs' respective communities.

"This year's conference is the first to be named in honor of a man," said Dr. Hiltesman, who initiated the idea. "It was adopted with one main purpose in mind," he stated, "to honor and acknowledge outstanding Lions members such as James Parkins."

With the motto "We Serve" in mind, Governor Hiltesman stated that the main purpose of the Lions club is serving the community. Working with the blind was first on the list, according to Hiltesman. "We believe the time to prevent blindness is before it happens," he said.

Today, Lions clubs all over the nation work as a massive unit in working for the welfare of the blind, rehabilitation of the blind and prevention of blindness. Area clubs, together with the University of Minnesota, support the Minnesota eye bank.

Another project high on the list, according to Hiltesman is care of the senir citizens. Clubs support, promote and sponsor community projects to construct and provide senior citizen housing.

District 5 M-3 consists of 893 members comprising 68 clubs, Dr. Heltsman said. It covers northern Minnesota, Manitoba and southwest Ontario.

Lions International is among the few organizations that are still not biased to race, creed, politics and religion, according to Hiltesman. However, he said, there is a new "order" in Lionism today, in which "we will weed out the deadwood and bring in new young men with fresh ideas."

Dr. Hiltesman, an accomplished surgeon in his chosen field of medicine, is a war veteran and served as a Major in the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps. He was mobilized in World War II with the Royal Winnipeg Rifles, better known as the "Little Black Devils." He is a member of several medical associations and societies, several civic organizations and groups, including the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce, and is also a Mason, a Shriner and a member of the Khartum Temple Drum and Bugle Corps in Winnipeg.

Along with being an active member of the Winnipeg Lions club for 32 years, Dr. Hiltesman has served on several committees, was a member of the board of directors, was president and vice president of the Winnipeg Lions, was chairman of zone two in region five was cabinet chairman of information of 5 M-3, and was elected District Governor of 5 M-3 in 1968.

Accompanying Dr. Hiltesman and his wife to Thief River Falls for the conference were Robert Morgan, deputy governor of 5 M-3, and Edward Casey a close friend of Dr. Hiltesman and a Lions member for some 40 years. The whole group agreed, in the words of Morgan, that it was indeed a "pleasure to be here in Thief River Falls. We thoroughly enjoy the hospitality of the Thief River Falls people and we are sure, as always, the friendly relationship between Canada and Minnesota will continue."

Ozzie, The Crow

Was First Crow Of the Season Really Ozzie?

The article in the Times last Monday about a crow made the Maynard Moiskness family of route 5, Thief River Falls, wonder if it could be their pet crow that was noticed just east of town.

Ozzie has been missing since just before Christmas. It has lived at the farm for about a year and one half. The first summer, before it could fly well the chickens plucked out some of its tail feathers in their little farmyard squabbles, so Ozzie couldn't fly. The crow stayed in the barn all last winter and remained around the farm all summer, but gradually got to fly better and better until it started visiting neighboring farms, last fall.

The family reportedly misses the crow very much, as it was a very interesting pet. When they'd come out in the morning the crow would be sitting on the roof of the back entry and say "Hello" very plainly.

It's talking was first noticed when Mrs. Moiskness, home alone, heard what she thought was some visitors outside. When she went outside all she saw was the crow. It wasn't intelligable but sounded like conversation.

At other times Ozzie sounded like the chickens that he had lived with so long.

One time visitors came, and as they heard someone calling "Hello", they thought at first someone was home, but finally spotted the crow.

So if the "early" crow—should answer "Hello", it probably is Ozzie.

Books for Adults

Any time you are in the mood to start a pitched battle, ask the question, "Does what you read affect you morally and emotionally?" Of course, there are no pat answers...too many things enter into the picture. But parents' groups, law enforcement officials, teachers and others whose job it is to mold and form youth into the citizens who must guard democracy for the future, would do well to give this one close attention.

With so many ramifications to the question, so many sides to the problem, perhaps this book hasn't all the answers, but it has on record the results of an exhaustive study of the subject. We refer to "Burning Ice," compiled by a Maryknoll nun. Students surveyed for the opinions stated in this book were from public and private schools alike, and from all faiths. Their answers are frank and disturbingly so, and represent a cross-section of youth-opinion on a burning question of our time.

"Ordeal of the Animals" by Mel Morse is a good conversation piece on quite another theme, and is guaranteed to stir up a hornet's nest wherever men tend to gather. Get a discussion going on the subject matter of this book and sparks are bound to fly and lines of demarcation regarding sharply divided opinions are bound to form.

The ordeals described may not have occurred to the average person at all until they come out in bold print. One school of thought will insist that what the animals must often endure is unavoidable, even necessary, for one reason or other.

A few of the subjects discussed are: What goes on behind the wooden enclosures before the appearance of a bucking bronco or steer at a rodeo? How much suffering is inflicted on the animals (deer, etc.) wounded by unskilled hunters, left to die brutally because they were lucky (?) enough to escape death at the hands of these hunters? Why must some dog pounds treat their inmates in such beastly (!) fashion? Why must laboratory experiments that cause great agony be repeated over and over again, rather than only once to prove a theory or make a point? For that matter, what becomes of the horses in movie sequences where the script calls for them to fall or be pushed over a cliff?

If you've ever loved a dog a horse or any animal, if you are a sportsman in the truest sense of the word, at least portions of "The Ordeal of the Animals" will shock and anger you...and hopefully set you to think of ways to remedy the wrongs. Other portions you may disagree with. But you should read it.

Mary Stewart's latest tension-maker is here, and if she's one of your favorites, she will continue to be after you've read, "Madam, Will You Talk?"

We also give the nod to Agatha Christie's "By the Pricking of My Thumbs," of which the dust jacket says that it might as well have been named "By the Chilling of Your Spine." And of course, no Christie novel needs more than a mere mention to get it on the road.

"Oriental Carpets", a large, lavish book befitting its regal contents, gives a thorough survey of Oriental rugs, shows many of them in color and gives an explanation of the color, pattern and individual symbols that are woven into them. It is undoubtedly the last word on the subject, presented in easy-to-understand form which is actually fascinating." The rug is as old as the world," was only one of the surprising statement to catch and hold our interest.

Book for Teenager

"Portrait of Margarita" by Ruth Arthur is a book full of problem that could confront any teenage girl, plus one more. Margarita lost both her parents in a crash, and was sent off to live with a cousin Francis a guardian whom she scarcely knew. And to compound her problems, she found herself gradually growing to love Cousin Francis, this middle-aged man who should have been a hermit. There's an air of mystery about the place where she lived since the death of her parents; all sorts of things were happening to bewilder her. To find out how this young orphan with so many problems learned to cope with life, pick up the book in the teenage section of the library.

"The High White Wall" by Zoe Sherburne is the story of a young miss who longed to get out of the poor neighborhood where she had lived so long... too long, she insisted, and make a new life for herself among another class of people, the wealthy. Behind the high white wall of the story lives the Kingsley family, with two little girls, and Mrs Kingsley's son, Dirk, for whom Leeann would do secretarial work if she took the job she thought about. And there was Barry, a neighborhood boy whom she wanted to get out of her mind. But there was Dirk, too, and the new problems which knowing him brought into her world.

The author has seven children, and she writes so well about young people because she has so much raw material right at home on which to draw for ideas. She is and always will be a favorite of girls. If you don't know about her books, now is the time, and "The High White Wall" is a good place to start.

Since teenagers are the biggest market in our age, a book on the economics of buying ought to be interesting to them. Anyone in high school should be aware of the traps in buying, and "The Innocent Consumer vs. the Exploiters" is an eye-opener you can't afford to pass up. Nor can your parents, so why not make it a family thing?

Let's look into the contents. You hear of revolving charge accounts, with the interest rate (called a "service charge") at 1½ per cent a month, on the declining balance. This according to the book, is the equivalent of 18 per cent a year! Can you afford that kind of interest on things you could wait for until you have the cash to pay for them outright? Then there is the insidious "referral" plan for buying such things as vacuum cleaners, and even wigs. And how you get taken to the cleaners! Look into the thousand and one traps that are waiting for you and your dollars if you aren't wary. This will really open your eyes.

Books for Children

Imagine a book, Mom and Dad, and Gramps and Grandmas, that takes you all the way back to "Run, Sheep, Run; Here We Go Round the Mulberry Bush; Ready or Not, Here I Come; Lazy Mary; A-Hunting We Will Go," and all the other favorites that you just don't quite forget, but don't completely remember either. We have a new book, "Ready or Not, Here I Come," in the 817 j section which has all these favorite games plus many more. Simple piano accompaniments are included with those that are singing games.

There's always a lot of interest in dinosaurs and other prehistoric animals. A new book just received is called "Answers about Dinosaurs and Prehistoric Animals," and should bring the kids on the run to check it out.

Making the study of weather as easy as a game must be the object of the book "Weather All Around." It's so simple, yet so complete, no student need balk about learning that subject quite thoroughly.

"Out! Out! Out!" is a darling little book that tells a charming story in pictures only. A little book for little people who can't read a word yet but like books nevertheless.

"Harald the Happy Handyman" is about the handyman who whistled as he worked, and after many years in which he repaired only old shoes took up mending a piano sold it had tood-stools growing on it, then mended an old car, a house that was falling apart and from then on made a living (and a good one) by becoming a fixer of all sorts of things.

Grant Extension To Farmers on Filing State Tax

Gov. Harold LeVander Thursday announced that some farmers may receive an extension on the deadline for filing their 1968 state income tax returns.

LeVander said that if farmers did not file their 1968 declaration of estimated tax before January 15, and are unable to file returns by February 15 because of heavy snow and blocked roads, they may be granted an extension until March 15 to make the filings.

Arrangements for the delay have been worked out with the state department of taxation, the Governor said. Those who file late must submit a letter stating the reason for the delay.

Common Cold Is Now Blamed on Air Pollution

Air pollution — not cold, blustery weather — could be the real culprit in the case of the common cold, according to the Minnesota AAA.

The motoring organization disclosed today that an intensive three-year government study in the causes of upper respiratory infections pointed much of the blame on air pollution.

"There would be a sudden drop from 10 to 20 per cent in common colds, if air pollution could be eliminated," the study concluded. And AAA adds that the severity of most of the remaining colds would be considerably reduced, as well.

Social Security Recipients Must Submit Reports

Most social security beneficiaries who earned over $1,680 in 1968 must make annual reports of their earnings to the Social security administration by April 15, reminds Clifford Kittelson, district manager.

The Social security administration has mailed annual report of earnings card to all beneficiaries who stopped their benefits for some months last year. Beneficiaries getting these cards should use them for their reports.

Anyone who earned over $1,680 but did not stop his checks will have to ask his social security office for a report form. A beneficiary may be penalized if he fails to report.

In reporting, a beneficiary should show gross wages and net earnings from self-employment. In wages he needs to include bonuses and tips. Ordinarily a farmer must include agricultural program payments unless he is a landlord who shares the payments with his tenant.

A beneficiary who was 72 in January of 1968 or earlier does not need to make a report. If was entitled to his social security benefits regardless of his earnings.

Cat Finds Way Home Over 122 Rugged Miles

the Linds were sitting at the kitchen table, when Helmer noticed a cat in the yard. As it walked up the front sidewalk, he stared in startled disbelief. Mrs. Lind's attention was called to the cat, and together Mr. and Mrs. Lind witnessed the return of "Oof Da".

"He had grown big and fat and looked sleek and shiny," Mrs. Lind recalls. "His personality had changed, though, and he no longer trusted us. When we tried to pet him he would bite and scratch, and he wouldn't come into the house."

The cat ate the food set out for him and gradually regained his confidence. He finally accepted the Linds once more, came into the house and rejoined the family circle. "There is no question but that he is the same cat," Mrs. Lind said. "We have a picture taken of him before we went to camp and the markings are identical."

Between Newfolden and Lake of the Woods lies some extremely rugged country. Much of it is heavily wooded land, there are stretches of swamp and bog and 1968 had an extremely wet autumn season. Only "Oof Da" knows how many of his proverbial nine lives were used in his unerring journey home.

Three from Area Hear Ag Leaders In Washington

Wallace Boman of Thief River Falls, Roger Anderson of Viking and Leo Orpen of Middle River were among 120 farm people from South Dakota, Minnesota and Colorado who heard assurances Tuesday from new Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin that the department will be greatly concerned with improving farm income and increasing the returns on farm investment and labor.

Secretary Hardin and 10 top aides, including Under Secretary Phil Campbell and assistant secretary Clarence D. Palmby, met with the Farmers Union delegation at USDA headquarters.

Secretary Hardin pledged that he and his staff would give top billing to holding and expanding world markets for U.S. farm products, would make every effort to wipe out hunger in America and would carry out a long-term program of rural development to improve the quality of living in rural America.

He also assured the Farmers Union group that the REA the farm loan programs and agricultural research would not be neglected.

The grassroots farm representatives spent three action-packed days in the national capital and their activity included calling at the offices of most of members of the U. S. House and Senate. Most of the Monday schedule was spent in climbing "Capitol Hill", visiting with the legislators or their staff assistants and leaving Farmers Union position papers and recommendations, suggesting a number of "better ideas" for solving agricultural problems.

One of the major recommendations was the adoption of the Metcalf bill to close a tax loophole which now enables wealthy non-farmers to escape some $200 millions a year in income taxes by using "paper" farm losses to reduce tax liability on other income.

11,476 Veterans In School With VA Assistance

A record 11,476 post-Korean veterans and servicemen entered Minnesota schools and training establishments in the fall term just ended.

John R. Murphy, manager, Veterans administration center, St. Paul, said it is almost certain this record would be broken during the spring semester now starting.

Before the beginning of the 1968-69 school term, the VA estimated the national peak fall enrollment of post-Korean veterans and servicemen would be about 553,000. Nearly 557,000 actually entered training.

The VA estimates the peak spring enrollment of eligible post-Korean veterans and servicemen at approximately 640,000 nationally.

To be eligible for VA educational assistance under the post-Korean GI bill, a veteran must have had at least 181 days of continuous service part of it after Jan. 31, 1955, while a serviceman or woman must have completed at least two consecutive years of active duty.

Murphy said that of the 11,334 veterans in Minnesota who entered training this fall, 6,022 enrolled in college level institutions. Another 1,184 took on-the-job training. The remainder attended schools below the college level.

Servicemen in the state who entered college level training this fall totalled 21, with an additional 121 entering schools below the college level.

Veterans and servicemen in Minnesota who are entering GI bill training for the first time this spring were reminded of a recent liberalization in VA training and education entitlement. Effective last December 1, the post-Korean GI bill was changed to give veterans separated from service after Jan. 31, 1955, one and one-half months of educational assistance—up to a maximum of 36 months—for each month of military service. The previous limit was one month of entitlement for each month of service, Murphy said.

Another provision of this new law grants veterans with at least 18 months of continuous service after Jan. 31, 1955, who have satisfied their military obligation, the maximum of 36 months of educational assistance.

Murphy said the 31-month-old post-Korean GI bill education and training program also entitles veterans who have not completed high school to receive VA assistance while earning their high school diploma or its equivalent. This assistance is not charged against a veteran's full eligibility for training beyond high school.

"Regulation has never been considered the ultimate solution in our American economy; the goal of government policy should be to foster free and open competition in every nook and cranny of our . . .economy." —S. David Freeman

Think Thief River Falls

We don't agree that any publicity for our community is good publicity, but spreading the name of the community around the country is generally good. The fantastic success of Arctic Cat racers in major events throughout the snow areas of the United States has brought considerable publicity, and will continue to do so in increasing abundance.

And those who think a name change would be a good thing for our town overlook the unique qualities the name possesses. To the unfamiliar, the name immediately causes interest or arouses curiosity. It's a "catchy" name.

In the February issue of Time magazine, a two-page advertisement by the Xerox corporation prominently mentions Thief River Falls. The connotation may be something less than the community would desire, but TRFites have a good sense of humor, and the advertisement is in good taste. For those of our readers who did not see the publication, we are reprinting a reduction of the advertisement here.

As Thief River Falls people think Thief River Falls and talk Thief River Falls when they travel, and as the name appears in public through various methods, it becomes familiar to more and more people.

And we needn't resent too much being considered the town at the edge of civilization—the veritable end of the trail. After all, the pot of gold is supposed to be at the end of the rainbow!

The Other Foot

A late AP dispatch carries what may seem to many an amusing sort of "man bites dog" story. It tells of an investigation of a federal agency by a group of law students. Their report is far from complimentary and prompted the head of the agency to comment: "This report emanates from a group with a self-granted license to criticize a respected government agency by the use of a type of invective and 'smear technique' that newspapermen informed me is unusual even for Washington."

For a great many years, government spokesmen and investigative bodies have staged one-sided hearings where the principal objective seems to have been to damage the reputations of private citizens and industries who have been at a great disadvantage in answering the "authoritative" statements of officials. Now the shoe is on the other foot. And the official whose agency has been under investigation by private citizens terms the outcome ". . .a scurrilous, untruthful attack on the career personnel. . ." of his agency.

Regardless of the merit or the truth of the law students' findings, this "man bites dog" episode has a couple of interesting points. Under our system of government there is no firing squad or prison waiting for the private citizens who have taken issue with a public official. On the other hand, the thin-skinned response to the law students' report shows pretty clearly what would have happened if the occurrance had taken place, say, in Czechoslovakia or the Soviet Union.

You'll Never Hear . . .

From the Baudette Region comes this gem:

TV interviews you might see but never will:

Interviewer: Coach Icey, that was a tremendous game! How does it feel to win your first state hockey tournament? Imagine you're pretty shaky now that it's all over.

Coach: It feels great all right; frankly I had to win or else. And I'm not half as shaky now as when the school board said I was all done if we didn't win at least one game.

I: Ha ha, see what you mean. I suppose your win came as a result of a real team effort,?

C: Nope. The load is carried by a couple of boys from Canada we brought into our school. The rest of them are just out there for the most part. And they're well-coached.

I: By golly, you're the frank one Coach Icey, ha ha. Uh—that was a pretty well-rated team you beat. Too bad both teams couldn't go on, eh?

C: No. We outclassed them. Both goals they got were scratch goals any way you slice it.

I: I must compliment you on your sense of humor, coach, ha ha. Hope you remember we're on the air. By the way, how are your players in scholarship? Sound mind in a sound body and all that, you know.

C: We've got one A student — school board president's son—the rest get by.

I: Well, uh—there were a few penalties in your game Coach Icey. Imagine your boys are a little nervous in their first appearance here and a little over-aggressive because of that.

C: Nice guys finish last.

I: Ha ha, you're really breaking up our audience tonight, coach! Well, uh—you've got to play hard to win, all right. Noticed your boys in the hotel lobby last night. Certainly well-behaved.

C: Yup. We assign one faculty member to every four boys every minute they're in public.

I: Yes, well — I guess maybe they could get a little high-spirited and all that.

C: Well, I'd say they were just mean.

I: Coach Icey, let's get out the old crystal ball. What do you see coming up for your team?

C: Trouble.

I: I see. Well. It's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game, eh?

C: You must be kidding.

I: Coach Icey, I guess you'll be scouting your next opponent pretty thoroughly?

C: Yes. Couple of the staff and I will be glued to that tv, sucking up a little froth and. . .

I: Well coach, ha ha, certainly has been a real pleasure talking to you tonight and best wishes for the rest of your games. Ladies and gentlemen that was Coach Icey of Region 19 telling us about his team. Like all the boys in here for this classic they are, as the coach told us, not only a fine group of hockey players, but in high standing scholastically, and perfect gentlemen on and off the ice, a great credit to their school and town, and to the whole state as far as that goes. Now we'll be back with you in just one minute following this message from Burp's Brew—

Would You Drive One?

We think a good point is made in this comment from the Industrial News Review:

The continuing controversy over brand name versus generic name drugs has been more than a little confusing to a lot of people. And yet the principle involved in the controversy is comparatively simple. Political investigators of the prescription drug industry have, for several years, endeavored to sell the public on the idea that a drug is a drug, regardless of who manufactures it.

Thus, a generic drug, which bears only the name of the active ingredient it contains, is said to be automatically just as good as another drug compounded for a similar purpose bearing the name of a reputable pharmaceutical house.

It is not too much of an exaggeration to say this is something like producing nameless autos on the theory that a car is a car and that is the end of the matter. It is doubtful if anyone would wish to buy an anonymous car, and yet, this could well be a lot less serious than buying an anonymous generic drug.

Not long ago, two photographs appeared of two different drug laboratories. One of the pictures showed a modern facility of a major drug firm. The other showed a "laboratory" of a nameless drug manufacturer that was later closed by federal inspectors. The compounds it produced were no doubt distributed under their generic name alone, since the law does not require that the name of the manufacturer be given.

As a spokesman for the pharmaceutical industry points out, ". . .if your prescription gives only the generic name of a drug product, neither you nor your doctor—and maybe not even your pharmacist—will know what company manufactured it!" It makes sense to know the manufacturer who made your medicine, just as it does to know the name of the company who produced the car you are driving.

One of our readers sent us the following clipping which appeared in a Los Angeles newspaper and tells very clearly one of the frustrations of working with the printed word:

The typographic error is
A slippery thing and sly.
You can hunt 'til you are dizzy,
But it somehow will get by.
'Til the forms are off the presses,
It is strange how still it keeps;
It shrinks down in a corner,
And never stirs or peeps.
The typographic error,
Too small for human eyes,
'Til the ink is on the paper,
When it grows to mountain size.
The boss, he stares with horror,
Then he grabs his hair and groans;
The copy reader drops his head
Upon his hands and moans;
The remainder of the issue
May be clean as clean can be,
But the typograpyie error
Is the only thing you see.

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

A thorough study is under way of all the tax-exempt property in Minnesota by the tax committee of the House of Representatives. House File 239 proposes a constitutional amendment which would give the legislature the powers to define certain sections in our state consitution which pertain to tax exempt property.

This measure would not change the tax-exempt status of churches, houses of worship and property used solely for educational purposes. Another measure under consideration by the Committee, House File 240, provides that property owned by a school, academy, college or university will receive tax exemptions only if the property is actually used as a school house or a school facility.

The primary reason for this bill is to eliminate tax-exempt teacher-ages. A teacherage is a house owned by a school district and used by an employee of the school district, usually a superintendent or a teacher. Other specific problems in the area of non-academic use of school-owned property are also covered under terms of this measure.

House File 241, also under consideration by the tax committee, would correct a so-called loophole in the law governing property owned by tax-exempt institutions, and those of profit-making organizations.

The final measure under consideration at this time on the problems of tax-exempt property is House File 493. This bill provides that property owned by the University of Minnesota, the state or any governmental unit shall be exempt unless the property is used to a substantial extent for governmental or educational purposes.

At the present time a meat inspection bill is under consideration by the House agricultural committee. For many years the Minnesota legislature that would provide our state with a state meat inspection program, including the anti-mortem and post-mortem inspection of animals. This same Legislation has been recommended to all 50 states by the United States department of agriculture.

As of this date 32 of the states have enacted this type of meat inspection law, and their state meat inspection laws have been examined and approved by the United States department of agriculture under the provisions of the wholesome meat act enacted by Congress on Dec. 15, 1967.

The main incentive for obtaining USDA approval of a state meat inspection program is that the states obtaining such approval may qualify for federal funding of up to 50 per cent of the total cost of the approved program. My chief concern regarding meat inspection legislation is to make sure that we provide the necessary safeguards to protect our local locker plants scattered throughout rural Minnesota, and to assure their continued operation.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Marvin Lundeen
Thief River Falls Times
Thief River Falls, Minnesota
Dear Editor,
Re: "Ban the Ban"

When I was a young man soon after the turn of the century the cigarette in its present form was unavailable. But the tobacco shops carried "Bull Durham" and "Dukes Mixture" at five cents per bag and a book of cigarette papers came with each bag. We smokers had to "roll" our own. Some of my friends became so expert in this that they could roll them with one hand. But I having a lazy streak in my make-up decided to drop the cigarette in favor of the pipe. This I also discarded in time.

Then the "Fatima" cigarette appeared and it was followed by several other brands and the fad took hold. Smokers fell for the "pill" and a new industry grew in the land! Competition among the manufacturers increased. Then they hit upon a new idea; they gave their product the feminine touch. Then you know the result, the manufacturers more than doubled their customer potential.

Advertising became a fine art with the big businesses and especially with the cigarette manufacturers. Radio and television came into the picture and the best prime time was grabbed by the cigarette manufacturers. And that brings us up to the present.

I am not opposed to smoking as such, but I am opposed to the glamorizing of this dangerous habit and bringing it into the homes where young children are exposed to it. These youngsters have no way of protecting themselves from this unseen monster that strives to enslave them with the almost unbreakable chain of the cigarette habit. The glamorous aspect of this habit becomes so fixed on them so they can hardly wait till they can indulge in it. The schools make only a half hearted attempt to discourage it.

From the cigarette habit it is only a very short step to the Marijuana and the "L.S.D." trip and Heroin and so forth, etc. In the state where I now live I am told that almost every high school has its own Marijunana "pusher" and I believe it!

I have been following your fine editorials for years but this time you have jumped the track. Why not get back into your more becaming role of moral leader!

The "kids" need you more than ever.

True, government regulation is bad in many cases, but you and I approve of air and ground traffic regulation, postal service, social security and other beneficial services.

And now I want to use your quote from your following editorial, "In Your Hands" the quote by Edmond Burke. "The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing." Back the F.C.C. on this issue!

And to the American Cancer Society and all "good men" a last word of encouragement—

"Thermopali had its messenger of defeat, The Alamo had none."

Sincerely,
C. Herb Jung

To the Editor:

In response to the letter that appeared in the February 19th edition of the Times complaining about the lack of coverage of Prowler hockey, may I say this;

High school athletics is the greatest level in sports because of the competition it produces and the school spirit it generates. Naturally people have their preferences of the various sports. But criticizing a newspaper or any other media for lack of coverage in hockey or any other sport is both unfair and selfish.

I'm sure the Times does the best job possible in covering all sports in Thief River Falls. Having some experience with this type of problem, I think the old adage, "You can't please all of the people all of the time" applies, or maybe some of the people none of the time in this case.

Little League baseball is a good example of how fans, especially parents, have put a damper on youth athletics, with selfish complaints and personal preferences. I think people should support high school athletics because of pride in the whole school, not for an individual sport.

CAPITOL COMMENT

BY
MARTY MCGOWAN

One position in state government receiving more than ordinary attention at the current legislative session is the post of lieutenant governor. On one hand the incumbent in that office is trying to enhance the position while on the other hand some members of the legislature are trying to abolish the office.

At present the office has little stature. The only definite assignment given the holder of that office is to be presiding officer of the senate. Other than that the lieutenant governor is supposed to be around in case the chief executive gets taken out of the picture.

The office has served as a stepping stone to higher office in recent memory. Ed Thye went from there to governor's office and the United States Senate. C. Elmer Anderson and Karl Rolvaag both moved up to governor from lieutenant governor. A. M. "Sandy" Keith attempted to move up but didn't make it. Congressman Ancher Nelsen served one legislative session in the office 16 years ago.

Present holder of the office is James Goetz, radio station executive from Winona, considered a rising star in state GOP affairs. Without a doubt he is entitled to the Beau Brummel award for sartorial excellence in the legislature. One day recently he was seen presiding over the senate in an olive-gold suit, slightly double breasted, with matching olive shirt and shiny matching gold tie. His locks are cut a bit longer this session and there is a trace of modest sideburns. This is in contrast to the dark suit with pipe stem trousers he wore most often last session.

More important, however, is the fact that he seems to know what he is doing as presiding officer this session. Two years ago he appeared uncertain and groping for assistance. Now things move with dispatch under his gavel.

In addition to new attire, the lieutenant governor benefitted from the capital remodeling with a new office. Instead of being on the second floor off the senate chamber, Lt. Gov. Goetz is in a new office on the first floor off the rotunda area and at the end of the offices occupied by assistants in the attorney general's office. This, incidentally, is across the hall from the governor's office.

This new office has all the trappings of the new legislative offices and a beautiful carpet on the floor. Remember when "Sandy" Keith asked to have his threadbare carpet replaced and was turned down?

By constitutional provision the salary of the lieutenant governor is twice that paid to legislators, whatever they may be getting at the moemnt. Since legislators are presently being paid $400 per month, the lieutenant governor draws $800 per month or a bit less than $10,000 per year. Lt. Gov. Goetz said over television recently that if the job is worth that kind of salary it ought to be worth some other things like an administrative assistant, full-time secretary and chauffeur-driven limousine.

Others disagree. Sen. Jack Davies DFL member from Minneapolis, who once favored legislation to elect the governor and lieutenant governor on the same ballot, now has a bill introduced which would abolish the office of lieutenant governor. Sen. Davies contends the senate could choose its presiding officer from among the members, as the house of representatives does. Sen. Davies would also have a constitutional officer, like the attorney general, succeed to the governor's office before the president pro tem of the senate, if the governor should happen to die. Several states do not have lieutenant governors and make other provisions for succession.

Gov. LeVander has given Lt. Gov. Goetz one important assignment in the current session. That is the responsibility for shepherding through the recommendations of a study commission on State government reorganization. Expenses of this commission ran to $130,000 and already there is great dissatisfaction with the conclusions, mainly those relating to allowing the governor to appoint a secretary of state, treasurer, auditor and attorney general. In a smart political ploy the governor has disassociated himself from this controversy. His recommendations for reorganization are less extensive than the commission suggested. So maybe there is reason to have the office of lieutenant governor after all as a place where hot issues can be dumped.

Four Score 93 in Northland Win

Four of Northland state junior college cage starters scored 20 points or better in Wednesday night's 103-80 victory over Itasca state junior college Vikings of Grand Rapids, at the Lincoln high school gymnasium. The foursame scored 93 points in Northland's second highest game total for the season.

Dwight Jaros, freshman from Warroad, started the Northmen off with a slight edge by dropping in two from outside the key in the first seconds of play. The Vikings returned the ball for a field goal, and picked up a Northland bad pass to tie the game. The score rocked back and forth within two points until the last three minutes of the first half, when the Northmen pulled ahead to leave the floor with a lead of 47-37.

Second half play saw three players fouling out in the action: Sounvieri and Oillia of the Vikings and Larson of the Northmen. The Northmen continued to widen the gap, and with a minute and a half left, they passed the 100 mark.

Leading the Northmen quint in scoring was Tom Super with 26 points, followed by Dwight Jaros with 24, Von Swanson with 23 and Nick Neibauer with 20. It was the top game of the season for Jaros and Swanson.

Gordon Eftefield, usual starter for the Northmen was forced to sit out the game with a knee injury. Eftefield injured his knee at a ski outing over the weekend.

Leading the Itasca scorers was Bob Perry of Greenway. Perry was also top man of the game with nine field goals and 13 tosses at the charity line for a total of 31 points.

Northmen now have four wins and eight losses in conference play. They hold two victories over Brainerd state junior college, one over Vermillion state junior college of Ely and one over Itasca. The Northmen lost to Itasca in the first game of the season by a score of 84-69.

Edina Captures State Puck Title; Warroad Second

Edina added to its number of state titles on Saturday night by defeating the Warroad Warriors in sudden death overtime for the Minnesota state high school hockey crown. The Hornets posted a 5-4 win over the Warriors, who played most of the contest without their super star, Henry Boucha, who was injured in the second period of the game.

Boucha was taken to a St. Paul hospital where it was reported that he suffered a broken eardrum. He left the ice after being injured early in the second period.

In other action on Saturday, South St. Paul tripped Roseau 4-3 for third place while Greenway of Coleraine slapped St. Paul Harding 4-1 in Consolation play.

Warroad gained the finals by stopping St. Paul Harding on Thursday, then topping Roseau 3-2 on Friday.

Times' Sport Spotlight

GAME OF THE WEEK

by Bob Wielinski

A new season is now approaching for area basketball teams and for those in the entire state of Minnesota as teams now face a win or hang it up for the season situation.

The season is the opening of tournaments in which a team must win if it is going to continue in quest of the state tournament which will begin in less than four weeks at Williams arena at the University of Minnesota.

Area teams open play tonight (Monday) as sub-district play begins in three area districts. In sub-district 31 play at East Grand Forks tonight, there will be two games. In sub-district 32 at Roseau, Hallock and Kennedy, there will also be games played. Sub-district 30 opens at Clearbrook in the north and at Mahnomen in the south.

In district 31 play at East Grand Forks, Goodridge will tangle with Red Lake Falls at 7 p.m., while Alvarado will meet Plummer in the second contest scheduled for 8:30 p.m. The two winners will then meet Oslo and Fisher on Tuesday night. The winner of Goodridge - Red Lake Falls will then meet Oslo and winner of the Alvarado-Plummer contest will meet Fisher at 8:30 p.m. The third place game and finals will be held on Thursday at 7 and 8:30 p.m.

In sub-district 32 play tonight (Monday), Newfolden will meet Williams at 7 p.m. at Roseau, while Middle River will play Badger at 8:30 p.m., also at Roseau. At the same site on Tuesday Greenbush meets Baudette at 7 p.m. while Roseau and Warroad meet at 8:30 p.m. Semi-finals will be held on Thursday with the finals scheduled for Friday night.

On Tuesday night at Ada Hendrum will play Halstad at 7 p.m. and Mahnomen meets Gary at 8:30 p.m. Semi-finals will be held at Mahnomen and Ada on Thursday evenings.

Goodridge, which finished the season on Friday by beating Newfolden 55-54, will meet Red Lake Falls at 7 p.m. to start sub-district 31 play. The Huskies finished with the best record in the District 15,3, but lost all three of those games in the polar conference and finished in a three-way tie for second place. They lost the coin flip and ended in fourth place in the conference standings and thus drew Red Lake Falls in the opening round.

The Huskies, who have been looking a big man this this season, have three players averaging in double figures. They include Brian Wiseth, Roger Blaine and Ray Molsberger. Gary Anderson, who suffered a knee injury in December, is back in action for he Huskies and is giving them the help they need on the boards. These four and Dave Dahlen are expected to start for the Huskies tonight against Red Lake Falls. In two previous games this year the Huskies have toppled the Eagles.

In the second game Alvarado is expected to stop Plummer, who only won two games all season. Plummer has depended on the Martell boys, Doug and Ray, all season but won't be able to muscle with the taller Indian club, which has one of the area's taller players at center in Dan Dahlstrom at 6-6.

In District 32, Newfolden, which finished with a season mark of 13-4, will tangle with Williams in the first game at Roseau tonight. The Nordics have enjoyed a successful season under the direction of coach Ron Ueland. In the last few games of the season, both losses to Middle River and Goodridge, they have played without the services of starters Dave Sethre and Brad Olson, both of whom have been sick. The Nordics have been paced by 6-3 center Clyde Strandquist, who is averaging 15.5 points per contest.

Middle River will play in the second game and is led by junior Jerry Johnson, who is averaging close to 18 points per game. Others averaging in double figures for the Skippers are Jerry Nelson and Bob Sparby. The Skippers finished the season with an even 8-8 record.

Prowlers End Regular Season With Win

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls Prowlers moved into sole possession of first place in the Big Five basketball conference on Thursday night and will be the number one team in the district as the result of their win over East Grand Forks 77-71 at Lincoln high school gym.

The Prowlers finished their season on Thursday evening and now will have a week lay off until the opening of the District 31 tournament on Monday, March 3, at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse. The win upped the Prowlers' record to 10-8 for the season and 5-1 in Big Five conference play. Warren finished in second place, also with a 5-1 record in conference play, but lost a two-point game to the Prowlers so they finished with a 6-2 point total. Based on two-point games, the Prowlers finished the season with an 7-1 record.

East Grand Forks was third with an even 4-4 record, while Crookston was 3-5 and Climax 0-8 for the year. These final standings were based on total number of points won and lost in the conference, whether the games were one or two-point contests.

Pairings for the District 31 tournament will be announced later this week with the three sub-district winners moving into the district tournament. The sub-district tournament starts on Monday at East Grand Forks and winds up on Thursday night.

Thursday night the Prowlers jumped to a 19-10 lead at the end of the first period as Kip Poppenhagen, Sheldon Joppru and Dave Kildahl tallied 14 points in the opening period. Poppenhagen scored six to lead the way while Kildahl and Joppru had four points each in the period.

The Prowlers remained in the lead at 38-30 at half time, as Joppru tallied eight points in the period, bringing his total to 12 at the half. Don Jamieson, East Grand Forks guard, paced the Little Green Wave during the period with 10 points, giving him a total of 12 points at half time.

The Little Green Wave milled to take a 57-55 lead at the end of three quarters of play. In the final three minutes of the quarter, the game was knotted on four different occasions before the Little Green Wave pulled ahead on Scott Gravseth's basket with three seconds left in the period. Gravseth tallied nine points in the period to lead the rally for the visitors, while Kildahl added six points for the Prowlers.

The final period found Joppru evening the score at 57-57 on two free throws with 7:46 left in the contest. Eight straight points by Joppru and Don Balmer upped the score to 65-59 before East Side was able to close the gap to 65-63. A free throw by Dan Brodin made it 66-63, but two free throws by Steve Gravseth moved the visitors within one point of the Prowlers 66-65.

Joppru then tallied on a lay-up, giving the Prowlers a 68-65 lead, and added another basket, upping the lead to 70-65. Steve Gravseth brought the Green Wave within three points on a lay-up, making it 70-67. A free throw by Balmer and a basket by Steve Edlund gave the Prowlers a 73-67 lead. A rebound shot by Edlund on a missed free throw upped the score to 75-69. The Prowlers and the Green Wave each added two more points and the Prowlers had the victory at 77-71.

Joppru was high point man for the game with 25 points, followed by the Little Green Wave's Jamieson, who tallied 23 points. Others in double figures for the Prowlers were Dave Kildahl, with 14 points his high for the season, and Steve Edlund with 11 points. Tony Johnson and Don Balmer each added nine points in another balanced scoring attack for the Prowlers. Steve and Scott Gravseth tallied 17 and 13 points respectively for the Little Green Wave.

SCENE ACTION from the Community theatre's production of "Arsenic and Old Lace" shows Renae Sherman as Elaine Harper and James Solsten as Mr. Witherspoon as they arrive to take Teddy to a sanitarium. The play will be presented by the local group for the last time at 8 p.m. tonight, Wednesday, in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

Northland Drama Dep't. To Stage Play Next Week

Northland state junior college drama department will present "The Enchanted", a three-act drama by Jean Giraudoux, on Monday and Tuesday in the Lincoln high school auditorium with performances beginning at 8 p.m. each evening.

"The Enchanted" is a story of a critical moment in the life of a young girl—the moment when she turns from girlhood to womanhood. In this moment, Isabel's belief in the life of the spirit is so strong that it is sufficient to evoke a real phantom, and even to threaten this world with a spiritual revolution.

But, where the inspector, who represents the powers of government and science, is powerless against Isabel, the ligible young Isabel, as for all young girls, the adventure of love proves more attractive.

Director of "The Enchanted", Roger Vaughan, speech director at Northland, has chosen the following Northland students to portray roles in the play:

Major, David Kinsman; Director, Doug Johnson; Supervisor, Curt Gigstad; Ghost, Mark Erickson; First Executioner, Phil Kotta; Second Executioner, Bob Bredeson; Adrian, Rick Battles; Isabel, Darlene Finstad; Amanda, Teri Fish; Lenoide, Nancy Olson; Daisy, Wanda Bedard; Lucy, Cindy Alby; Viola, Nancy Neibauer; Denise, Linda Skay; Irene, Peggy Hoack; and Gilberte, Mary Hendrickson. Stage manager for the play is Bob Bredeson.

Tickets for the play may be purchased at $1 for adults and 75 cents for students from cast members or at the door. All junior college students will be admitted by their activity tickets.

Flood Control Meet Thursday

A flood control meeting will be held in the meeting room of the Pennington county court house in Thief River Falls on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be designed to discuss the problems which county and city officials will face when the snow begins to melt on the rivers in the area begin to rise.

All county, city and township officials are urged to attend this meeting. Another main purpose of the meeting is to determine how to get stored grain out of the flood area should the need come this spring.

This meeting is one of several being held in the Red River Valley this year because of the amount of snowfall which has been received in some areas.

Safer Driving Course Will Be Offered Here

Defensive driving is the name of a special course to be offered on Monday and Tuesday, March 10, and 11, from 7 to 11 p.m. each evening in room 114 of Lincoln senior high school in Thief River Falls. Sponsored by the Pennington county safety council, the course is the same as one offered last fall and reportedly very well received.

The course is usually offered over a four-week period with two hours per session. Due to mileage involved for state highway personnel who will serve as instructors, the course is being condensed into two consecutive evenings of four hours each.

The course is designed to help the experienced and the new driver to recognize dangerous situations ahead of time and avoid becoming involved in a situation which could cause an accident. It is not designed to teach non-drivers how to drive. Texts, charts, chalk boards and numerous short films are used in teaching the course.

It is hoped by the Pennington county safety council to have qualified instructors available locally in the near future so that the course may be opened to the public at several times during the year. The course on March 10 and 11 is offered under the supervision of the Minnesota safety council.

Normal cost for the course is $4, but the two-day session will be given for a fee of $2. Attendance at the course is limited and people signing up for the course will be accepted on a first come, first served basis.

Brochures on the course are available at the Chamber of Commerce office where registration may also be accomplished during the day. Further information may be received by calling 681-3720 during office hours or 681-3879 or 681-3831 after 5:15 p.m.

Beiswengers Are County's Honored Farm Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Beiswenger of route 4, Thief River Falls, will be among 16 farm couples, one from each of the Red River Valley counties in Minnesota, to be honored at a banquet tomorrow night in conjunction with the Red River Valley winter shows and northwest farm and home week at Crookston.

The recognition banquet, honoring the selected 1969 Valley farmers and homemakers, will be the 31st annual banquet which has been sponsored by the Red River Valley development association for presentation of the Valley farmer and homemaker award. These "builders of the valley" will be honored for their stewardship of the land, contributions to citizenship and technical success in the business of agriculture.

Dr. LaVern A. Freeh, assistant director of the agricultural extension service, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, who has just recently returned from a trip to Europe, will be the speaker.

See Big Sign-up In ASCS Program

Traffic has been reported as "brisk" as the sign-up period for feed grain and wheat programs is underway at the Pennington county ASCS office, according to Wallace Sparby, office manager. Approximately 225 farmers have signed up for each program for the 1969 crop year, Sparby said, with about 630 eligible for the feed grain program and about 820 eligible for the wheat program in Pennington county.

Deadline for sign-up is March 21 and Sparby fears that too many farmers will delay until the last couple of days. So far Mondays have been the busiest, he said, and that's when lines have been the longest. With 80 per cent of the possible participants expected to sign up for the programs, the next three weeks promise to be busy. Farmers will save themselves a lot of time and worry by coming into the ASCS office well before the deadline.

Sparby said the anticipated 80 per cent sign-up is based on a 75 per cent sign-up a year ago and more features of advantage to farmers in the 1969 programs. He noted that diversion payment on idle acres not planted to wheat is in the program this year and that half of the diversion payment is available to the farmer at sign-up time.

"Producers participating in farm programs may choose from a wide range of options that will permit them to realize maximum program benefits," the office manager said.

Producers with a feed grain base may divert a minimum of 20 per cent of their base to qualify for program benefits, or may divert additional acres for payment. Price support will be earned on acreages of feed grain up to 50 per cent of the base.

Sparby explained that those who take part in the wheat program, after diverting to conserving use an acreage equal to 15 per cent of the farm allotment, may produce wheat on all their wheat allotment acres. Farmers who wish to produce less than their full allotment may sign up to earn diversion payments on the additional diverted acres. Domestic marketing certificates will then be earned on the acreage devoted to wheat up to 43 per cent of the allotment.

Producers participating in both the wheat and feed grain programs also have the option of substituting wheat for feed grain or feed grain for wheat in any combination within the total permitted acreage. Diversion payments will be based on the program crops underplanted.

Producers who participate in the feed grain or wheat programs will be eligible for price support loan on their entire production of the respective crops.

Board Rejects Last Proposal; To Confer Again

Rejection of the last request submitted by the teachers' negotiating council took place at a special meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening, according to Supt. Lloyd M. Johnson. The request deleted only income protection insurance and did not change the salary request.

Preparation was made of a school board statement in reply to an 11-point statement prepared and presented by the teachers' council. The board also officially received the teachers' council letter requesting the board to name a fact-finding panel member. No panel member has yet been selected.

Opening of bids on two new school buses was delayed until March 10. Announcement was also made that a workshop on adjustment panel proceedings is being sponsored by the Minnesota School Boards association Saturday in Minneapolis. C. L. Churlson, chief negotiator for the Thief River Falls district board's negotiating team, and Supt. L. M. Johnson are planning to attend, and may be joined by one or more school board members.

The Times was unaware of the special meeting on Monday evening and did not have a representative in attendance. Next negotiating session will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in the superintendent's office at Lincoln high school.

Following the last negotiating session, a school board's negotiating team news release stated that the teachers' council proposal "was not a 12-month proposal as requested by the board of education". Bill Blankenfeld, co-chairman of the teachers' council, informed the Times that the teachers have accepted a 12-month contract as non-negotiable, and the salary request is based on four-thirds of the nine-month contract as submitted by the board. "Our proposal is a 12-month proposal," Blankenfeld said.

WCTU Speaker Notes Parent's Responsibility

"Christ's Standard" was the theme of the WCTU meeting held Thursday afternoon at the Earle Ripley home. Mrs. Ripley was in charge of the devotions and based the meditation on I Corinthians 6:15-20. She stated that happiness will not be found in a home unless that home is founded on God's Standard. She emphasized that teaching children how to live is both a responsibility and a privilege. Parents not only hold the key to the soul but also stamps the coin of character. Therefore parents should take time to live their problems and thoughts. In concluding Mrs. Ripley also gave a brief resume of events in the life of Frances Willard, the founder of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Prayers by several members followed.

The Library Corner

by Flare Allison

Mention of a mystery yarn is sure to bring out a number of interested adults so we will start with one of those little confections. All mystery buffs will lose themselves in Rosemary Gotenby's clever whodunit, "Evil is as Evil Does." The Gatenby delivery is crisp, forceful, immediate and suspenseful, and that's saying enough about any book to induce you to read it.

"Chicago," an extraordinary guide, tells you where to go when you're in the Windy City. It is all about what to see, schedules, what it's going to cost you and exactly what to expect, various clubs you can visit, annual events to catch, sightseeing, oases for the intellectual, museums, theaters, shops (all kinds; and much more. If there's anything left out, it will be so insignificant that you'll never miss it.

Dean Brelis and Jill Kremnitz combine talents to tell the Viet nam story in the book, "The Face of Vietnam", and it's a face and story you won't soon forget. Brelis is a former Time-Life correspondent, and he brings to the account of Vietnam's agony a thoroughness in narration, sharp and clean, with all its political implications unmasked. But it is the pictures that will haunt you, the notable absence of smiles on most of the faces, the wistfulness on the face of the children, even in group pictures of everyday life. One is struck by the sadness, the agony of a people marking time until Peace, which seems So far away!

Agnes Sligh Turnbull's latest, "Many Green Isle", is reminiscent of "The Wedding Bargain" in style. The green isles referred to are the islands in time in the life of its middle-aged hero when he and his wife, after surviving family crisis that could have broken them spiritually, find a kind of peace they had hardly expected to know when the tragedies shattered them. The setting is a college town which boasts of no other particular distinction. Many of the characters are people that you might encounter on our own Main street.

In the display case in the vestibule is the work of the Martin Mosbecks of St. Hilaire. Mr. Mosbeck shows his highly interesting stone tabletops, made from slices of Pennington county rocks of which he has made exhaustive studies. We were much surprised personally at the variety and beauty of our native rocks represented in these table tops. Embedded in plastic, the rocks form tables which are conversation pieces and attract the eyes of practically every visitor to the library.

We thank the Mosbecks for these and other articles displayed, and invite others who have hobbies which might make interesting displays to talk it over with the librarian; we are always looking for materials that will attract public interest, and have been most fortunate in securing many lovely ones in the past, thanks to the interested patrons who seek to add something to the services we afford.

When Mrs. William Holmes and her children, together with a friend and her children, visited Alaska last summer, they brought back with them many interesting souvenirs of their trip. These are now on display in the main reading room of the library, and provide another arresting showing. Scrapbooks made by the children, a number map, a mockup of an Alaskan cache used by the Eskimos for food storage of the more primitive type, the pan used by a prospector in his search for gold and numerous other reminiscences of their trip fill out a lovely wall and table display. Be sure to stop by and see it if you haven't already done so.

Books for Teenagers

Every so often a request comes in from teenagers for a book on puppets, and we have a dandy called "Do - It - In - a - day - Puppets - for Beginners". Margaret Weeks Adair tells how to make puppets, create the scripts and perform the show, all in a single day. Three sample scripts are included, together with directions on lighting and music, voices and gestures, patterns, staging, materials and methods. You're onstage!

One of the problems you've inherited from us, we ashamedly admit, is that of pollution. Happily, you're trying to do something about it, judging by the number of request we have for material on it. George Stewart's "Not So Rich as You Think" discusses garbage, smog, junk and sewage: the price we pay for our affluence. Its a good, but unsavory and ill smelling survey of the mess.

"Of the waters they made a cesspool; of the air, a depository for poisons, and of the good earth itself, a dump where rats muzzled in piles of refuse," Stewart laments. Is this to be our epitaph? And we all share in the guilt—a gum wrapper, a soft-freeze cap, used oil dumped into a stream unthinkingly. . make up your own list. And then when you've read this book, read as a followup, "Our Polluted World; Can Man Survive?" by John Perry.

Books for Children

"Things we like to Do," by Evelyn Andre, is full of enchanting photos of children doing the things they love. The text is very simple, very sparing but the pictures speak volumes.

"Night Noises" by LaVerne Johnson is the story of little Billy who lies in his bed listening to the night sounds in the downstairs rooms and out doors. There's grandma rocking the furnace humming a tree branch squeaking against the window pane, a dog barking, a car across the street, and mother using the dial phone. . each sound means something to Billy who, before he knows it, is fast asleep. This is a story the kids will like, full of cute pastel drawings of Billy's world.

Juniors, what's keeping you from checking out more books from the library? The little guys are way ahead of you in library usage, and so are the adults. So where are YOU The library's full of wonderful surprises!

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—My husband, a World War II veteran, died in 1958. We did not have any children. My application for a widow's pension was denied at that time because I had only been married to my husband for three years. I am now unable to work because of a disability. Will this be a consideration if I should reapply for a pension?

A—In itself your disability would not be a consideration. However, a law passed in 1967 liberalized the five-year marriage requirement in effect at the time of your husband's death. Now a widow needs to have been married to the veteran only one year before his death to meet this pension eligibility requirement. For information and assistance in reapplying for a pension, contact your nearest VA regional office.

Q—I am receiving a pension for my nonservice-connected disabilities. When is the deadline for returning my income questionnaire from the Veterans administration?

A—The deadline is January 15, 1969.

Senior Citizens Tax Credit Is Signed Into Law

Rufus T. Logan, commissioner of taxation, announced today that a change in the law relative to the Senior Citizens income tax credit was passed by the legislature and signed by governor LeVander.

The change consists of four parts as follows:

1. The claim of homestead owners does not have to be reduced by the amount of the 35 per cent homestead property tax credit.

2. The maximum property taxes accrued or rent paid for occupancy only constituting property taxes accrued was increased from $300 to $600.

3. The property taxes accrued means the net property tax after deducting the 35 per cent homestead property tax credit (excluding special assessments, delinquent interest or charges for service).

4. If the dwelling is a part of a larger unit covered by a single tax statement, the taxes accrued for the larger unit up to 80 acres of land may be used instead of the 40 acres previously allowed.

These changes may affect a senior citizen's claim for the year 1968, especially a homestead owner. The change not only increase the amount of refund available to property owners as compared to last year but will also make a refund possible for more senior citizens.

The senior citizens income tax has already been printed based on the law prior to the previously mentioned change and distributed on all bulk orders. Senior citizens who filed last year will have the Schedule SC and instructions mailed to them during the week of February 23, 1969. In addition, there will be a letter explaining the changes along with a new partial form to be attached to the original SC Schedule.

Senior citizens who have already filed SHOULD NOT file a corrected return until contacted by the income tax division. All senior citizens who have not been contacted by the tax department, or receive a corrected refund by July 15, 1969, please write to the tax department with the following notation on the envelope:

"ATTENTION: SENIOR CITIZENS INCOME TAX CREDIT."

Klemisch Named Teacher of Year By Local MEA

college in mathematics, Klemisch teaches in that department at Knox.

A member of the executive board of the Thief River Falls MEA, Patrick is also a member of the state association, the local teachers' salary negotiating team and the Northern Division MEA salary committee. He has worked on evaluation of mathematics textbooks for the mathematics curriculum in the Thief River Falls district. Under the state department of education, he has served for two years on a subcommittee on revision of requirements for preparation of supervisors. The latter position is part of the advisory committee on teacher education in the state education department.

Community Service

Outside the school, Klemisch has participated extensively in several fields of community interest. He formed the Thief River Falls coin club and has served as its president for three years. He is a member of the Thief River Falls coaches' association and the local athletic boosters club.

He has served as grand knight of Our Lady of Lourdes council 4619 of the Knights of Columbus, held various other offices in the council and is currently membership chairman and on the KC's state committee for youth activity and family life. He and his family are members of St. Bernard's Catholic church where he has served three years on the board of the Confraternity of Christian doctrine.

Concerned about athletes attending Northland state junior college and the lack of athletic scholarships which area students could get at the local junior college, Klemisch organized several other interested people into the Northland Area Sports association (NASA) about a year ago. He set for himself and the organization a goal of $5,000 to be raised the first year and then he made personal contact upon personal contact until the $5,000 goal was surpassed. Contributions now stand at about $6,000 and the first scholarships to Northland athletes were given in the winter quarter.

Klemisch is also a member of the local Elks lodge, has been a member of the Knox PRA program committee for years and is past member and treasurer of the Valley City Jaycees.

Patrick and his wife, Retta, have a daughter, Lori, eight years old. Klemisch's hobbies include coaching football and track, coin collecting, hunting and trapshooting.

LOREN'S AUTO SALES
8th & Davis Phone 681-5842

During vacation months, it often seems as if there are only two types of Americans — those who travel from one motel to another and those who travel with trailers. Drivers fighting traffic on the highways during the summer months might feel the stay-at-homes are a disappearing breed.

There are an estimated 2.5 million recreational vehicles on the nation's highways now, and the market value is growing at a rate of $90 million a year. At this rate, retail sales of these vehicles, which include motor homes, campers, travel trailers and boat trailers, should reach $800 million by the end of 1969. This influx of towed vehicles is a matter of concern to safety officials, particularly since many drivers are relatively inexperienced in this type of driving.

For this reason, 31 states have already enacted laws requiring some type of trailer brakes, and the Federal government is investigating similar legislation.

But even these regulations have not eliminated all the problems. The most common type of brakes now used on recreational trailers still require a great deal of judgement on the part of the driver. For instance, they require special adjustments to apply different amounts of force while braking when the trailer is empty than when it is loaded. Thus a travel trailer owner should estimate the amount of food, water, bedding and other supplies in his trailer and adjust the brakes differently for long, heavily supplied trips, than for short, lightly provisioned trips.

Also available, and growing in popularity, are surge hydraulic brake systems, which are totally self-contained in the trailer and adjust themselves automatically to allow for increased weights and/or hard and soft speed stopping.

These systems work by utilizing the momentum of the trailer. As the driver applies his brakes, the forward motion of the trailer against the hitch automatically applies the brakes through a hydraulic master cylinder similar to the car's system.

Officials of Atwood Vacuum Machine Company, Rockford, Illinois, also point out that because the braking system is totally self-contained, with no direct connection into the car's system, the same trailer can be towed by any number of different vehicles, with no special brake wiring needed.

A patented system also makes it impossible to lock the brakes in a panic stop, thus preventing dangerous skids and jack-knifing, according to Atwood.

State Motorists Set New Record For Littering

Minnesota motorists scattered more litter along Minnesota highway rights of way in 1968 than ever before—1,040 truck loads more than in 1967, Frank W. Kuhfeld, Minnesota highway department maintenance standards engineer, disclosed today.

This increased the cost approximately $71,000 to $356,294 which was about a 25 per cent increase over 1967's record cost of $284,718 for collecting litter, garbage, bottles and trash along our highways.

The litter included candy wrappers, beer bottles and cans, old furniture and mattresses and debris from building renovating.

It took 74,969 man hours to collect the junk and trash, and the litter filled 7,752 five-cubic-yard trucks and represents 33,063 truck hours to haul the debris away.

In computing the cost, it was found that the man hours to collect a truck load coupled with the cost of the equipment to haul the rubbish away approximated a cost of $39.83 per truck load.

"This," said Kuhfeld, "represents the cost of construction of three and one half miles of rural trunk highway which could have been built if the motorist would carry a litter bag and empty it in the proper receptacle or bait dumping trash along highways."

A state law carries a fine of up to $100 for a motorist found throwing an article from a motor vehicle or dumping trash along a trunk highway right of way.

Wild Mushrooms Are Extension Bulletin Topic

A new publication of the University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service, "Edible Wild Mushrooms," extension bulletin 357, will prove to be a good guide to the mushroom hunter next summer and in the meantime give him an opportunity to learn to identify certain varieties. It is written by Clyde Christensen, professor of plant pathology at the university, a authority on mushrooms and author of the book "Common Edible Mushrooms."

A dozen color prints in the bulletin will help the reader identify the different kinds of mushrooms described. All the varieties pictured are found in Minnesota.

In addition to these, there are several thousand kinds or species of wild mushrooms. Some are extremely poisonous, the majority are unattractive for eating because of poor flavor, texture or small size, and a few are not only edible, but delicious. Fortunately, some of the wild mushrooms that are easiest to identify are also among the choicest for eating," Christensen says.

Although there are some folk rules that claim to distinguish edible from poisonous mushrooms, there is no actual test, other than eating, to determine whether an unknown mushroom is edible, Christensen explains.

Poisonous mushrooms are known to be poisonous because someone ate them and became ill or died. Edible mushrooms are known to be edible because people have eaten them regularly and in quantity with no ill effects. Therefore, he points out, anyone who gathers wild mushrooms for eating must be absolutely certain of the identity of every single specimen he picks.

Among the most delicious of the edible wild mushrooms, the university plant pathologist describes the many kinds of puffballs, most of which come up in late summer and fall. These include the pear-shaped puffball which grows in clumps on decaying hardwood logs and stumps, and the giant puffball which may attain a diameter of more than a foot and a weight of more than 25 pounds. He cautions, however, against confusing false puffballs with the true varieties. The false puffball comes up commonly under oak trees in lawns and yards as well as in the woods and is somewhat poisonous.

Minnesota residents may obtain single copies of "Edible Wild Mushrooms," bulletin 357, free of charge from Bulletin Room, Institute of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Minn. 55101, but the charge to out-of-state residents is 15 cents. Additional copies are 15 cents each.

71,000 in State Receive USDA Food Assistance

Nearly 71,000 low-income persons in Minnesota received food assistance from the U.S. Department of Agriculture during December, according to Dennis M. Doyle, midwest district director of consumer food programs.

The total included 15,843 in 21 commodity distribution program projects and 55,003 in 48 food stamp program areas.

In 11-Midwest states, about 1,127,000 persons received USDA food assistance. Around 427,000 were in 381 commodity programs and 700,000 in 409 food stamp projects.

The commodity program provides some 22 USDA donated foods to supplement the diets of needy people. The foods are shipped to the Minnesota department of education which, in turn, handles the storage and transportation to local distribution centers and public assistance agencies.

The food stamp program enables low-income families to buy more food by exchanging the amount of money they normally spend on food for coupons worth more than they paid. The food coupons are spent like cash at authorized retail food outlets for any domestic foods. Minnesota recipients bought around $806,000 in coupons during December and were given nearly $383,000 in bonus coupons. The average bonus per person was $6.05.

Economist Says Low Heat Is The Word for Eggs

When you cook or fry eggs, does the white get tough and leathery? Do you have trouble peeling hard - cooked eggs and do the yolks of those eggs turn green?

Toughness of the white is probably due to high temperature cooking. A properly cooked egg has a tender white and a smooth yolk. If cooking temperature is too high or the egg is cooked too long, the protein shrinks and makes the white tough and the yolk mealy. Key to proper egg cookery, according to Verna Mikesh, nutritionist at the University of Minnesota, is to use low to moderate heat and never overcook.

The rule to low temperature cooking also applies to any mixture with a large proportion of egg, such as omelets, souffles, custards and Hollandaise sauce. Hollandaise sauce and custards will curdle if cooked at too high a temperature or for too long a time.

High temperature, too, can cause the gray to green color on the outside of the yolk of hard-cooked eggs. Intense, prolonged heat brings about the combination of iron and sulphur within the egg, forming ferrous sulphide which produces the greenish discoloration.

To avoid the gray or green ring, Miss Mikesh recommends covering eggs completely with cold water and simmering them for 25 to 30 minutes. Cook quickly in cold water. For ease in shelling, crack the eggs, roll them between your hands and begin peeling from the large end.

But if part of the white comes off with the shell when you peel hard-cooked eggs, don't complain. Robert Berg, extension poultry specialist at the University of Minnesota, points out that eggs that won't peel easily when hard cooked are likely to be fresh and of very high quality. The older the egg is, the easier it will be to peel when it's hard cooked. His suggestion is to keep eggs out of the refrigerator about four hours before cooking and they should peel easily.

Taxpayers Make Mistakes on Tax Surcharge

Many Minnesota taxpayers are making mistakes in computing the new tax surcharge on their 1968 federal income tax returns, according to George Lethert, district director of Internal revenue.

Some taxpayers are forgetting to add the surcharge to their regular tax while others are figuring it incorrectly, Lethert said. If the taxpayer is expecting a refund, it will be delayed until the mistake is corrected.

To avoid mistakes and refund delays, Lethert suggested that taxpayers read the instructions that come with the tax forms.

The tax surcharge on 1968 income amounts to 7½ per cent of the taxpayer's regular tax. For example, if a person's tax was $1,000 before the surcharge, it would be $1,075 with the surcharge taken into account.

Although the surcharge is generally described as a 10 per cent tax, it did not become effective until April 1, 1968, Lethert said. To simplify calculations for taxpayers, Congress specified that taxpayers pay 7½ per cent of the tax on all of their 1968 income rather than 10 per cent of the tax on income earned after April 1, 1968.

Farmers Union Proposes Change In Ag Programs

Minnesota Farmers Union state board of directors has transmitted several recommendations to Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin on decisions he will be considering in the near future.

The recommendations made to Secretary Hardin included the following:

An increase in the support level on milk for manufacturing purposes to 90 per cent of parity or about $4.60 per hundred pounds; The present support level is $4.28.

An increase in the support level on 1969-crop soybeans to $2.60 per bushel, with cross-compliance in feed grains and wheat programs, and the reflection of the intended support level through use of direct payments to producers as needed to make soybeans competitive in foreign markets.

A shortening of the period during which grazing on 1969 diverted acres is prohibited. The grazing on such land now is not permitted from April 1 to September 1. Farmers union proposed that the April 1 date be delayed to May 1 in order that farmers could graze some land which it was not possible to harvest last fall because of excessive rainfall.

Shortage of Health Manpower Reviewed By State Committee

Critical shortage of health manpower throughout rural Minnesota is reflected emphatically in correspondence flowing into the headquarters of the Minnesota committee for University health sciences from all sections of the state.

"We are deeply heartened by the response we are receiving to our bid for individual and statewide effort to upgrade the health care available to Minnesotans," commented Gerald T. Mullin, chairman of the committee, after reading a stack of letters from concerned citizens.

Former Senator Mullin quoted from a few of the letters to illustrate the awakening awareness of the health manpower crisis in the state:

". . locally we have a community - owned medical center with no medical doctor, and the dentist coming back two days a week. Both had a very good practice while here. I also know the other health sciences are in similar situations in many places.

"In the rural areas we are getting very impatient and want to get something like this going as rapidly as possible."

"I realize the urgency of a program as we here in . . certainly have experienced the need of more medical services. I will do the best I can for your program."

"I commend you for your efforts in providing the kind of resources which our people so desperately need. And I am excited about the possibilities of your program. I will try to assist you in every way I can toward the accomplishing of your goals."

"The need is urgent, long overdue. This is a step in the right direction."

"I realize how important this organization could be as our neighboring town is in dire need of a doctor. We are among the more fortunate with two good doctors in our town."

"I have been much concerned by the needs for medics, especially in the rural areas of Minnesota, for the last several years as this town has endeavored to get a resident doctor for the past eight years after having lost two doctors which we previously had. We have found that doctors in general are more and more turning to specializing to be relieved of the work load encountered in general practice. The situation is critical in a number of areas of the state. . .I will be happy to serve in any manner possible."

"I realize the shortage of manpower in the health sciences field and I will be glad to participate in a program that aims to improve the situation."

". . for it is common knowledge that the need is very great. The scarcity of qualified men and women in this fields is frightening."

". . as chairman of the board of . . and . . I am very much aware of the health manpower [illegible] health centers."

"I honestly feel that we'll save dollars in having a health sciences center which can turn out men of medical knowledge to prevent a crisis in health care needs of our state."

The Minnesota committee for university health sciences was formed recently by a group of prominent Minnesotans to focus public attention on the impending crisis which the state faces in the health services available to its people and to support the University of Minnesota's program for the development of its health sciences center.

Goals of the university health sciences center expansion plan include an increase in enrollment in health fields from the present 3,500 to more than 5,200 by 1973, an output of 200 new doctors each year instead of the present 160, upping of the school of dentistry graduating class from 115 to 150, corresponding increases in the training of practitioners in the related health fields—such as nursing, pharmacy, and medical technology—development of a "team approach" to medical problems involving all the health sciences, and advancement of the center's division of family practice and community health. A request for funds to make the health sciences center's program possible is now before the state legislature.

Noise Contributes To Human Problems

Have you had that "noiseated" feeling lately.

Do you feel headachy, irritable, frustrated, and just not able to get your work done as well as you would like? Then listen around you. It could just be the fault of that power mower, jackhammer, booming rock music raucous radio or screeching plane overhead.

Medical investigators have shown that excessive noise can interfere with digestion, break up sleep, induce fatigue and add to nervous strain.

According to the U.S. public health service, noise may adversely affect as many as 16 million U. S. workers. But most Americans are unaware that noises at home can be just as harmful. Measuring home noises, Dr. Lee E. Farr of the University of Texas found the kitchen to be the loudest room of all.

"The sound is at such a level of intensity," Dr. Farr reported, "that if one were exposed to it for a full working day over an interval of time, acoustic damage would result."

Noise, defined as an unwanted sound that irritates, is measured in decibels, units that describe levels of acoustic pressure, power and intensity. About 35 decibels (db) is acceptable for a classroom; 60 for a sports arena; 90 can be tolerated only for short periods; 100 can cause physical discomfort.

A power mower alone has 107 db; a kitchen blender, 93. In a "quiet" suburban home, a blender, an automatic diswaher (60-70 db), garbage disposal unit (70 db) and refrigerator (30-40 db)—as well as a radio, air conditioner and washing machine—may be "sounding off" all at once. While some sounds drown out others, the typical result is an average decibel level of 80, much higher than that of a sports arena and equivalent to that of a big-city street corner.

Noise can cause more than headaches. In severe cases there may be damage to hearing when intense and prolonged sound waves destroy cells in the ear. At the recent national conference on "Noise as a Health Hazard," U. S. Surgeon General William H. Stewart observed:

"Aside from hearing loss, it has been demonstrated that noise can cause physiological changes. These include cardiovascular, glandular and respiratory effects reflective of a generalized stress reaction."

Other physicians believe there is a direct link between noise and such stress diseases as peptic ulcer heart disease, colitis and hypertension.

To help quiet down the cacophonous world, Congress is pondering bills to control aircraft decibels and various noises in industry. California has led the way in limiting motor vehicle noise, and New Jersey may pass similar legislation. But these are drops in the noise bucket.

What can you do about offsetting or preventing the decibel bombardment? Dr. John D. Dougherty of the Harvard school of public health, suggests that we think about the noise level of any appliance we might buy for our home, and cut down the time we spend in any noisy environment. One noise researcher also recommends that we wear ear plugs when using a power mower or an outboard.

To achieve a heavenly hush in your home, acoustical engineers quietly offer these practical hints:

1. Be sure your home has sufficient carpeting. Carpeting can absorb more than half of your internal and airborne noise. Upholstered furniture likewise soaks up sound.

2. Curtains or draperies can be helpful in preventing hard wall surfaces or a large expanse of glass (such as a picture window) from reflecting noise.

3. Acoustical ceilings in the kitchen and playroom may absorb up to 75 per cent of excess noise energy.

4. Air conditioners, which keep out much outdoor noise, should have proper vibration mounts to prevent rattling.

5. If a dishwasher or washing machine is causing sound pollution, mount it on a felt, cork or rubber mat, to absorb vibration. Make sure the appliance is level on the floor.

Detroit Lakes Hosts American Snowmobile Ass'n. National Championship Races, 1969

Detroit Lakes was the scene of the American Snowmobile association national championship races for 1969-A sanctioned race. Oval racing took place at Becker county fairgrounds one-half mile course where Don Rooney of Park Rapids took first place honors in the "A" modified and the Class A stock oval races. He rode Ski-Doos.

The cross country race took place at Lake Detroit where Duane Opdahl raced to first place in 55 minutes over the 28-mile plus course. Duane is from Beltrami and drove an Arctic Cat. John Bosek of Alexandria took two first place honors and one 4th place win riding Ski-Doos in the "B" stock oval and "B" stock in the cross country races.

ASA Championship Trophy Awarded

John Bosek won the ASA trophy for his championship races during the ASA national championship races for 1969. The trophy was presented by Dean Hanson, president of the Sno-Fari club at Erie 34 club, Detroit Lakes, during the victory banquet on Saturday evening. Sno-Fari Queen was Denise Ulrich of Detroit Lakes. A snowmobile parade was held Saturday morning.

Press Race Event

Rocky Teller and wife Rosemary attended the snowmobile races, coming from Duluth, where Rocky is with WDSM television and radio. They also own a sporting goods store. Rocky came in fourth during the oval press race. Third place was won by Andy Lia of KTRF Thief River Falls. Donald Anderson of Detroit Lakes come in second representing Stu & Dee Mann's Minnesota Outdoors columns, and first Place was won by Bob Fairbanks, formerly of Detroit Lakes, now with Snow Madness magazine at Kalispell, Mont.

The first press race originated at Spicer, started by Cliff Oliver of Chicago American newspapers, and Marc Cox of Sioux City Iowa, Journal. This promises to become an annual event at most snowmobile races for the outdoor writers and broadcasters.

Powder Puff Race

Arlene Bosek of Alexandria, wife of the ASA champion and big winner of the national races, also made headlines for herself as she placed first in the powder puff race. Arlene is the young mother of six youngsters and also a registered hospital technician employed at Alexandria hospital. She finds time to assist John tearing down engines and to jaunt around the country in snowmobile races. . and lovin' every minute of it.

Polaris Racing Thrill Team

The Polaris racing thrill team from Roseau entertained the 5,000 or more spectators following the oval events, which had taken place without accident or delays. Spectators roared with relief as the Thrill team bounced through fire and raced over the ramp and six cars, to safety. This is without a doubt, unexcelled anywhere. It is frightfully exciting.

Plummer Defeated 82-63

Oslo Nips Goodridge In Sub-District Action

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Goodridge tried for one of the big upsets in sub-district 31 play on Tuesday night, but the Huskies missed clutch free throws in the final two minutes of play and then were forced into overtime where the Oslo Bobcats were able to score a 61-60 win. The game was in semi-final action of the Sub-district 31 tournament being held at East Grand Forks. In other semi-final action Tuesday night, Fisher toppled Alvarado 79-69.

Both Goodridge and Alvarado gained the semi-finals on Monday night as the Goodridge club stopped Red Lake Falls in the final minute of play 66-62, while Alvarado trounced Plummer by an 82-63 score. Oslo and Fisher drew opening round byes.

The finals on Thursday night will pit Oslo against Fisher at 8:30 p.m., while Goodridge and Alvarado will battle for the third spot in District 31 play at 7 p.m. Oslo and Fisher are assured of spots in the District 31 tournament, while the third team will be either Goodridge or Alvarado. Only the first three clubs advance into District play which begins on Monday at the University of North Dakota field house.

In Tuesday night's contest the Huskies jumped to a 9-3 lead as Bryan Wiseth tallied six points, only to see Oslo come back and knot the score at 13-13. Wiseth and Gary Anderson then combined for four baskets as the Huskies took a 19-15 lead at the end of the period.

The second period found the Huskies moving out in front 25-19, but with a minute left in the period the Bobcats tied the score at 27-27 before Roger Blaine scored, giving the Huskies a 29-27 lead at the end of the first half.

The end of the third period found the score knotted at 40-40. The final period found the Huskies going out in front by a 51-42 score but a rally by the Bobcats brought them within one point with 1:08 left in the game as they closed the gap to 53-52. With 13 seconds left in the game, Gary Kiesow, Goodridge, fouled Bob Hoverson, Oslo, who sank the first shot and missed the second, tieing the score at 53-53 with 11 seconds left. Oslo had a chance to win the contest as Hoverson was fouled with two seconds left but missed the shot, sending the game into overtime.

The overtime period found the Huskies once again increasing the lead to 56-53 before Oslo came back and tied the score at 56-56. With 1:30 left in the overtime, Oslo took he lead for the first time in the game as a layup by Dennis Wisk put them in front by a 58-56 score. Hoverson added two free throws making it 60-56, before Holte scored, cutting the lead to 60-58. Four more free throws by Bob Johnson and Ralph Johnson put the game out of reach of the Huskies and sent the Bobcats into the final of the sub-district tournament on Thursday evening.

Each team had three players in double figures for the contest with Ralph Johnson taking scoring honors with 17 points, while Bob Johnson added 16 points and Wisk was the other Bobcat in double figures with 12. Pacing Goodridge was Wiseth with 12 points, 10 coming in the opening period. Ray Moisbeorger and Blaine each tallied 11 points in the loss.

Goodridge-Red Lake Falls

Goodridge had little trouble in posting two regular season wins over the Red Lake Falls Eagles, but on Monday in the opening game of the sub-district 31 tournament being played at East Grand Forks, the Huskies had to withstand rally after rally by the Eagles in order to advance to the semi-finals of the tournament on Tuesday. The Huskies posted a 66-62 win over the Eagles in order to move into the semi-finals against Oslo on Tuesday.

The Huskies, who supported the best season record in the district at 15-3, found that their rebounding (or lack of it) played a big factor in Red Lake Falls rallies. The Eagles out-rebounded the Huskies on both the offensive and defensive boards.

Goodridge jumped to an 11-4 lead, fell behind 12-11 late in the opening period, but took an 18-14 lead at the end of the period.

Huskies continued to lead the Eagles as Roger Blaine scored eight points to pace Goodridge to a 36-30 half-time lead. In the third period the Eagles came storming back and knotted the score at the buzzer as Gary Kiesow, Goodridge, fouled Arne Kiefenheim who tallied the two gift shots and knoted the score at 49 all.

The final period found the Huskies going ahead to stay at 5:57 as Blaine sank two free throws, giving the Huskies a 55-53 lead. A lay-up by Ray Moisbeorger upped that lead to 57-53 while two free throws by Steve Holte and a basket by Bryan Wiseth gave the Huskies a 61-53 lead.

The Eagles weren't through yet, as they came back with a full court press against the Huskies and closed the gap to 64-62 with 30 seconds left. Ben Szymanski, with ten seconds left in the contest, was fouled by Ron Kennedy. The tall center for the Huskies sank both charity tosses in the one-and-one situation which gave the Huskies the 66-62 win.

Blaine took scoring honors for the contest with 23 points, while Kennedy was high for the Eagles with 19 points. Others in double figures for the Huskies were Moisbeorger and Kiesow with 12-10 points respectively, while Kiefenheim tallied 16 in the losing cause for the Eagles.

Led by the scoring of 6-4 center Dan Dahlstrom, the Alvarado Indians had little trouble in gaining the semi-finals of sub-district 31 play as they stopped Plummer 82-63.

Dahlstrom led four Alvarado players in double figures for the game as the Indians moved into the semi-finals against Fisher on Tuesday night. Dahlstrom tallied 23 points, sharing scoring honors for the game with Plummer's Ray Martell.

Other Indians in double figures were Rykk Nicholls, 17; Chuck Pribula, 12; and Calvin Kollin, 10. Doug Martell added 20 points for the losing Cardinals.

Plummer made a game of the contest for the first period as they trailed by an 18-12 score, but at one time during the opening period were tied with the Indians at 6-6. Fouls hurt the Cardinals as they were called for 31 violations and the Indians tallied 30 of 47 from the free throw line.

Plummer led in field goals by a 30-26 margin but lost the game at the free throw line where the Indians held a 30-3 margin.

The Indians opened the contest up in the second period as they held a 46-22 lead at half time. At the end of the third period the lead was cut to 60-43 in favor of the Indians.

The final period found Alvarado's coach Ken Nessa pulling his five starters with over four minutes to go, but the Cardinals scored 10 points to narrow the Indians gap to 72-57. Nessa then put the starters back in and they played until the final minute.

Gaining the championships in their weight classes were Don Sollom, 152 pounds; Les Olson, 160 pounds; and Lynn Marek, 191 pounds. Sollom and Olson decisioned their men in the final round and Marek, who normally wrestles at 177 pounds but moved up to 191 for the tournament, pinned his man in 4:22.

Northland tied for third in the meet with Brainerd as each team scored 49 points. Taking first and second places were Itasca state junior college and Fergus Falls state junior college with 72 and 51 points respectively. Placing fourth, fifth and sixth were Crookston Technical institute with 47 points; Hibbing state junior college with 43 points; and Rainy River state junior college with no points.

Individual winners and their respective schools were: 115 pounds, Roger Belters, Hibbing; 123 pounds, Greg Froslee, Fergus Falls; 130 pounds Jim Fideldy, Itasca; 137 pounds, Gary Baker, Itasca; 145 pounds, Santi Koehler, Hibbing; 152 pounds, Don Sollom, Northland; 160 pounds, Les Olson, Northland; 167 pounds, Jim LeClair, Minnesota Tech; 177 pounds, Harold Lueck, Minnesota Tech; 191 pounds, Lynn Marek, Northland; and heavyweight, both men declared winners, Larry Majewski of Hibbing and Len O'Brien of Itasca.

In case of a tie between wrestlers, three judges are on hand at college wrestling tournaments to declare a winner. In the case of the heavyweight match at Grand Rapids, one judge selected Majewski the winner, another selected O'Brien and the third called the match a draw, and therefore, both grapplers were called winners.

Northland will be sending five men to the national junior college wrestling tournament at Worthington, according to coach John Steidl. Competing for the Northmen in the contest which starts tomorrow and lasts through Saturday are Bruce Nordhagen in the 137 pound class, Dave Rodahl at 145 pounds; Don Sollom at 152 pounds, Les Olson at 160 pounds and Lynn Marek at 191 pounds. Rodahl and Nordhagen placed third in their weight classes at the regional meet.

Prowlers Open District Tourney Play on Mon.

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Opening round of the District 31 basketball tournament is scheduled to begin on Monday at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse beginning at 2 p.m. There will be four games played on Monday with semi-finals scheduled for Tuesday night, and consolation and championship rounds will be held Wednesday evening.

Pairings for the tournament have been announced by the three sub-district teams are yet to be decided. Four teams are vying for those positions with Oslo, Alvarado, Fisher and Goodridge all having a chance to make the district tournament.

First round pairings find Crookston meeting Climax at 2 p.m. in the day's opener, while Thief River Falls meets the third place team from the sub-district at 3:30 p.m. These four teams will make up the lower bracket. In the upper bracket, with games starting at 7 p.m., defending District 31 champion East Grand Forks will meet the sub-district champion, while at 8:30 p.m., the final game of the day, Warren will meet the sub-district runner-up.

Records show that Thief River Falls has won 22 district titles since 1925, while East Grand Forks and Crookston are next with seven district titles. Warren is next with six, while Climax has won the tournament once. Only one sub-district school has won the District 31 crown, that being Goodridge in 1965.

Bringing the best record into the district tournament, not counting those of sub-district play, is Warren, supporting a 13-1 record but finishing second in the District 31 standings with a 6-2 record. Second to Warren is Thief River Falls with a 10-8 mark, but first in the district standings with a 7-1 record. East Grand Forks is third with a 9-9 mark, while Crookston has a 5-13 record and Climax is last with a 2-16 record.

The lower bracket would have to be the easy bracket with Thief River Falls the favorite to come out of the bracket and into the championship game, while the other bracket is the toughest as anyone can knock anyone off.

Last year Thief River Falls was the favorite to capture the district crown, but after dumping Goodridge in the opening round, was beaten by Climax in the semi-finals. No one knows what is going to happen at tournament time. Climax then fell to East Grand Forks in the championship game.

In Monday's game the Prowlers will more than likely go with the same starting five that toppled East Grand Forks in their last game of the regular season last Thursday. That five included Dave Kildahl and Steve Edlund at the forwards, Sheldon Joppru at center and Kip Poppenhagen and Tony Johnson at the guards. Poppenhagen is the lone junior on the starting five. Others that could start are Don Balmer, junior forward, and Dan Brodin, senior guard. Rounding out the Prowler tournament team are Darroll Rodahl, junior guard; Mike Hammerlinck, sophomore forward-center; Dale Hanson, sophomore forward; Tim Olson, sophomore guard; and Steve Hess, senior guard.

Olson and Hammerlinck each started one game for the Prowlers this season, while Rodahl is the only other member of the tournament squad besides them that has seen any game action this year.

Leading the Prowlers into the District 31 tournament will be Joppru, who is the team's leading scorer with a 21.3 average in 18 contests. The 6-1 center has also pulled down a total of 281 rebounds. He leads the team in field goals with 116 while pacing the team from the free throw line with 93 gift shots.

Edlund is the teams' second leading scorer and rebounder with a 10.2 average and grabbing a total of 145 rebounds. He also leads in assists with 26. Brodin and Balmer are tied for third leading scorer on the squad as they each have an 8.7 average. Balmer had 110 rebounds and Brodin a total of 69.

Kildahl who was named player of the week along with Dale Hanson for the past two weeks, has a 4.5 average, while Johnson is averaging 6.6 points per contest. Poppenhagen is averaging close to three points per game.

Northland state junior college matmen were downed twice in their last two home matches of the season this past week. They were dropped 28-8 by Itasca state junior college of Grand Rapids on Wednesday, and by the U.N.D. Freshmen on Friday afternoon by a score of 22-6.

Dave Rodahl, 145 pounds, and Don Sollom, 152-pounds, were the only Northmen to "hold their own" in both meets. Rodahl decisioned Mel Baker of Itasca by a score of 4-2 on Wednesday and Terry Jacobson of U.N.D. by a score of 7-1 on Friday.

Sollom also marked up two decisions by over-powering Willie Huot of Itasca, 14-1, and Dave Hinricks of the University of North Dakota Frosh, 7-5.

Only other Northman to gain points in the two meets was Les Olson at 160 pounds. Olson's match with Tom DeMurais of Itasca was called a draw with each man scoring one escape, and no time advantage.

Northland defeated the U.N.D. Freshmen in their first meet with the Frosh in a loop match. The Northmen beat the Frosh by a score of 19-11.

Oslo Captures Polar League; Huskies Second

Oslo captured its fourth straight Polar conference basketball crown this year as the Bobcats posted a 9-1 record. There was a three-way tie for second place between Goodridge Alvarado and Fisher, as all finished with 6-4 records. Red Lake Falls was next with a 2-8 record while Plummer finished last with a 1-9 record.

The only loss for Oslo in conference action came on February 14 when the Bobcats fell to Alvarado. This was the first loss to a Polar conference team since Fisher defeated the Bobcats in the opening game of the 1966 season. Prior to the loss to Alvarado, Oslo ran up a 29-game winning string in league action. It also marked the first time that Alvarado defeated the Bobcats since the sub-district tournament in 1964.

Final standings in the Polar conference are as follows.

Oslo	9	1	.900

Fisher	6	4	.600
Goodridge	6	4	.600*

Boat Fatalities Highest Among Adults Over 30

Figures just compiled show that adults over age 30 comprised the largest number of boating fatalities in Minnesota during 1968, according to Robert Rygg, assistant commissioner, Minnesota conservation department.

Rygg, who heads up the conservation department's several bureaus, including boat and water safety, said that the year end fatality reports showed that the average age of last year's boating fatality was 30.7. This is in contrast with the average age of swimming fatalities which figures out to 17.7 years.

"It is apparent that violations of safe boating practices are not limited to the younger age groups," Rygg said.

The lower age for swimming victims can be expected, he said, since this is a vigorous sport participated in by greater numbers of young persons than adults. Young people are also more apt to overestimate their ability and take chances.

The average age for these victims is also lowered by the many deaths of little one to three year old children who wander away and fall off docks or into deep water near shore. These deaths of unsupervised tots are the most tragic of all, Rygg said.

The number of persons who died in boating accidents during 1968 in Minnesota was 42, compared with 56 in 1967.

"We would like to consider this improvement, the lowest total since 19[illegible], the result of an accelerated safety education program," Rygg said, "but we feel that unpleasant weather through much of the boating season, especially on week-ends, held the number of boaters down and had some effect on the decrease."

He pointed to the continued high rate of boating fatalities due to "gross carelessness."

The 42 fatalities in 1968 occurred in 38 accidents, four below the number of fatal mishaps in 1967. Fifty-seven people survived last year's accidents.

By activity, 17 of last year's victims were boating; 11 fishing and the remainder were engaged in other activity (swimming off boat, working, duck hunting).

Nineteen of the fatalities involved outboards or inboards, six were in row boats; four in canoes and the remainder in miscellaneous craft.

In addition to the fatal boat accidents, Rygg said county sheriffs reported 104 other accidents in which 78 persons were injured and property damage was estimated in excess of $95,000.

Youths 12-16 Need Certificate To Hunt Game

Minnesota conservation department today urged boys and girls from 11 to 16 years of age to register soon for firearms training classes if they intend to hunt next fall.

Bill Severson, firearms safety coordinator, pointed out that state law requires everyone 12-16 years of age to have a firearm safety certificate in order to hunt various species of game.

"The 11 year olds will be 12 years of age this fall," he said, "so they will have to complete their training and have their certificate if they are going to hunt."

Youngsters who wait until next fall to register for a training course may find the classes are full and be unable to complete their training before the hunting season starts.

"That is why we are urging them to sign up for a class now," Severson said.

Those interested in taking a course in firearm training and who do not know how to get enrolled may contact any Minnesota conservation officer.

Seuverson said 32,606 young persons were trained in the safe handling of firearms during 1968—the highest number recorded since the program began.

What can you lift?

God has a way of teaching spiritual truths through physical facts.

Tom used to have trouble lifting his mother's shopping bag — not any more!

That smile on his face isn't triumph—it's confidence. Given a few weeks, Tom will be lifting even heavier weights.

The first time you try to lift someone's burden, it's an awkward effort. Until you discover that physical development and spiritual growth work the same way.

Only practice makes one a friend, a helper, a partner to others in their troubles . . . and, incidentally, better able to bear your own.

Every Sunday that open church-door is an invitation to you to discover what needs to be lifted . . . and how best to begin.

FIRST PLACE AWARD WINNER AMONG MINNESOTA NEWSPAPERS FOR FARM NEWS COVERAGE IN 1962 AND 1965:

Factual News Reporting — Effective Advertising

Editorials . . .

"Failure is the foundation of success, and the means by which it is achieved. Success is the lurking-place of failure; but who can tell when the turning point will come?" —Lao-tse

A Real Honor

When Art Heinze was named one of Minnesota's 10 outstanding young men Saturday at the state Jaycee TOYM banquet, he was the recipient of a real honor. The award is given in recognition of exceptional achievements of contribution in his chosen field, organization, community, state and nation.

To be singled out to represent a community in such competition is an honor in itself, but to be named equally among the top 10 recipients in the entire state is recognition not soon to be forgotten. Art was nominated for the award by the Thief River Falls Jaycees after winning the local chapter's distinguished service award last year.

Art has turned a handicap into an advantage, and a misfortune has thus altered the course of his life into the channel of real service. Some of his accomplishments are told in a story elsewhere in today's issue of the Times. The nomination submitted by the local Jaycees tells a little more of Heinze's unique qualities. It states:

"The capability of Art Heinze has been demonstrated by the positions with which he has been entrusted by his profession and organizations. He has demonstrated incessantly an attention to responsibility which can be cultivated in only a very few. He strives for perfection in all that he does, but does not become discouraged if conditions beyond his control prevent him from attaining it. He is patient with others but demanding of himself. He undertakes every task with full confidence in his ability to complete it—and he invariably does so in outstanding fashion. He is an innovator, but equally as good a follower as he is a leader. His spirit of cooperation is an inspiration to others."

We congratulate you, Art, for attaining the recognition which you so honestly deserve, and know you will go on to greater service in coming years.

State Reorganization

George Thiss, state Republican chairman, really attempts to be a big help to newspaper editors. Rarely does a week go by when George does not send out a "suggested editorial" which extols the virtue of some portion of Republican administration.

Most recently, the "suggested editorial" deals with Gov. LeVander's recommendations for state government reorganization.

"Willingness to accept responsibility, often in the face of public and private criticism, is the mark of a good executive," Thiss writes. "In public life, too frequently officials are prone to pass the buck by claiming they have no voice in matters in which the public is deeply involved."

Then he adds: "Minnesota's archaic form of executive organization, now 30 years old, is a good example of a situation which needs modernizing and reorganization to place responsibility where it belongs—upon the governor instead of heads of departments and commissions who are not elected by the people."

The governor proposes to appoint department personnel himself, and have them responsible directly to him. His logic, as expressed by Thiss, is that the governor is elected by the people of the state and the people should be able to turn to him when a given department of state government needs attention — "not to a department head or commissioner they didn't elect in the first place."

Now, appointment by the governor implies control by the governor, and control of departments implies great political power. If the governor, and the state party chairman, are concerned about department commissioners not being responsive to the people, why not propose that they be elected by the people? Any dictator has appointive powers, and it doesn't necessarily make for better government.

Interesting Opinions . . .

The values of America, said Gabriel, were belief in God, belief in the special role of this country and belief in individualism. Now we are told that individualism has been thwarted, that God is dead and that this country had better forget its messianic complex. What shall we cede? What shall we fight to retain? These are the answers desperately sought because in time of fantastic change certain stabilizers are desperately required."

—Dr. Clarence C. Walton

Juggling Figures

Evidently somebody with at least a little money is unhappy about the proposal to eliminate minimum prices on alcoholic beverages in Minnesota. We recently received in the mail a large printed sheet proclaiming that minimum price elimination may cost Minnesota $10 million in tax revenue.

There is no type of disclaimer on the sheet, nothing to indicate who or what is making the statements contained thereon. Obviously, however, it must have been prepared by someone who has something to gain by retaining minimum pricing.

How would the state lose $10 million in tax revenue? The sheet says: "During the coming fiscal year the alcoholic beverage industry will pay into the sales tax fund of the state of Minnesota approximately $28,000,000—that's right, twenty-eight million dollars. If alcoholic beverage prices drop twenty per cent as the metropolitan newspaper says, it will mean a drop of approximately $5,600,000 in sales tax!"

That's what the sheet says.

It also says that a 20 per cent drop in prices would result in a 50 per cent drop in profits for municipal liquor stores. With municipal store profits expected to be more than $9 million during the coming year, a 50 per cent reduction in profits would cause a loss of $4,400,000.

That's what the sheet says.

What the sheet doesn't say is that a dollar is a dollar. For instance, that $28 million will not be paid into the Minnesota sales tax fund by the alcoholic beverage industry until after it has been collected from the persons buying the booze. And the person buying the booze at 20 per cent less than previously will save not only the 20 per cent on the jug but 20 per cent on the sales tax, too.

On the municipal level, that 50 per cent drop in profits may not be too bad either. . . .at least from the customers' point of view. The sheet assumes a 25 per cent profit on a $5 fifth or $1.25.

Let's use the sheet's figures and assume that a municipal store would normally have $1 million in sales. Let's also remember that a dollar is a dollar. A 20 per cent drop in prices would save customers $200,000 from the amount normally spent. A 25 per cent profit would yield $250,000. Loss of half of that profit would be $125,000. Which is a bigger saving: $200,000 in cash or $125,000 in profits?

The picture of minimum price on liquor varies according to the way the figures are juggled. Our comparisons here were made for fun, since we have not studied the various aspects of liquor pricing. Perhaps the state would best be served by raising the minimum price to about $5 a fifth. It would still be available rather than prohibited. Just perhaps, like expensive perfume, it would be used less frequently and more sparingly. How about kicking that though around for awhile.

Economy, Anyone?

The following editorial appeared in the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

An advertisement in a recent edition of U.S. News and World Report is deserving of even larger circulation.

Headed "20 billion dollars worth of Federal Confusion," the brief article points out that there are now more than 1091 federal-assistance programs costing more than 20 billion dollars a year. The duplication of effort is even more astonishing. 20 federal agencies and departments handle 470 educational subsidy programs. 112 poverty aid programs are handled by 11 separate agencies, 69 vocational programs operated by 8 different federal agencies are supposed to be training manpower. 43 programs for children are administered by five different agencies. 56 various water programs are managed by seven unrelated federal agencies.

Even on the small town level, this type of duplication causes nothing but added expense and confusion. Slayton municipal officials, for example, have been examining the possibilities of low rent housing construction and the main area of confusion seems to be deciding through which federal program the city should proceed.

If there is one area in which the Nixon administration could move rapidly with the opposition of practically no one, it would be in the field of consolidation of federal effort.

In an effort to establish a local housing authority, Slayton last week contacted six different public and private agencies in four different cities just to receive information regarding the various building codes needed to comply with federal requirements.

This adds up to costly confusion on every level of government—and it is something that could and should be corrected.

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

The legislature has taken prompt and decisive action to insure that the 1967 tax reform and relief act will provide the full measure of tax relief intended for our senior citizens.

The bill which will soon be signed into law by the governor will provide substantial relief for property taxpayers over 65 years of age whose income is under $3,500 annually. It is retroactive and applies to 1968 taxes payable in 1969. It will provide approximately $8,000,000 of tax relief over a three-year period for the elderly who qualify. Under provisions of the 1967 law, many senior citizens with a low income who owned their own home received so little additional relief that it was not worth filing a return to obtain. This is now changed and very substantial relief will be realized by most elderly taxpayers.

I strongly urge any senior citizen property owner whose annual income is under $3,500 to consult his tax consultant and obtain information on how to proceed to qualify for this additional tax relief. To apply, it will be necessary to complete a Minnesota income tax return. The return and tax refund application deadline is April 15, 1969.

The Governor has now presented a special message to the Legislature regarding a cabinet style executive reorganization. As the Governor pointed out, the state has 101 executive agencies which report directly to him. It is very difficult for one person to do any kind of an administrative job with that broad a spread of authority.

The reorganization plan is the result of the work of 53 Minnesotans who served on the governor's council of executive reorganization. The benefits would be to improve service, insure economy of operation, strengthen the legislative process, facilitate sound decision making, guarantee accountability and seriously doubt that the legislature will accept all of the governor's recommendations, but certainly some of the thoughts merit consideration.

For example, it is recommended that the present department of taxation be renamed the department of revenue. In addition to its taxing function, it would take over the administration of the motor vehicle license tax, and also be responsible for collecting other taxes, such as beer and liquor excise taxes, which are now collected by other divisions of the state government.

The cabinet concept might be the most difficult for the legislature to accept, but the governor feels that it is the most significant step in the government reorganization.

CAPITOL COMMENT

BY MARTY MCGOWAN

There is a theory around the legislature that it is easier to pass bills on some days than others. If true, this theory indicates by what slender threads and whims the history of the state is determined.

Some who have observed the legislative scene for a considerable time say the basis for these easier days is tied to the barometric pressure. Others attribute the condition to whether or not the sun is shining on a particular day or whether the house and senate chambers may be gloomy and dark. Still others say the determination can be based on whether or not some members of a committee or a chamber are recuperating from a large evening the night before.

Though it sounds the most far-fetched, the barometric pressure idea has some substance. Somebody took the trouble a few sessions ago to note the days on which bills had difficulty, despite their merit, and other days on which bills had almost no trouble, even though they might have not had much merit. These latter days are called "woodchuck days," a woodchuck in legislative parlance being a bad bill or one that is self-serving. Anyway there did seem to be a correlation between the ease of passing bills and the high or low pressure of that given day.

This situation might have been illustrated one day last week. It was a beautiful sunshiny day, one of the rare ones this winter. The sun was streaming through the committee room windows and a cheery atmosphere prevailed. The young, blonde committee clerk was bouncy and cheerful as she greeted the senators arriving for the committee meeting. Her good humor carried over to the senators who laughed and joshed with her. As the chairman rapped his gavel and the meeting started it seemed like a propitious day to get a bill out of committee.

The first bill considered was one that had run into trouble at the previous hearing and was carried over. It was a relatively simple bill to protect some antelope that are beginning to be found in the state. Only trouble at the first hearing was that the Conservation department had put in a "woodchuck" provision not related to antelope, but to remove the fisher from the protected list. That created quite a furor, even to the point where one of the authors—who either hadn't read the bill in full or hadn't received the full explanation of it—attacked the bill in committee and it had to be carried over.

On this cheery day the bill was back, with an amendment to remove the provision on the fisher. The senator who had attacked the bill was handling the bill for the chief author who was absent that day. Without the extraneous provision the bill was speedily passed.

Then trouble began. The second bill considered related to permitting county auditors to have sub-agents for the sale of licenses in adjoining counties. The author had difficulty clarifying and some committee members had difficulty understanding that the bill related to the conveniences of the sub-agents, not the convenience of the people who buy licenses. After this was finally cleared up, the bill was approved.

Then real trouble occurred. This was on a bill relating to transporting and selling game fish. The conservation department wanted a provision that such shipments be marked as to quantity and kind of fish, along with an invoice. Long hassles then ensued about the difference between an invoice and a packing slip and how could anybody count the number of smelt in a large shipment.

All the good humor evident at the outset of the meeting had vanished. Department personnel were unsure of the language in the bill, how it would be administered and amendments offered did not help much. Finally this bill had to be carried over to a subsequent session.

That's how it goes some days. On occasions it is possible to throw a bill out to the committee wolves and they will pass it without a nibble. Other days they will chew it to pieces and nobody really knows why after the committee adjourns.

Strange business, this legislative process.

Thief River Falls Times
Dear Sir,

Thank you for your successful effort in helping me locate the Bert Hammer family, by entering my letter in your newspaper. This indeed was a wonderful gesture as a newspaper, also as an editor of that paper. You have made it possible for two families to hear from each other, who have not done so for more than 50 years.

I have already heard from Arnold Hammer and Mrs. Adrian Nelson, son and daughter of Bert Hammer, who was a good friend of my late husband.

Thank you again for such quick response. I am

186 Businesses Are Listed in Pennington Co.

There is a total of 186 businesses in Pennington county, according to statistics released by J. F. Anderson, district manager of the Minneapolis office of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. This total is based on a physical count of the March, 1969, edition of the Dun and Bradstreet reference book.

Anderson noted that each March business concerns in all parts of the United States are asked for copies of their financial statements. This year requests are being sent to nearly three million business concerns—to the corner grocery store worth a few thousand dollars as well as to businesses worth millions.

The reference book lists those manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers who seek or grant commercial credit, but it does not include some of the service and professional businesses such as beauty and barber shops, securities dealers and real estate brokers. Therefore, the figure for the total number of businesses in the United States would be higher than the three million quoted above.

Newfolden Petitioners Ask To Join TRF School

TWO PERSONS were taken to Northwestern hospital as the result of this head on snowmobile accident which occurred Friday night on the Red Lake river in Thief River Falls. The driver of the Arctic Cat was Blaine Rugland, Rustad addition, and the driver of the Sno-Sport was John Jaranson, city. Rugland was going east on the river while Jaranson was heading west at the time of the mishap. The accident occurred as the visibility was very poor because of fog on Friday night. Rugland suffered two broken wrists, while Jaranson suffered a broken leg. The accident occurred just north of Pine street on the Red Lake river.

Requesting that the entire Newfolden school district be consolidated with the Thief River Falls district, petitions containing 118 signatures have been filed with John O. Pearson, Marshall county superintendent of school. The petitions were circulated by interested freeholders in the district, with signatures primarily from the former Holt and Viking districts and an area in Foldahl township.

The petitions state that it is "expedient and for the best interests" of both school districts that they be consolidated into one district.

A meeting between petitioners and the Newfolden school district board has been scheduled for Wednesday evening, according to Gene Kjellberg, Newfolden superintendent of schools. Purpose of the meeting, the superintendent said, is to determine the reasons for the petition and what the desires of the petitioners are.

With the petitions filed at the Marshall county superintendent's office, Pearson is required to draw up a plat of the proposed consolidation and send it to the state commissioner of education. The commissioner may approve, modify or reject the plat.

If it is approved by the commissioner, the plat is returned to the Newfolden and Thief River Falls districts for action within 15 days. If either board rejects the plat or fails to approve it within the 15-day period, action is discontinued. If approved by both, a vote is believed necessary to effect the consolidation.

The former Holt and Viking districts were consolidated with Newfolden in a vote Jan. 27, 1968 when Holt residents voted 69 to 41 to consolidate and Viking residents voted 101 to 14 in favor. Newfolden residents did not vote because the board took advantage of a new law as they assumed favorable reaction.

On Oct. 30, 1968, the new consolidated school district voted on a $1,450,000 bond issue for a new high school. Those voting in Newfolden favored the issue 367 to 81 and Viking voters favored 89 to 54. However those voting in the Holt area of the new district did not favor the proposal and turned it down 38 for and 124 against. The total vote was 494 for and 259 against.

The Newfolden school board is making preparations to sell the bonds in March.

Board Makes No Counter Offer Thursday Night

Negotiations between teams representing the board and faculty of School District 564 in Thief River Falls failed to get off dead center at the last meeting held Thursday evening. After more than an hour of approaching the same points of argument from several different directions, the groups agreed to meet again on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Opening the meeting Thursday night, the school board's council rejected the offer last made by the teachers' council, but did not offer a counter proposal. The teachers had last requested the index schedule of a $7,100 base for a nine-month term (extended by four-thirds to $9,866 for a 12-month contract) plus health and life insurance as fringe benefits. They had deleted a request for income protection insurance.

The board of education rejected that proposal last Monday night at a special meeting. In presenting the board's decision, C. L. Charlson, chief negotiator, said that the dropping of income protection insurance was insignificant in relation to the total wage package. He said the board had made no counter proposal, since it would also be insignificant to the total dollar amount.

The negotiator reviewed the board's position in making no change from its current offer of $6,120 as a base salary. He said that the teachers' council submitted the first request, thereby setting the pace for negotiation, and that it was up to the teachers to make a significant offer toward a more negotiable figure.

Teachers' council representatives countered with the thought that they had made the last offer by eliminating the request for income protection insurance, and that the next move was logically that of the school board.

As at previous negotiating sessions, much of the question of salary has revolved around a 12-month school year which the board has adopted for 1969-1970. Board policy has been established that puts the school's faculty on a 12-month contract for next year, with eight-hour days

South Carolina Club Sends Aid For Wildlife

A private hunting club in Hartsville, S. C. has sent a check for $130 to the Minnesota conservation department to aid in the winter emergency wildlife program.

President J. Heyward Atkinson of the Colonel Kolb hunting club sent along the donation with a note that the club hoped "it would be of some help to the state on its wildlife problems".

Conservation officials said the donation probably resulted from national television coverage of Minnesota's deer and pheasant troubles caused by the unusually harsh winter.

State game and fish director Richard Weltersten wrote Atkinson thanking him for the contribution and said he was turning the funds over to the "Save Minnesota Deer" organization headquartered in Grand Rapids.

"On behalf of the Minnesota division of game and fish and the sportsmen of Minnesota, we thank you and your club for your interest and generosity," Weltersten concluded.

Introduce Bill For U.S. Potato Promotion Act

Senator Walter F. Mondale has joined as a co-sponsor for legislation to permit potato growers to establish and finance a national research and promotion program. The act was introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Milt Young of North Dakota.

The legislation would authorize potato producers to hold a national referendum to approve a promotion, research and marketing program. If approved, a national potato promotion board would recommend the level of grower assessments, which could not exceed one cent per hundred weight, to finance its operation. Growers could, on application, receive a refund.

Activities of the potato promotion board would be subject to review and approval by the department of agriculture and activities of the board would not replace present promotion efforts of various state and regional groups within the industry, Mondale said.

Minnesota higher education coordinating commission has announced that 5,427 Minnesota high school seniors have applied for Minnesota state scholarships for 1969-70. Jon M. Nicholson, scholarship officer of the commission, said that 2,439 students have been notified of their designation as semifinalists.

The commission has asked the Legislature for a $750,000 appropriation for new scholarships for 1969-70, and a like amount for 1970-71. Including renewals each year, the total amount requested for the biennium is $2,750,000. If that sum is approved, Nicholson anticipates being able to award about 1,200 new monetary scholarships this year.

Awards are granted on the basis of academic achievement and potential and demonstrated financial need. Stipends range from $200 to $800, but may not exceed tuition and mandatory fees plus a $100 book allowance, and are for use at colleges and universities within the state only.

Honorary awards, without stipend, provide equal recognition of academic distinction for those not requesting or not qualifying for financial assistance. Honorary winners retain their eligibility for monetary awards in subsequent years if the need arises.

The commission received applications from 419 of Minnesota's 488 public high schools, and from 56 of the state's 83 private and parochial schools. Three hundred seventy-three public and 47 private and parochial schools have at least one semi-finalist.

Last year, operating with a $250,000 appropriation, the commission named 417 monetary and 297 honorary scholars. These students are currently attending 36 colleges and universities in Minnesota. The 1969-70 winners will be announced in the spring.

Coltom Paces Arctic Team To Major Canadian Wins

Larry Coltom of Thief River Falls won the historic Kawartha Cup and $2,700 in prize money to lead Arctic Cat racers to victory in the Kawartha annual International competition February 22 and 23 at Peterborough, Ont., Canada.

The Peterborough competition is considered Canada's largest and most important race.

Coltom swept the 500 cc stock class and the 300 cc modified class, winning every lap of every heat, semi-final and final event, in that classification. He led from start to finish of each of those races on both the oval and obstacle courses.

Coltom also finished second to teammate Charlie Lofton of Thief River Falls in the 400 cc modified oval class. Arctic Cat driver Roger Janssen of Crookston finished third.

Ron Tenske of Sudbury, Ont., also driving an Arctic Cat, finished second to Coltom in the running for the Kawartha Cup.

Dewey Paulson, Brooklyn Center, drove his Arctic Cat to victory in the 634 cc modified oval class, while teammate Ken Belto, also of Thief River Falls, won the 634 cc modified obstacle class.

Janssen also finished second in the 400 cc modified obstacle class.

The Kawartha Cup triumph was the fifth major victory of the season for the Arctic Cat International racing team. The group had earlier swept meets a West Yellowstone, the World's championship at Eagle River, Wis., Winnipeg to St. Paul International 500 and New York state championship at Booneville.

Boat Owners Are Urged To Renew Licenses Soon

Minnesota boat owners were urged today to send in their license renewal applications soon in order to avoid the last minute spring rush.

Robert Rygg, assistant commissioner of conservation, said the boat licensing section reports a slow down in the number of renewal applications being received the past few days.

"Boat owners who wait until just before the opening of the fishing season to send in their applications frequently find they have not received their renewal when the season opens," Rygg said.

The cause is a sudden deluge of applications in the spring, each of which requires a certain length of time to process.

Amendments Provide More Tax Relief for State Sr. Citizens

Governor Harold LeVander has signed into law new amendments to the senior citizens tax relief law, passed by the Minnesota state legislature, making possible an increase of benefits for low-income elderly home owners. The number of persons who can benefit by filing a tax claim has greatly increased.

Mrs. B. C. Leadholm, chairman of the governor's citizens council on aging, urges all Minnesotans who were born before Jan. 1, 1903, who lived in Minnesota all of 1968, who did not receive any public assistance funds for living expense, and whose total income for 1968 was below $3,500, to file a state tax report before the April 15 deadline. Last year 20,000 elderly Minnesotans received refunds from the stat based upon their real estate taxes or upon the rent they paid, but this year many additional thousands should receive financial assistance under this plan, Mrs. Leadholm said.

Because the tax relief law is relatively new, the governor's council on aging is asking the help of all Minnesotans in making senior citizens aware of the actual cash benefits to which they are entitled if they qualify under the law. It does not reduce the amount of taxes they pay to their county treasurer, but instead gives them either a refund or a tax credit on a state income tax form. This means that many older persons who normally would not have to file a state income tax form will have to do so in order to get their refund under the senior citizens tax relief law.

However, this does not necessarily mean that they will be paying any tax, only that the same form is used for filing a tax return and for claiming the refund. Also, senior citizens do not need to fill out all sections of the income tax form but only those items of basic information needed in process their return.

A special SC form must also be filled out by the senior citizen who applies for tax relief. This form is needed to show his eligibility in terms of age, income, etc., and to figure out the amount of refund due. The two state tax forms must also be accompanied by either the senior citizen's tax statement from the county treasurer (for homeowners) or a certificate of rent paid by renters.

Anothre change in the law this year gives senior citizens who rent a choice of forms to use in applying for refunds. This year almost all Minnesota renters of any age may apply for tax credit based upon rent paid; the senior citizen may take his choice of which plan gives him the biggest refund. Most senior citizens will get a bigger refund from the senior citizen plan which has a graduated scale of payments based upon income—the lower the income the higher the percentage of refund—but those whose total income is over $3,000 a year may receive a bigger refund by using the general renters application.

Because so many senior citizens are not familiar with state tax forms special efforts are being made to inform them about the tax relief law and to provide assistance for them in filling out the needed forms. All of the state's tax department field offices have the forms and have free assistance available on certain days.

VA To Guarantee About 250,000 GI Home Loans

Veterans administration expects to guarantee an estimated 250,000 GI home loans in 1969. This is approximately 50,000 more than the VA estimated before the recent increase in the maximum FHA-VA home loan interest rate to 7½ per cent.

William J. Driver, administrator of veterans affairs, said the anticipated 250,000 loans will "go far" to meet the GI bill home loan benefit requests of recently returned Vietnam era veterans.

"Currently," he said, "approximately 25,000 veterans a month are applying for GI home loans. The overwhelming majority are younger veterans who generally are not in a position to meet the higher downpayment requirements of most conventional loans. These veterans need and deserve the GI home loan program with the advantages of small or no downpayments and long-term mortgages."

He reiterated the VA's determination to check the spiraling of interest rates. However, he added, "the first priority had to be to restore the competitive value of GI home loan interest rates so that the certificates of loan eligibility issued by VA would amount to more than mere 'hunting licenses.'"

Driver said that in recent months the high and increasing discount rates charged by lenders have driven builders and owners of existing homes from the GI home loan market.

"With GI home loan interest rates again competitive with private financing rates throughout the country, we are hoping to provide loans for 50,000 more veterans who otherwise would have been frozen out of the home market," he said.

Restriction In World Trade Is Farm Danger

Current opposition to freer world trade from some segments of U. S. agriculture and industry could hurt midwest producers of wheat, soybeans and feed grains, according to Arley Waldo, University of Minnesota agricultural economist.

These commodities account for more than half of all U. S. agricultural exports, which reached $6.5 billion dollars in 1967. Each of these commodities is an important Midwest crop.

For example, in 1967 Midwest farmers produced about 55 per cent of the wheat, 75 per cent of the soybeans and 80 per cent of the feed grains that were exported to other countries.

Because of this relationship between agricultural production and world trade, any movement toward restricting trade barriers of agricultural and industrial goods into the United States could hurt Midwest farmers, Waldo says. Such a move could result in retaliatory trade restrictions by foreign countries that would curtail U.S. agricultural exports.

Consequently, any reversal of the United States' long-standing policy in support of freer world trade must be evaluated carefully in terms of probably international economic and political repercussions, and the effects of such restrictions on farm producers, Waldo said.

Books in Large Type Available At TRF Library

Large type books have been added to the Northwest regional library in Thief River Falls, according to Miss Dorothy L. Last, librarian. Anyone having difficulty in reading because of failing eyesight is encouraged to use the books.

The human eye, although the most complex of human organs except the brain, is one of the first to fully mature. Therefore, it is small surprise that it is one of the first organs to show the ravages of time, Miss Last said.

Over 10 million Americans over the age of 50 do not see as well as they used to, even with the aid of prescription lenses. They find it difficult to read print in standard size, which severely limits the amount of time they can read each day.

Large type books are a relatively new program. It was not until 1965 that books were initiated in large type.

The following books are among the collection of the Northwest Library: "The Pearl" by Steinbeck; "A Farewell to Kill a Mockingbird", by Lee; "Jane Eyre", by Bronte; "Games People Play" by Neme; "Mythology" by Hamilton; "Famous Fairy Tales" by Perrault; "Tale of Two Cities" by Dickens; "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" by Twain; and "A Poetry Sample" by Hall.

World Day of Prayer Will Be Observed in TRF

Women in Thief River Falls and the surrounding areas will have the opportunity of participating in the annual World Day of Prayer, scheduled for Friday, March 7.

Locally this service will be held at 10 a.m., that day at Zion Lutheran church in this city. Mrs. Rudolph Sugman will present the devotional meditation based on the theme, "Growing Together in Christ". Special music will be provided by a combined chorus of women from various local churches with Mrs. Norman Peterson as director. The offering received will be divided among several projects sponsored by the Church Women United, sponsors of the World Day of Prayer, and the American Bible Society.

A coffee hour, beginning at 9 a.m., will precede and follow the one hour service.

Five local churches have been working together in planning this event. They are the United Methodist, Redeemer Lutheran, Zion Lutheran, St. John Lutheran and Trinity Lutheran.

This World Day of Prayer serves as an opportunity for enrichment through intercultural dialogue never before available to mankind. As new technology brings nations into closer contact, through exchange of information, mankind is forced to acknowledge the struggles and stirrings of world neighbors. Church women have recognized this need for unity and understanding since 1887 when they first joined in a single, symbolic voice of prayer. This year, millions of women, including those in the Thief River Falls area, will have the opportunity of further closing the dividing gaps caused by national, economic, racial and religious differences.

All women in the community are cordially invited to participate in this service. Nursery facilities will be provided.

Sergeant Jensen Helps Unit Win Service Award

Sergeant Richard A. Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Jensen of route 1, Thief River Falls, has helped his unit, the 6th Weather Squadron, win the Military Airlift Command's (MAC) Blue Pride achievement award. Sergeant Jensen, a weather observer, did his part in the unit's effort and was personally thanked by Colonel Frank Z. Kamer, 6th commander, for helping make the award possible.

The Blue award is set aside to recognize the outstanding performance of an entire MAC organization. The sergeant's unit was cited for continued error-free operations while supporting 57 different projects at locations ranging from Australia to Ethiopia and Greenland to the tropics.

Sgt. Jensen, who has been on duty in Vietnam, is a graduate of Lincoln high school and attended Gustavus Adolphus college in St. Peter, and Bemidji state college.

Change Asked by Mondale in SS Notification

Senator Walter F. Mondale has called fod a change in social security procedures that would give at least three years advance notice of college benefits to eligible children covered under the system, rather than the present five-month's notice.

In a letter to Robert M. Ball, social security commissioners, Mondale wrote: "The Social Security administration does not inform eligible dependents until five months before their 18th birthday that they could continue receiving a child's benefit until they are 22—provided they remain full-time students.

"The Veteran's administration, which has a similar program, informs 13-year olds who will later be eligible for college-aid benefits of that fact. This permits the students to make college plans by taking the proper high school courses, calculating their financial needs and so on.

"I think the Social Security administration should begin a similar practice, informing eligible dependents no later than their 15th birthday."

Mondale said that an estimated 341,000 college and other post-high school students received social security benefits during 1967-68 because the family wage earner was disabled or deceased. The average payment received was $71.97 per month, or $863.64 a year.

"Moving up the date of benefit-notification will allow many more children who are eligible for payments if they stay in school to receive the benefits their families have earned."

Family FINANCIAL PROTECTION

Q. I have just started to teach, and am responsible for a new course in my high school in Marriage and the Family. In the course outline I have included a section on family financial planning, including the role of life insurance in the budget. But I need up-to-date materials about this. Could you help by telling me what is available and where I could get some materials?

A. Several booklets are available to teachers for just this purpose. One booklet would be especially appropriate "A Date With Your Future." It encompasses all areas of family finance including life and health insurance. There are also movies and film strips that can be ordered for classroom viewing. A brochure outlining these materials can be obtained by writing to the Educational Division, Institute of Life Insurance, 277 Park Avenue, New York, New York 10017.

Langen Appointed To International Study Delegation

Congressman Odin Langen has been appointed as a member of the United States delegation to the Canada - United States Interparliamentary group, this week from the House speaker and the House minority leader. The group was formed 10 years ago to provide a continuing link between the United States Congress and the Canadian Parliament.

Langen will be one of 24 House and Senate members who will represent the United States Congress, and a like member of Canadian Parliamentarians will represent their government. The group meets once each year for a period of about five days, alternating their meeting site between the United States and Canada. This year's meeting is scheduled for Canada.

The Canada - United States interparliamentary group was primarily set up as a liaison between the legislative branches of the two governments and is used as a forum for discussing mutual problems and a mechanism for furthering mutual understanding.

Congressman Langen noted that the group concentrates on three main areas: defense, economic and trade matters and boundary problems. "Under the U.S. system of separation of powers, liaison between the Cabinets of the two nations is not enough to maintain the high level of understanding essential to good relations," Langen said. "The legislation of one country frequently affects the other, and constructive cooperation often requires further legislation. I look forward to working with our Canadian friends for the mutual benefit of our two great nations."

Teachers negotiating the 1969-70 salary have repeatedly stated that the extra three months of work are worth an extra third of a nine-month contract. The $6,000 base salary for a nine-month contract last year should be worth $8,000 on a 12-month contract next year, the negotiating team says. They note that the four-thirds basis has been used for payment of teachers now under 12-month contract in the vocational-technical school.

In contrast, the board representatives maintain that teachers negotiated last year for an annual contract, and through their state organizations have been seeking an annual salary for nine months of work. They state that a total new concept in educational practice is being implemented in the 2-month program adopted, and as such requires a new type of salary schedule.

Lindemoen was named vice chairman and Philip Edman of Alvarado will serve as secretary with Jerry Kruger of Warren, reelected treasurer.

Elected to be the district director for the coming year was Merle Nelson of Alvarado. Orion Dahl of Middle River was elected to serve a 3-year term as trustee. Members to serve on the meat bargaining board are Rolland Klamar, Herbert Stengrim, Ralph Anderson, Ambrose Kuznia, Hilary Kuznia and Leonard Yonke.

Sealed bids that had been obtained from local elevators were opened at this meeting. Plans had been made to activate a block sale of grain through NFO channels and this method was used to determine if this sale would be advisable at this time.

Arnold Larson, chairman of the super bargaining structure, and Rueben Knutson county grain bargaining chairman were to contact the NFO members who had signed their grain on a commitment for sale agreement to devise the best procedures to follow in order to move this grain before spring break-up.

4H Flower Seed Project Produces Many Letters

Hundreds of Minnesota 4-H boys and girls will begin corresponding with South Korean youth as a result of flower seeds sent to Korea last year.

This month the state 4-H office received nearly 200 letters, some in English, but most of them in Korean, from 4-H members in Korea. The letters were thank-you notes and greetings to Minnesota 4-H members, leaders and extension agents who contributed money toward buying 18,000 packages of flower seeds sent in February of 1968 to 4-H clubs in South Korea.

The flower seed project was started as the result of a letter from the director of the provincial office of rural development in Chungchong Pukdo, Korea, who asked for seeds so that 4-H clubs could initiate a full-scale flower-propagating campaign all over the province.

More than 100 4-H clubs from 40 Minnesota counties contributed money toward buying flower seeds. Cooperating in the project was Northrup, King and company, which provided the seeds at cost and shipped them to Korea.

By late February of 1968, seven cartons containing 18,000 seed packets of some 50 different flower varieties were on their way to South Korea—for planting by the 51,856 members of the 2,371 clubs in Chungchong Pukdo province.

Because of delays and red tape, the seeds were not delivered until the fall of 1968. In November Korean officials held a special ceremony at the opening of the 14th annual 4-H exhibition in Chongju, accepting the flower seeds from Minnesota. Korean broadcasting company covered the event, as did local Korean newspapers.

Now the letters have begun to come from individual Korean 4-H members, expressing their appreciation for the seeds but also asking that American boys and girls write to them.

Thus the flower seeds sent by Minnesota boys and girls may become the basis of many international friendships.

Langen Asks for Emergency Loan Fund Release

Congressman Odin Langen has written to the President and the budget bureau, requesting the release of the remaining funds appropriated by Congress last year for the emergency and operating loan funds of the Farmers Home administration. The application for the release of these moneys is currently pending before the bureau.

"That application represents the hopes and desires of our farm people," Langen said, "hope for a chance to tackle the task of feeding our country, and the desire to continue in a profession that has brought them many years of satisfaction."

Langen said that the emergency and operating loans of the Farmers Home administration are a very intricate part of the American farmer's productive capability. "With the predictions of the latest 'Outlook' conference held at the department of agriculture, farm prices are not expected to rise this year above the low levels of the last eight years," Langen noted. "I suggest that we need not add the loss of farm credit to this bleak picture."

Langen, ranking minority member of the agriculture appropriations subcommittee, said that making these loan funds available would prevent a rural depression, "and you will save the government the expenditure of poverty funds that would be necessary to restrain the farmers affected by the lack of emergency credit."

Langen re-emphasized the soundness of this farm lending program. "As I've noted on previous occasions, repayment of such loans has exceeded 98 per cent over the past 20 years. That's an excellent record."

Winter Scenery Good This Year

Those who admire the beauty of the outdoors are missing a bet if they don't get out into the woods this winter, according to Milt Krona, division of parks and recreation, Minnesota conservation department.

Snowshoes are a must, Krona said, and even then the going is difficult because of the depth of the fluffy, uncompacted snow.

The contrast of the pure white snow against the evergreen forest is enhanced even more in those areas where there is open water.

Krona was a recent visitor to Banning state park north of Sandstone on the Kettle river and the North Shore area. There is open water in the river and in Lake Superior near shore, he said.

"It may be a long time before there is another winter offering the scenery of this one," Krona said, "although it means hardship for deer and other wildlife."

"Mild" Gun Law?

An Associated Press report from St. Paul notes that Gov. Harold LeVander is asking a mild gun control law requiring permits for the carrying of handguns. It was part of his crime control message to the state legislature.

According to the governor's aides, in advance of the message given Thursday, LeVander will seek legislation authorizing the issuance of permits by local authorities. The permits would be required for the carrying of handguns, but not mere ownership of them, and could be issued where a person could demonstrate that he is exposed to danger and needs the gun for protection. Target shooters would be exempted, it was stated, and no legislation was to be asked regarding rifles or shotguns.

From the advance release, it sounds like a wishy-washy bill. It should let the Metropolitan press know that the governor has heard its shouts for gun control, but wouldn't affect a large number of sportsmen and therefore shouldn't be too offensive. It is a down-the-middle request hoping to keep both sides of two opposing factions somewhat satisfied.

We doubt that the governor will put a lot of push behind the request except as part of his overall crime control program. We don't feel he really has his heart in the request at all. There may be some legislators from the metropolitan area who may grab that portion of the program and run with it, but for the moment we foresee little hope of it being enacted into law.

If the metropolitan areas think that such legislation will help them, let them enact it locally and live with it locally. We don't need it here, we don't want it here, and it is not necessary on a state-wide basis.

For Information

The following article appeared in "Hoard's Dairyman" magazine and indicates that all is not necessarily fact just because it is presented as fact:

Vegetable oil processors and the stepping up their effort to persuade the public to substitute polyunsaturated for saturated fats in their diets. But the cholesterol cult may be "out on a limb," according to the National Dairy Council.

In a recent publication, the council, the dairy industry's nutrition voice, reports that there is an increasing body of knowledge which places the American Heart Association in an untenable position. Some observers are wondering if the heart association's shrill and louder effort to persuade the public against animal fats is somehow related to private realization that the cholesterol theorists may have had their day.

The council points out that the heart association program has been controlled by men who have placed a lot of faith in polyunsaturated idea proves to be too scientific careers are in jeopardy if the polyunsaturated idea proves to be too much of a generalization to truly prevent or alleviate heart disease. The council notes that the prospective scientific careers, being vulnerable to an almost 'all or nothing at all" future, hardly promote objectivity on the part of the scientists involved.

Reportedly, the scientific community is already questioning the oversimplified cholesterol "pitch." And now new evidence, stemming from the dairy industry research, is at hand and about to be released. It comes from the $500,000 research program sponsored by the Special Dairy Industry Board and administered by dairy council.

Here are just a few of the facts that will gain prominence in the months to come:

1. It is dangerous to make generalizations on the problem of diet and heart disease. Particularly this is true with respect to the intake of dietary cholesterol, the type and quantity of fat to be consumed, and the nature and amount of protein and carbohydrate which should be in the diet. In other words, it is the interactions between dietary components that may influence the development of atherosclerosis, rather than any "single effect." Thus, one should not simply recommend changes in fat consumption in hopes of preventing heart disease. The problem is too complicated for such a procedure to be safe or reliable.

2. Whole milk (the American Heart Association recommends avoiding it) is no more likely to raise the level of cholesterol in the blood than the usual American diet. So, even if you think cholesterol is important, there is now research to prove that whole milk is not the villain that some observers have tried to make it appear to be.

3. The substitution of corn oil or other vegetable fats for milk fat in the American diet will not decrease total fats in body tissues even though it may reduce blood cholesterol levels. If vegetable oil intake is, in fact, excessive, these fats will add to the tissue load as readily as any other fat. Whether this is important in the development of atherosclerosis is yet to be determined, but it raises serious questions since per capita consumption of margarines and vegetable oils has increased in recent years while animal fats consumption has decreased.

4. Contrary to long-standing ideas about milk, a new research study has found that milk fat, commonly rated as a saturated fat, is, in fact, only about 33 per cent saturated and about 67 per cent mono and polyunsaturated. If confirmed by other investigators, this finding may well make it necessary for scientists to reexamine their positions with respect to the fatty acid contents of milk fat. Again, whether you believe polyunsaturates will help prevent heart disease or not, the fact is the American Heart Association is advising consumers to avoid whole milk and other dairy products. Its spokesmen do this, in part, on the basis of incomplete knowledge of the chemical analysis of milk fat. This is hardly a valid position for such an organization to be in.

The above findings are, of course, a mere fraction of the evidence piling up. Some researchers link polyunsaturated with cancer, others see excessive use of these fats as speeding up aging, others even have shown that the effect of polyunsaturates is to raise cholesterol rather than lower it.

And most of all, perhaps, it is vegetable oil, not animal fats, that have increased in consumption during the very years that heart disease has become epidemic.

The findings of the dairy-sponsored research are encouraging and important to science in both methodology (new techniques for studying fat metabolosm) and in substance. Thirteen papers by researchers have just been published in a volume, "Dairy Lipids and Lipid Metabolism." The volume, says the dairy council, will be influential in the scientific literature for years to come.

The council argues that the dairy industry and other animal fats producers should publicize and promote now any and all findings that refute the claims being promoted by organizations such as the heart association. On an optimistic note, the council believes it will not be surprising if the scientific community in general listens less to American Heart Association partisans, who promote the same old story but are unable to "clinch" the pennant, and more to other scientists with fresh approaches and new, exciting evidence.

Storms Save Lives

Most people consider blizzards in Minnesota as potential killers, ready and eager to take advantage of the unprepared, the foolish or the unfortunate. Without a doubt, they are not something to take lightly.

But the Morris Sun considers another aspect of heavy snows. In an editorial a week ago, the Sun editor wrote the following:

There have been many inconveniences and hardships for people during this snowy, stormy winter of 1969. But there has been a dividend of lives in Minnesota too, 56 of them, as a matter of fact, that might correctly be credited to the wintry storms.

These are the lives that have been saved on the state's highways thus far this year in comparison to the same period in 1968. The ratio of deaths from automobile accidents this year compared to a year ago is a bit under one to three, 38 to 94.

It's true that traffic was almost at a standstill on some days. No traffic, no traffic deaths. But it's also true that when traffic has been moving, drivers have had to slow down because of narrow lanes through drifts, because of blowing snow, because of icy streets and highways, and because of the necessity to virtually inch into many intersections in cities on account of piled high drifts on boulevards that block vision.

The lesson is there if we want to profit by it: To save lives on the streets and highways, drive with less speed and more caution 12 months of the year.

Having just asked his stingy boss for a raise, the diffident clerk stood before him awaiting the inevitable explosion.

"And just why do you think you need a raise?" thundered the formidable employer.

"Well, really, sir," stammered the timid fellow, "I wouldn't have troubled you at all, but somehow my children just found out that other families eat three times a day."

Legislative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

One of the most challenging bills to be considered by the higher education committee, of which I am a member, is the comprehensive community college bill.

The bill is an outgrowth of a study of the role of the junior college and vocational-technical education made by the legislative research commission during the interim. A subcommittee of the LRC listened to testimony from citizens throughout the State of Minnesota involved in post high school education.

They studied the role of post high education throughout the United States and visited three comprehensive out-state institutions. The authors of the bill feel that a comprehensive community college system would give broader and better opportunities to the students within the state at less loss to the taxpayers.

Under the proposal, the present junior college system would be converted to a more comprehensive system covering academic, technical and vocational courses. There would be a new state board composed of three vocational, three academic and three representing the general public. The state board would select the chancellor, set statewide policy, and designate areas from which local board members would be selected. The state office would be divided into an academic division and a vocational division, both with complete authority in their divisions.

Local boards would be appointed by the governor from the designated service areas. They would have the responsibility of appointing a director for the college, preparing budgets for the local college, suggesting new programs and curriculum. They would also appoint local advisory committees the same as is done in the area vocational school at the present time.

The community college system would be composed of all junior colleges presently in operation throughout the state, plus any area vocational school that may wish to join the system.

Letters to the Editor

Editor:

All the hockey players I've watched in action—and that includes All-American Henry Boucha—are members of the majority race—the human race.

To insinuate any else labels one an insensitive bigot, whether one's an executive of the Minnesota State league or not.

Paul R. Blegner

Dear Marv,

With the ink hardly dry on the Charity Ball reports, the Mrs. Jaycees launched a gigantic project to again help the handicapped of this area!

They undertook the number by number calling of every household in our local directory that could be called without a toll charge to ascertain the number and nature of all handicapped persons. This included physically handicapped as well as mentally handicapped.

Now this is a lot of calling, no matter how you look at it! I estimate the hours spent would be somewhere around the vicinity of 150 hours for the 25 women in the group. That's a lot of volunteer service!

They were asked to do this by Lon Miller, Director of the Falls Day Activity Center, with the consent of the Board of Directors. The Board, along with Mr. Miller, has been working long and hard on the development of a new and comprehensive program to aid all of the handicapped people in our area.

To create this program we had to have an accurate census of these persons as well as their needs. As usual, the cooperation of the public with a project such as this was terrific! Everyone was most courteous and helpful. Although all individual information will be kept in the strictest confidence, general results of the poll will be supplied to you later. Initial results reveal this project to be highly successful.

I wish to express the sincere thanks of the Falls Day Activity Center Board to the Mrs. Jaycees for all the calling they did, clear evidence of service to their community.

Sincerely,
Mrs. James Carlson
Board Chairman

Clarence D. Palmby is our new assistant secretary of agriculture. He is a native of Minnesota, being also a former state committeeman.

In a recent message, Palmby stated that "a good signup in the wheat and feed grain program is desirable. Enough grain acreage should be held out of production to accomplish some pull-down in stocks and thus strengthen farm prices."

Palmby indicated that "somewhat more" feed grain acreage should be diverted from production than the 32.4 million acres for 1968. We hope to have production held at a level to permit a reduction of three to five million tons in feed grain stocks.

Wheat stocks also need to be reduced, and producers this year for the first time since 1966 have an opportunity to earn diversion payments. To reduce the wheat carryover by 100 million bushels, Palmby said acreage should be about 5 per cent less than the 1969 allotment.

The first national report on feed grain signup indicates a good signup is in progress. Nearly half a million farms have signed up in the first two weeks. Total intended diversion in this first report is 10,490,000 acres, with 6,556,163 acres being voluntary added diversion for payment, and the remainder being minimum qualifying diversion of acreage from the production of corn, grain sorghum or barley.

March 21 is the final date to sign up in this year's program. Please do not wait until the last week.

Two cups of vinegar added to the rinse water for your blankets, will get rid of the soap film, give them a fresh odor and raises the nap too. It'll do the same for sweaters. After a shampoo, a final rinse with water containing several tablespoons of vinegar will make hair clean and fluffy and remove the soap film.

BUYER BEWARE BE WISE

by DOUGLAS M. HEAD
Attorney General
State of Minnesota

A northern Minnesota woman was recently approached by a man selling a vacuum cleaner. The product was higher priced than similar ones sold in local stores, but the salesman stated that due to the revolutionary "referral selling" plan the woman would actually receive the cleaner at no cost.

The plan was described as follows: The woman would sign a contract to pay $250 for the cleaner. The company would then pledge to pay the woman signed the contract. Shortly $10 for every prospective customer which she referred to the company. The only requirement was that the referrals must agree to have the cleaner demonstrated in their homes.

This sounded like a very attractive offer and the woman thereafter, she submitted the names of 25 acquaintances to the company, anticipating that she would receive $250. Then she discovered the catch.

Several weeks later she received a check from the company—but for only $20, and a letter encouraging her to send in more names. She wrote to inquire about the other 23 names. The company replied that some of these people could not be contacted by their salesmen and that the rest had already been referred by other customers.

The deceptive aspects of such a chain referral scheme are twofold. First, the consumer receives no guarantee that the company will actually contact the people referred to them. The Consumer Division has received many complaints from people bought products because they were told that the purchase price could easily be earned back by referring others to the company. Investigation revealed that some of the companies complained about did not even attempt to contact the names referred to them. They used a referral sales pitch merely to entice their consumers to purchase their product at an inflated price.

The second deceptive aspect of a chain referal sale is the fact that the scheme will soon saturate the market with a product sold by the referral method.

Theoretically, a consumer can send in the names of 25 people who would agree to have the product demonstrated in their homes. Each of these 25 people might be able to lead the salesmen to another 25. However, those 625 would have to refer 15,625 names and the 15,625 would have to lead the company to another 390,625 willing people.

State MEA Director Responds To Parts Of MSBA Bulletin

Teachers contemplating joining a faculty for the first time next fall were warned against signing blank contracts because of "the many risks involved." The warning came from Patrick G. Churchill, director of the Minnesota Education association (MEA) department of student programs and higher education.

Churchill says that more and more school boards are trying for early contract signing of teachers—"much earlier than has been the case."

Churchill lists among the risks: An arbitrary lengthening of the school day and the school year; no schedule for compensation; no guarantee as to teaching assignment; no guarantee that established policies will continue in effect, and no guarantee that written personnel policies will exist; elimination of traditional holidays.

"There's no precedent anywhere that we know of," Churchill declares, "for contracts of this kind, in either the private or public sectors of our economy."

Although he doesn't accuse the Minnesota School Boards association (MSBA) of complicity in the matter, Churchill cites an MSBA "research bulletin" distributed before Christmas as being the touchstone for much of the current unrest among teachers-to-be.

These, Churchill enumerates, are some of the "reactionary" points in the MSBA "suggestions":

(1) "It's a myth that increased education and experience necessarily increase a teacher's value to the school system."

Why is it, then, Churchill asks, that for many years school boards have been requiring teachers to return to college for periodic updating and, in many cases, paying for the tuition and in almost all cases, improving salary after such updating?

(2) "The school day should be extended to at least eight hours exclusive of the lunch period . . The public has long been critical of the short length of the teachers' day. It would please your constituents to know that a teacher's day is somewhat comparable to other members of the community."

A 4-year-old study of Minnesota teachers (Most recent statistics available on the subject) shows, Churchill says, that the median (half above, half below) total work period per week for elementary teachers is 62 hours and 10 minutes, for secondary teachers, 65 hours and three minutes. "Divided by five, this means a median workday in excess of 12 hours."

(The same study shows a required "time on the job" median of 40 hours and 10 minutes per week for elementary teaches, and 39 hours and 40 minutes for secondary teachers.)

"If anything," Churchill maintains, "the requirements have become more demanding, not less."

(3) "Teachers have demanded a salary commensurate with those in other fields of endeavor with like education and skills who are working a full year for the same salary. Therefore, teachers, in view of the comparable salary, should be willing to work the normal work year rather than approximately nine months of the year."

Churchill points to a recent study by the Minnesota department of employment security, which discloses that the number of hours worked per year by a typical person in industry in Minnesota was 1,891.26 in 1967. "Even using a low figure of 37 weeks for a school year, Minnesota teachers had—several years ago—a median work year of 2,406 hours and 51 minutes, in secondary, and 2,300 hours and 10 minutes in elementary," he said.

(4) "Extra compensation for duties such as chaperoning of school activity events (athletic contests, concerts, dances, etc.) should be discontinued and such duties should be equitably rotated among all teachers. . . It would seem to be in the interest of the school-system for the teacher to be attending some of these events for his own understanding of the students and the school system."

In other professions, Churchill asserts, time spent outside the normal day either is compensated for or results in professional growth, or both. "The MSBA is suggesting using teachers for no more than babysitting chores."

"If the MSBA's reactionary suggestions are adopted by local school boards as policy," Churchill concludes, "we will have destroyed the gratifying results of a cooperative effort extending over at least a generation. If this is permitted to happen, the education climate very well could revert to the kind of Dark ages existence out of which enlightened school people have so long struggled to emerge."

You can get an extra ton of milk from every cow during every lactation—the Land O'Lakes way.

The Land O'Lakes dry cow and freshening feeding program—based on Milk Formula "36"—involves an 8-week dry period during which the cow is fed according to her body condition.

At freshening time and throughout the entire lactation she produces extra milk, because she's already conditioned for heavy grain feeding. She and her calf are less susceptible to disease and metabolical disturbances. But best of all, you get bigger milk checks.

SHOWN ARE 25 of the 40 deer killed by two dogs in the St. Croix state park this winter, and hauled to the park dump ground area by conservation officers and others. The two dogs had reportedly been killing deer in the park for at least a week, and were finally tracked down from their last kill and destroyed. The state conservation department emphasizes that dogs do a large amount of damage in killing deer, since they are able to walk on the crust while deer break through into the deep snow.

Leading free throw shooter was Thyren, making 41 of 58 shots, for 71 per cent. Hamilton was second with a 64 per cent as he made 20 of 31 shots.

Tim Olson led the squad in assists with a total of 25, while Hanson had 16 and Kip Pottenhagen tallied 14.

Five of the junior varsity made the Prowler tournament squad while three of them started during the season for the varsity. Graduating to the Prowler squad were Hanson, Olson, Hamerlinck, Rodahl and Poppenhagen. Poppenhagen has been a regular starter for the Prowlers in the last eight games while Olson and Hamerlinck each started one game for the Prowlers this season. Rodahl is one of the varsity's top reserve guards.

As a team the junior varsity shot at a 42 per cent clip from the field as they made 359 of 859 shots taken, compared to a 37 per cent clip for their opposition which tallied 276 of 743 shots taken. From the free throw line the junior Prowlers shot 52 per cent, making 205 of 391 shots taken from the line. Their opposition made 144 of 287 for 50 per cent. In scoring the Prowlers scored 807 points while the opposition made 638. The junior varsity also held the edge in rebounds 694 to 442, while making 98 assists to the opposition's 53.

The double 'B' squad, as the Prowler coaches named it, is comprised of sophomores only, with some of the regular 'B' squad members also playing in these games. This squad reeled off 12 straight victories before losing their final game to Newfolden. This squad played on Saturday mornings around the area and faced Oslo, Karlstad, Goodridge, the Franklin Junior high school ninth grade and other area teams.

Once again Dale Hanson was the squad's leading scorer as he tallied 170 points in 12 games; Mark Thyren was next with 126 points while Jerry Morben added 106 points. Hanson finished with a 17.0 average, while Thyren had a 10.5 average and Morben had an even nine points per contest.

The team averaged 48.6 points per contest and allowed their opposition a 36.2 average.

Goodridge Has Two Named To All-League Squad

Polar conference champion Oslo led the all-conference team named by the league's six coaches on Thursday night before the start of the final of the Sub-district 31 games played at East Grand Forks on Thursday evening.

Goodridge placed two on the squad while Plummer had one named to the squad. Fisher also placed two on the select squad, while Alvarado and Red Lake Falls were represented with one player each.

Making the squad from Goodridge were guard Roger Blaine, a senior, and forward Bryan Wiseth, a junior. Plummer was represented on the squad by junior guard Doug Martell.

Making the team from Oslo were Ralph and Bob Johnson and Dennis Wisk. Fisher had Bill Rutherford and Paul Egeland on the squad, while Alvarado's center, Dan Dahlstrom, was also named. Red Lake Falls lone representative was Ron Kennedy.

Only three juniors were named to the team—Wiseth, Martell and Dahlstrom—while the other seven players were all seniors.

SCHOOL BOARD PROCEEDINGS

SPECIAL BOARD MEETING
February 24, 1969

A special meeting of the School District Board No. 564 was held at 8:00 o'clock p.m. on February 24, 1969 in the Superintendent's Office of the Lincoln School Building.

The following members were present: Robert Bredeson, Dr. George Martin, Morris Owen, Mervin Prestebak, Charles R. Samuelson, Maynard Wedul, and Superintendent Johnson. Absent: Dr. H. R. Achenbach.

Chairman Martin presided.

A motion was made by M. Wedul, seconded by M. Prestebak and carried to change the date to accept school bus bids from February 24, 1969 to the regular board meeting on March 10, 1969.

A motion was made by Robert Bredeson and seconded by Maynard Wedul to reject the salary proposal as presented by the Teachers' council on February 18, 1969 ($7,400 base for nine months; $9,868 - twelve months if extended). Request for salary protection insurance was deleted from this proposal. Cost of this item estimated to be $1,950.

The following communication from the Teachers' Council was reviewed by the Board of Education. After discussion the chairman of the board formulated the position of the board of education in relation to this communication.

Obstacles Hindering Significant Negotiating by Teachers' Council February 13, 1969.

Basic:

1. Twelve-month work schedule at a previously established nine-month salary (both approximate) (problem is underlined section).

Others related (directly or indirectly):

2. All teachers on a twelve-month work schedule. Probably important to a small minority, it would appear to be desirable to both the board and staff that some teachers be on perhaps a 9½ month schedule. In the Rochester plan some teachers are not on the long schedule, some not even eligible for it.

*3. Elimination of extra-curricular pay.

*4. Adjusted schedule in lieu of extra-curricular pay.

a. Most teachers apparently believe that even at best this can be only partially and very imperfectly done.

b. In the area of athletics, especially, we have only in recent years been able to establish teachers as educators first and coaches secondarily. Years ago several coaches had adjusted schedules producing a coaching-first and teaching-as-a-sideline concept that resulted in a generally deplorable situation. Are we going back to this?

5. School year extension to 38 weeks. In theory most teachers are in sympathy, but teaching reluctant students unaccustomed to the extended term becomes an uphill struggle in balmy June.

*6. Eight-hour minimum work day in confinement. A trained professional who already works 9, 10, 11 and possibly even more on school days is humiliated and degraded by mandatory confinement in the building to 4 p.m. It seems a minor point, but it's a very sensitive and ill-advised provision.

7. As an indirect result, virtual elimination of summer employment in other occupations. A genuine twelve-month professional salary would, of course, remove this obstacle. (Basic No. 1).

*8. Teacher classification system linked to a nebulous salary schedule. This completely unsold scheme (dropping this unannounced on a teacher negotiating team is a classic example of how not to do things) is potential dynamite if employed by any board that is anything - less - than - ideal. As yet the current board seems to have done its poorest selling job in the staff in finance - related areas (although quite impressive in some others).

9. An unpredictable summer schedule that so far consists only of an eight-hour minimum working day and a small general list of activities. Certainly it is early for detailed plans, but a three - minute - idea could have produced what we have seen so far as a summer plan.

10. Apparent board attitude toward non - negotiable items. While law does not require an attempt to reach agreement it would seem that the board would want to and would seek to reach agreement on many items. While the staff welcomes the invitation to come to them with ideas and problems, the idea of cooperative and coordinated operation in some areas is what the staff really wants.

11. Apparent Board subservience to the Minnesota School Board Association and its legal advisers, especially in matters of local school policy.

*Probably most serious.

Board's Reaction to Teachers' Council Communication dated February 13, 1969:

At the close of the February 12 negotiation meeting, an oral presentation of eleven points was made by the teachers' council. This was reduced to writing and delivered to the superintendent's office approximately five days later. It should be noted that during the process of negotiations, the board's negotiating team has at least three times asked the teacher's council if they understood the board's basic proposal and its philosophy. Three times they have answered in the affirmative, first at the February 5, 1969 meeting and at least two times at the February 12, 1969 meeting. From reading this list, it becomes obvious to the board that the basic reason for its proposal, and indeed the proposal itself, are not understood by the council. Feedback from various teachers to individual school board members indicates that our staff also is in doubt about the basic proposal. Therefore, it is suggested the superintendent be directed to present each of the teaching personnel the basic proposal, plus an explanatory cover letter. This material should not mention dollars, because they are a matter of negotiation and the board does not wish to propagandize any teacher or in any other way subvert the negotiation process, which it is willing to continue in a give and take manner until such time as an agreement is reached.

It would appear that further reference to point number eleven should also be made. All of our staff should be made aware that no organization of any nature dictates or forces this school board to adopt any policy or position except those policies regulated by the statutes of the State of Minnesota or our national government and their respective agencies. Similarities of the Minnesota School Board Association, Minnesota Education Association and Minnesota Federation of Teachers should be quite obvious. They are voluntary associations that make recommendations to their member groups which may or may not be followed. They provide a mechanism for the transfer of information for education and recommended courses of action to be followed to gain their objectives, economic as well as non-economic. For instance, the Minnesota Education Association's president, Mr. Klinkerfues, has stated his organization's position that teachers should act in concert to obtain a starting salary for a beginning bachelor's degree teacher of $8,000, plus fringe benefits, for a nine-month contract beginning in the school year 1970-71. The Minnesota School Board Association has also decided upon certain goals and has suggested various means by which their member units can achieve such goals. Both the Thief River Falls Education Association and the School Board of Independent School District 564 have the choice of whether to, or not to, follow such suggested courses of action.

A motion was made by Mervin Prestebak and seconded by Charles Samuelson and carried to instruct the Superintendent to send out a copy of the Board's original proposal to all teachers with a cover letter explaining the change of educational philosophy without mention of salary since this item would be subject to negotiation.

Chairman Martin adjourned the board meeting into Executive Session at 8:30 p.m., at which time all visitors were excused from the board room. The board was recalled to regular session at 9:15 p.m.

A motion was made by Charles Samuelson and seconded by Mervin Prestebak and carried to acknowledge the attached letter from the teachers' council requesting an adjustment panel as provided by State Statute and that the school board would name their panel member upon receipt of the council's panel member on March 3, 1969. The superintendent was instructed to inform the teachers' council by letter according to school policy.

February 18, 1969.
Dr. George B. Martin, Chairman
Board of Education
Independent School District 564
Thief River Falls, Minnesota 56701

Dear Dr. Martin:

In view of (1) the almost total lack of progress in negotiations thus far, (2) the great differences that still exist between board and teachers' council proposals and (3) the extreme unlikelihood that these differences will be resolved by the present representatives, the Thief River Falls Teachers' Council hereby requests the establishment of an adjustment panel pursuant to Minnesota state law.

As soon as the board's panel member is named, will you please advise either of the undersigned of his identity. Your early attention to this matter will be appreciated. The Council anticipates an early naming of its own representative and will notify you when the selection is made.

Very truly yours,
Billie Blankenfeld
Ted Helle
Co-chairmen
Thief River Falls Teachers' Council
cc-Commissioner of Education.
Reference to Minnesota Statutes 1967, Chapter 633, Section 7.

A motion was made by Morris Owen and seconded by Robert Bredeson and carried to adjourn at 9:30 p.m.

Signed: Robert A. Bredeson Clerk
Approved: George B. Martin, Chairman.

Huskies Win District Berth; Top Alvarado

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Sub-district 31 play ended Thursday night at East Grand Forks with three teams advancing into the District 31 tournament which begins today (Monday) at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse. Advancing into the tournament were Oslo, Fisher and Goodridge.

Oslo gained the championship as they stopped Fisher by an 81-57 score and won the right to meet East Grand Forks at 7 p.m. tonight (Monday). Fisher, the runner-up, will meet Warren in tonight's final at 8:30. Third place Goodridge, who stopped Alvarado 78-72 in overtime, will meet Thief River Falls at 3:30 this afternoon.

Goodridge trailed Alvarado by 10 points with four minutes left in the game on Thursday night, pulled to within four points with 16 seconds left in regulation time, and Gary Kasow knotted the score at 68-68 with nine seconds left. The Huskies sent the game into overtime for the second time in three nights in the tournament. On Tuesday night the Huskies forced Oslo into overtime, only to lose by a 64-60 score.

The overtime period found the Huskies outscoring the Indians by a 10-4 margin as they walked off with a win and third place in sub-district play. As the result of that win on Thursday the Huskies will take a 17-4 record into District 31 tournament play, the best in the district.

In the contest on Thursday night, Goodridge led at the end of the first period by a 16-12 margin and then trailed 37-30 at half time. The Indians increased their lead at the end of three quarters to 54-46 but the Huskies caught fire and tallied in the final period by outscoring Alvarado 22-14.

The Huskies were paced by the scoring of guard Roger Blaine who tallied 28 points. Ray Molsberger added 16 while Steve Holte tallied 12 points for the winners. Alvarado was led by Dan Dahlstrom, 6-5 junior center, who took scoring honors for the game with 30 points. Rykk Nickolls added 18 while Jim Anderson tallied 12 in the losing cause.

Oslo, defending Polar champions and sub-district champions, took home the honors once more this year as they stopped Fisher by an 81-57 score in the championship game of the sub-district on Thursday night.

The Bobcats were paced during the contest by Ralph Johnson, who tallied 23 points to lead a quintet of players in double figures. Following Johnson were Byron Durand with 13 points, Bob Johnson and Bob Iloverson with 11 points each and Dennis Wisk with 10 points.

The losing Fisher five was led by Bill Rutherford who tallied 20 points. Paul Egeland added 16 in the losing cause for the Flyers.

Oslo jumped to a 20-14 lead at the end of the first period and then led at half time by a 41-27 score, increased that lead to 58-36 at the end of three periods.

GOING HIGH into the air on Tuesday night against Oslo was Goodridge's Gary Anderson as he takes a shot over the reach of Ralph Johnson of Oslo.

Is your attic full of Don't wants? Turn them into ready cash with a Times Classified Ad.

"UP YOU GO" appears to be what Clearbrook's Jim Goudge is saying as he takes a shot during the north half of Sub-District 30 play at Fosston on Friday night. Trying to block the shot is McIntosh' Dennis Balstad. Mark Schimanski (40), McIntosh, waits for a rebound, while Gary Prosser (45), Clearbrook, is coming in for a rebound. Goudge led Clearbrook players in double figures for the contest with 23 points as Clearbrook stopped McIntosh by a 78-64 score and won the right to move into the District 30 tournament.

BRINGING THE BALL down the court at East Grand Forks on Tuesday night against Oslo was Goodridge's Bryan Wiseth (23). Chasing Wiseth is Oslo's Byron Durand. The Huskies lost to the Bobcats 64-60 in overtime, but gained the District tournament by stopping Alvarado 78-72 in overtime on Thursday night.

Trojans, Hornets Gain District 30

by Bob Wislinski
Times Sports Writer

Clearbrook and Mentor upset pre-season favorites in the North half of Sub-District 30 tournament play on Thursday and Friday night at Clearbrook and Fosston respectively. Clearbrook, on Friday night, stopped McIntosh by a 78-64 score, while Mentor on Thursday, toppled Fosston by a 71-66 score. Both teams will now enter the District 30 tournament against Ada and Hendrum, who will represent the south half of District 30 in the tournament.

On Thursday night at Clearbrook, Mentor defeated defending District 30 champion Fosston by a 71-66 score. Mentor was led by the scoring of Robie Super and Bob Johnson who combined for a total of 56 points with Super netting 32 points while Johnson tallied 24. Bob Holm was tops for Fosston with 32 points.

On Friday night at Fosston, Clearbrook, led by the scoring of Jim Goudge, who led five Hornet players in double figures, came back from a 37-32 deficit to take a 78-64 win from the taller McIntosh squad and advance into the District 30 tournament.

Goudge led the Clearbrook surge in the second half as the junior guard tallied 11 of his 23 points, 10 of them coming in the final period. In the third period the Hornet defense came to life and held McIntosh to 10 points as the Hornets surged to a 54-47 lead.

The opening two periods found the Scots' Mark Schimanski scoring 20 points for the Scots, but in that second half the Clearbrook defense of Gordy Engebretson and Gary Prosser held the scoring ace of the Scots to six points.

Also in double figures for the Clearbrook squad were Prosser with 15 points; Engebretson with 14; Larry Groshong and Allan Johnson with 10 points each. Schimanski was high for the contest with 26 points, while Jim Benson added 17 points in the losing cause for the Scots.

The Hornets are a fast and coming team that out-scored the Scots from the field by a 27-25 margin and held the edge from the free throw line at 24-14. It marked win number 13 for the Hornets after the Christmas break against one loss since that time. Clearbrook's record now stands at 15-5.

A little vinegar in dishwater will make glassware gleam and sparkle. A cloth dampened in vinegar removes spots on your stainless steel appliances, too. For windows, add a half-cup of ammonia and an eighth-cup of vinegar to a quart of warm water. Your windows will be clean and streakless.

Offer 5-Day Plan To Stop Smoking Habit

Because of interest expressed by a number of people, a five-day plan to stop smoking will be held in Thief River Falls during the week of March 17-21. Sessions will be held each evening from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the new area vocational - technical school, located east of Thief River Falls on Highway 1.

The five day plan is under the sponsorship of the Thief River clinic, and a physician or dentist will be in attendance at all sessions. Advance registration is being accepted with total class membership being limited to 100 people.

If the class is not filled from advance registration, persons interested may register at the first session March 17. Registration may be accomplished by calling the clinic (681-2685) and the $5 registration fee may be paid at the first class session.

There is even a money-back guarantee on the registration fee, according to Dr. Leo Herber of the clinic staff. Persons who complete the five-day plan and don't quit smoking will have their registration fee returned to them. All course materials are included in the registration fee, including the pocket-size booklet which serves as a guide for the five-day personal program.

What Is the Plan?

The five-day plan consists of five group therapy sessions, films, lectures, demonstrations, use of the buddy system and a personal control book to follow each day.

"It is not easy for smokers to give up their habit, as all smokers who have tried it know," Dr. Herber said. "They will find it to be far easier under a controlled program. Thousands have already quit smoking who never thought they could.

"One of the best parts of the five-day plan is that it was designed for busy people who work under pressure. There is little inconvenience on the job, and a phone call to a 'buddy' in the program will probably take less total time than the time consumed in a day of smoking. The plan is also designed to reduce discomfort to a minimum," the doctor said.

A similar course was conducted in Thief River Falls several years ago, and a number of people who were enrolled were able to break the habit of cigarette smoking, Dr. Herber said.

"It all comes down to a point where the question is whether or not the smoker really wants to quit," he added. "If he or she has a desire to break the habit, the five-day plan can give standpoints of medically - proven facts to lessen the craving for tobacco, and the psychological aid of group therapy."

Name Forberg To Adjustment Panel

Joe Forberg

Briefest of all the sessions between the negotiating teams of the Thief River Falls school board and faculty this year took place Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the superintendent's office at Lincoln high school. It may also have been the last meeting between the two groups for some period of time.

Opening the negotiating session, Ted Hellie, co-chairman of the teachers' council, announced the council's representative on the previously - requested adjustment panel. He named Joe Forberg, member of the local school faculty, as that team's representative. He also said that the teachers' council had no further proposals to make.

Asked if the school board had selected its member for the adjustment panel, Dr. George Martin, board chairman, responded that the board had not made its selection. And when the selection would be made, he indicated that it would likely take place "in the next 48 hours," noting that the board would probably meet for that purpose Wednesday since it seemed to be a convenient time to do so. No more meetings were scheduled, and both teams agreed to meet on call.

At that point the meeting adjourned, only a few minutes after the opening statements.

Arena Bids Are Rejected; New Plans Ordered

Meeting in adjourned session Tuesday noon, the Thief River Falls city council accepted bids on two items of equipment and made several adjustments in salaries of city employees. The salary adjustments were made at the request of Local 664 of the Municipal Driver and Helpers Union and carried by a 4-2 vote of the council with one member absent.

Requested by the union and approved by the council were inequity adjustments of $15 per month for four building engineers, $5 per month plus uniform laundry for mechanics and $10 per month for six firemen. Liquor store employees were granted four additional holidays for a total of 11 during the year.

In addition, the council granted payment of health insurance and $3,000 in life insurance for each of the city's approximately 80 employees up to a maximum of $12 per month per employe. All increases and fringe benefits were in addition to across the board increases of 12 cents per hour effective January 1. A number of inequity adjustments by departments had also been made at that time.

Aldermen voting in favor of the adjustments were William Froiland, Gerald Wigness, Arnold Narverud and Arthur Rumbeck. Voting against were Ole Engelstad and Robert Carlson. Ambrose Wysoski was not in attendance at the meeting.

Contracts awarded were to Sweeney Bros., Inc., Fargo, N. D., for a four-wheel drive, articulated front-end loader, and to Northland Distributors, Inc., Fargo, for a 16-yard refuse box for the city sanitation department truck.

The front-end loader was purchased on a total cost basis for $24,950. The contract stipulates that repairs and maintenance are to be handled by the seller for a period of five years or 5,000 hours of operation, with a guaranteed buy - back price of $13,500 after five years. The refuse box was purchased for $5,290. There were five bidders for each contract.

Tuesday's meeting was a continuance of a regular meeting at which several items of action regarding the city arena took place. All bids received earlier and totaling about $722,-

ICC Orders Many Boxcars for Use In Minnesota

Congressman Odin Langen today expressed gratitude for the Interstate Commerce commission's prompt response to his request for additional boxcars in the flood-threatened areas of Minnesota. The I.C.C. has issued an order that became effective March 2," Langen said, "to distribute 1,540 boxcars a week from seven railroad companies to the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railways.

"These additional cars are badly needed by these two railroads, which serve the flood threatened areas of Minnesota," Langen said. He has been in constant contact with the I.C.C., railroads and other governmental agencies in an effort to anticipate any problems that may arise from the spring thaw of heavy Minnesota snows.

"With these boxcars available to the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, we should be in a good position to move grains and other commodities in a hurry should an emergency develop."

Communities In Flood Plains Are Urged to Prepare

Minnesota conservation department today urged communities located on the flood plains of state rivers to plan now on measures to be taken should serious flooding occur.

Eugene Gere, director of waters, soils and minerals, said that while it is still too early to accurately predict the magnitude of spring floods, "it is not too early to take precautions to reduce the dangers and potential damage."

A great deal depends on the amount of precipitation received in the next few weeks, as well as the pattern of thawing and freezing during the spring break up.

"If temperatures drop below freezing at night, or on occasional days, the run off will be slowed and flooding less severe. But if it thaws continuously or by substantial rainfall, we are stated.

While heavy snows early in the winter prevented the formation of deep frost, the rains this past fall saturated the soil and will limit seepage of melt water into the ground. This condition could create heavy surface runoff, Gere observed.

He recommended that arrangements be made now for men, materials and equipment which can be mobilized instantly for emergency measures such as the construction of dikes or sandbagging around buildings.

Plans should also be made in advance for the removal and temporary storage of everything which is subject to flood damage and which can be moved. "It is the nature of rivers to flood," Gere said. "The best protection is to get out of the way."

Auto License Not Deductible

Is the cost of state automobile license tags deductible? "No," states George O. Lelhert, district director of Internal revenue. "State or local motor vehicle taxes, as well as fees for drivers' licenses, are not deductible.

"However, you can deduct real estate and personal property taxes, state and local income taxes, gasoline taxes and the Minnesota state sales tax or sales taxes paid in other states.

"Taxpayers who did not keep record of Minnesota sales tax paid may refer to the sales tax tables to determine the allowable deduction, based on family size and income."

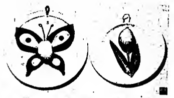
Easter Egg Hang-Ups



To brighten your Easter season, hang up these colorful "egg-plaques" to decorate the walls in your kitchen or playroom. Children love to dye eggs—a custom brought to this country by the Pennsylvania Dutch to help celebrate Pass, the Dutch word for Easter—so let them help you with these easy-to-make decorations.

To blow eggs for the plaques, use sharp-pointed skewer, ice pick or manicure scissors to make hole the size of a small pea in each end of the egg. Be sure to puncture the inner membrane. Blow through one end until contents are emptied. Rinse well and dye eggshells with cold-water fizz tablets.

To make the wall plaques, select pastel-colored paper plates. Or try something a little different. Aluminum pie plates make unusual backgrounds . . . or cut a heavy piece of cardboard and cover with construction paper or gaily-colored felt or cotton. Make hangers from pipe stem cleaners inserted through plate.

To make butterfly plaques, cut butterfly wings from construction paper. To make design, glue other shades and shapes of construction paper to wings, glue assembled wings to plate. For feelers, glue "V" shaped pipe stem cleaner into hole at largest end of egg. Glue egg to butterfly wings.

To make flower plaque, bend one end of green pipe stem cleaner into small circle and bend circle to 90-degree angle, insert other end of cleaner into pointed end of egg and pull through hole at largest end of egg. Glue cleaner into place—covering holes in eggshell. Glue eggshell to plate, being sure to let glue dry thoroughly. Cut leaves from green construction paper, crease leaves lengthwise. Glue leaves over end of cleaner to plate.

For a more elaborate flower plaque, why not make a small bouquet of flowers? Or make an "Egg-head" lady to decorate your plaque? Pass-dye a blown eggshell light pink. Make hair from yarn or crepe paper curled with scissors. Jewels, sequins, tape or felt make the eyes and mouth—or use a fabric-tipped pen to draw the facial features.

So, do your own thing this Easter and hang-up a colorful egg plaque. For further information on dyeing and decorating eggs, write to: Special Assignments Director, Paas Company, Box 377, Memphis, Tenn. 38101.

Council Adjusts Salaries and Accepts Bids

000 were rejected by the council at that meeting. The bids were reportedly rejected because the council did not want to confront the city with an additional bond issue at this time.

The city's arena architect, Thomas Hodne, was instructed to redesign an arena for which the building cost, fees and Zamboni ice surfacer would not exceed $625,000. He was asked to keep the International Falls arena in mind when designing a building within the cost range indicated.

According to William Fuhey, city clerk, the $625,000 would include about $570,000 for construction cost and the remainder for fees, ice surfacer and other costs. Part of the total fees are attributable to the prior arena design.

It is expected that bids on the redesigned building will be opened no later than May 13 or 20.

BUYER BEWARE BE WISE by DOUGLAS M. HEAD Attorney General State of Minnesota

Minnesota businessmen have recently been the target of two similar deceptive schemes, each attempting to peddle over-priced office supplies.

Businessmen in the Twin Cities area—and in other parts of the state—have received letters from a New York pencil company using deceptive direct mail solicitations.

The New York firm mails hundreds of letters to companies informing them that their names were mistakenly printed on pencils "after receiving an order from a firm similar in name to yours."

In each case, the firm states that it mistakenly printed 576 wood pencils in the company's name. But because of the error, the firm says, businessmen have the opportunity to purchase the pencils at a reduced price.

The actual price of the pencils, however, is about five cents each, a figure which is by no means a bargain.

The gimmick is not new. Identical "errors" were used by a New York pen company several years ago to increase sales, resulting in an federal trade commission order prohibiting such practices.

A somewhat different scheme is being used by New York and Los Angeles based firms to sell businessmen supplies at exorbitant prices.

Businessmen throughout the state have received long-distance telephone calls from representatives of the firms, who use phony "sob stories" to make sales.

Employees of the firms are instructed to call businessmen, give them phony distress stories get the order for pens, pencils or other office supplies and then hang up.

An employee of the New York better business bureau worked undercover at one of the firms. Her instruction sheet illustrates how the firms make their sales.

"If calling a small firm," the instruction sheet says, "try and sell him enough for four or five years, as we don't call them back. If it's a large company try for a $700 order. Just say could you help me by taking 10 gross of pens, do you use legal size carbon paper or letter size? Write down what he says, then get a purchase order number, confirm the name and address, tell him he will get the order next week and get off the phone. Don't let him call you back. You call him again."

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

During the 1960's, there has been a worldwide upsurge of venereal diseases, gonorrhea and syphilis. In the United States, the incidence of gonorrhea and syphilis has risen so rapidly that venereal disease now represents the most serious communicable disease problem, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

More than one million new cases of gonorrhea develop annually and the increase rate of syphilis is averaging 200 per cent per year. Large cities in particular show a tremendous increase in venereal disease; some as high as 800 per cent.

(The term "Venereal disease" usually refers to syphilis and gonorrha although there are a number of others common elsewhere in the world which occur infrequently in the United States.)

One of the greatest hazards of venereal disease is its insidious onset. Neither syphilis nor gonorrhea may be painful or incapacitating giving no indication of the permanent damage that can follow.

A venereal disease is communicable, spreading by intimate contact. Although each is contracted through intimate contact, gonorrhea and syphilis have different causes and effects.

Syphilis is caused by a corkscrew-shaped organism called a spirochete. It is a disease affecting the whole body. Sores appear on the skin or mucous membranes. Gonorrhea is caused by a coffee bean-shaped organism. It is usually a disease affecting the genital and urinary tracts but may involve the joints, heart and other organs.

Germs causing syphilis and gonorrhea die quickly outside of the body, therefore, contracting venereal disease from door-knobs, dishes, eating utensils or public toilets is unlikely. Venereal disease, however, can be contracted from sores on the skin and on mucous membranes of body openings and the genital areas of an infected person.

Penicillin and other antibiotics can cure venereal disease. But, it is only with the patient's cooperation in seeking early medical treatment that venereal disease can be diagnosed promptly and treated with antibiotics before permanent damage occurs, says the Minnesota State Medical Association.

U of M Guernsey Herd Tops U.S. Milk Production

Guernsey dairy herd at the University of Minnesota's Rosemount agricultural experiment station had the highest herd milk lactation average in the nation in the Guernsey breed last year for herds with 30 to 50 records.

The Rosemount experiment station herd averaged 14,072 pounds of milk and 676 pounds of fat on a mature equivalent, 305 day, 2x basis with 37 records.

Charles Young, associate professor of animal science at the University of Minnesota, says this herd has been used in breeding experiments to compare outcrossing and linebreeding since 1961.

Outcrossing involves using bulls that have little ancestry to the cows to which they are bred. Line breeding is the mating of related cows and bulls to intensify the inheritance of ancestors that are outstanding. In the breeding experiments, the outcross group of cows was bred to the best AI (artificial insemination) sires in the nation based on their predicted difference for milk yield.

Of the 37 records used to compute the herd average, 19 were made by daughters of the first three outstanding sires used in the outcross program. These records averaged 15,029 pounds of milk and 701 pounds of fat.

The 18 records made by the cows that had been linebred averaged 13,061 pounds of milk and 649 pounds of fat.

Young says this shows that milk production can be improved in a short period of time through breeding practices. He recommends that commercial dairymen use top predicted difference sires in an outcrossing program to raise milk production in their herds.

Beaver and Otter Trapping Seasons Are Announced

Beaver and otter trapping regulations for 1969 have been announced by Richard Wettersten, state game and fish director. The beaver season runs from 6 a.m., March 15, to 6 p.m., April 28. Otter may be taken from 6 a.m., April 11, to 6 p.m., April 28.

Some of the area which was open to beaver and otter trapping last year will be closed this season. Certain townships along the North Shore streams in Cook, Lake and St. Louis counties will be closed. All of Mille Lacs and Morrison counties will be closed, and most of Itasca county, part of northwestern St. Louis county and the Mississippi river bottoms south of Wabasha and east of the CMSTP&P railroad tracks.

Otter may be taken only in parts of the northeastern and north central counties. Otter trapping is prohibited in the areas closed to beaver trapping. A map showing open and closed beaver and otter trapping areas will be available at the county auditor offices.

All statutory game refuges in the open area except the Bemidji, Beltrami county, Paul Bunyan, Hubbard county, and Sandstone and Pine county refuges No. 1, 2 and 4 are open to beaver trapping.

All beaver taken by licensed trappers must be tagged at the sites where trapped with a self-locking metal tag issued with the beaver trapping license. This tag is to be attached to the pelt by inserting it through the mouth and out the eye and locked. After the beaver have been tagged at the sites where trapped, they may be transported only by the licensee until sealed by a conservation officer.

All beaver and otter pelts must be submitted to a conservation officer or other authorized agent of the game and fish director for inspection and for the purpose of affixing a metal locking seal to each pelt. This must be done not later than two days after the close of the beaver and otter trapping seasons.

No more than 10 beaver or more than three otter may be taken by any one licensed trapper during the season.

Trappers are reminded that no license to take beaver may be issued to any person after the third day of the open season. Otter trappers must have the regular trapping license. Both beaver and otter trappers must have small game hunting licenses unless they are trapping on land where they reside.

Wettersten said the beaver trapping season was set on the basis of information obtained from 2,300 miles of aerial census flown during the month of October, and on extensive reports from the field including contacts with trappers throughout the state.

He said some trappers have objected to the use of snowmobiles on trap lines. The machines are used to gain access to remote beaver colonies. "Use of snowmobiles will be allowed," Wettersten said, "but field personnel will observe this practice closely during the 1969 season to see if it results in an excessive take of beaver."

Timber Cutting On State Lands Aids Deer Herd

Logging operations were carried out on approximately 42,000 acres of state-owned forest land in widely scattered areas during the past two years, the conservation department reported today.

A forestry spokesman said much of the timber was harvested during the winter and the trimmings and branches provided an important food source for hungry deer.

Timber cutting has also encouraged the growth of young trees and brush and will improve the areas for deer during the coming years.

Prescribed burning, a relatively new forest and game management technique, has also been used to improve habitat on more than 3,500 acres during the past few years.

Such burning is done as a vegetation management measure and is strictly controlled by forestry crews to prevent spreading. Some of the prescribed burning sites are producing good quality deer browse at the present time, foresters said.

Good Housekeeping's "Complete Book of Needle-craft" (new) goes beyond the scope of most of the books in the sewing section. It takes you step by step from start to finish, whether your interest is needlepoint, weaving, knitting, tatting, quilting, rug - making or anything else that will qualify as needlework. Twelve of these arts are included, together with beautiful illustrations, many of them in color, to provide motivation for trying your skill at producing something quite as picture - perfect as the samples before you.

Surprisingly fascinating is "The Life Story of the Fish" by Brian Curtis. Perhaps, like I did, you will pick up the book without the slightest flutter of interest, and then find yourself completely engrossed in it. Did you know, for example, that the male sea horse (the tiny fish that looks more like a horse than a fish) carries the fertilized eggs in a pouch where his mate deposits them? When they are ready, he disgorges them, looking for all the world as if Papa is giving live birth! And that another species of fish carries the eggs in its mouth during the incubation period, literally denying itself food all the while? And that the cichlids is a species of fish in which the young return to the parents' mouths during the night, until they are literally too big to fit there? The book is crammed with just this kind of information which, though not earth-shaking, is nevertheless fun to read.

"With Malice Toward All" is the offering of the Mystery Writers of America, its annual anthology. Top - flight authors in the field, the cream of the crop, have the best of their offerings bafflement, and entertainment of all mystery fans, whether they like one kind of mystery or the other. Robert Fish edits the collection, hence it's found in the fiction section with the F's.

Books for Teenagers

Haverhold's "Undertow" is a novel of conflict in the life of a Norwegian boy who, in spite of the objections of his father, goes to spend the summer with a friend, Ulf, a sort of beachbum. They plan a lazy summer with nothing to do but enjoy being useless and lazy, soaking up the summer sun. But Jorn, the hero, had no way of knowing that Ulf's parents wouldn't be around, they would be completely on their own, and that Ulf was an unsavory character that no decent boy would tie to. The story gets right up, travels fast, in a clipped and tensed up style. You'll hardly dare breathe for the tightness of it, especially in the episode of the night without stars when Jorn learns a few unhappy answers to a few questions the recent past has raised in his troubled mind.

"The Secret of Stonehouse," by Lynn Hall, though some of its dialogue gets humorous, is a chiller and thriller. Your heart will be in your mouth as the heroine crawls out on the high roof in an effort to escape a would-be attacker, and the aftermath will leave you drained.

There's a paperback book "A Present From Roslin" in the teenage section that will appeal to the younger teen crowd, because it deals with a 12-year old, Roslin, a refugee from Puerto Rico. She knows all the uncertainty of a young refugee who loses her parents in a hurricane and goes to live in New York, amid its strange sights, sounds, and challenges. Some of the things she expected to enjoy bring her disappointments instead, and some of the problems she expected to encounter never did develop. As she learns to adjust to her new hom cand a strange way of life she finds herself able to cope with, what she at first thought to be an impossible situation.

Books for Children

"Beginning - to - Read Poetry" is asweetheart of a book that you'll read to the little sweethearts on your knee and lead them into slumberland. You'll have a struggle keeping them from looking at the pictures and turning off long enough to go to sleep, though (that is what happened to this librarian - grandmother) so give yourself a little extra time to do the job. One of the favorite poems, between its cover is: "Mice creep. Deer leap. Puppies bounce. Kittens pounce. Lions stalk. . .But I walk"

Kids from fourth grade on up will delight in the Lenten-slanted books, volume I and II of "The Bible Story," a gift to the library from someone who wanted to bring to children the beauty and wonder of the ages-old story of God's world and the people in it, the good and the wicked, and of the days when His sandals left their imprints on the sands of the Holy Land deserts. The vivid color illustrations give life and meaning to the text.

"Chinese Fairy Tales" will also intrigue children of this age group. All about dragons and the Thunder Spirit and dozens of other things that go to make up the strange and exciting world of make-believe which have cheered the little yellow children for many generations. The pictures are fanciful and so characteristic of this part of the world. Remember, the fairy tales are in the j398 section; this one is with the tall books that are just too big for the regular shelves and are grouped together in this part of the junior library.

Kids, hurry on in; don't miss the excitement.

Few U.S. Dairy Products Sold In World Trade

Commercial export sales of all U. S. farm products have more than doubled since 1950, but dairy farmers must rely on domestic consumption to market their products.

"It's virtually impossible for U. S. dairy products to be sold commercially outside the United States," according to University of Minnesota economist E. Fred Koller. Koller says the central Europe common market countries plus Australia and New Zealand offer stiff competition for American dairy products in the world by underpricing American products.

Since common market countries have been underpricing U. S. dairy products in world markets such as South America, about the only U. S. dairy products consumed in quantity outside of the United States are those which come under Public Law 480. These products are designed for relief use, but can also be sold for local currencies, Koller says.

This means that almost all dairy products produced by American farmers must be consumed in the U. S. In recent years milk production has declined from 127 billion pounds annually to about 118 billion pounds, most of which is consumed. The U. S government has had to buy smaller amounts of butter or other manufactured dairy products than in recent years.

Although common market countries have been underselling U. S dairy products in the world market, these countries have been over-supporting the price of milk and large surpluses have resulted. These high dairy price supports have caused many of the common market's agricultural problems. The equivalent of eight months of U. S. butter production is stockpiled in common market refrigerated warehouses.

Common market countries are considering several alternatives to correct the surplus butter situation. They may restrict production by drastically cutting price supports and encouraging dairy farmers to go into beef production. The common market commission has proposed a 36-per cent cut in butter support prices.

Another alternative would be to reduce the price of butter within the central European countries to encourage consumption. Because of high support levels, retail common market butter prices are three times as high as world levels.

Some European economic community leaders propose imposing a tax on margarine to encourage butter consumption. This would mean that fewer imports of American soybean products would be necessary for margarine production. But this policy would create serious international trade problems with U. S. soybean interests, Koller concluded.

That's how many farm families plan to convert to total or supplemental electric heating in 1969, according to a recent survey made by the research department of The Fermer magazine. According to this survey, more than eight thousand farm families in Minnesota and the Dakotes plan to install some type of electric heating in 1969. Many of them plan to convart their present heating system into an electric heating system, as thay realize that it is the most practical and modern type of heating in this area. Each room can be kept at the most desirable temperature . . . and it is clean, warm, safe and economical. There is a definite trend toward electric heat in this area. NW Bell Reports Several Records For Past Year

Northwestern Bell Telephone company added a record number of telephones in 1968 and the company's plant construction expenditures of $181 million also produced a new high, according to the firm's annual report.

A statement by A. F. Jacobson, company president, notes that the 163,100 phones gained last year was the largest increase ever. It brought the total to 3.6 million in the five states served by Northwestern Bell: Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Jacobson's statement also mentioned that total Bell system expenditures in the five states reached an estimated $195 million during the year. This would include the combined spending of Northwestern Bell, Western Electric and AT&T for such things as wages, purchases, taxes and construction. These expenditures, he said, help the economy directly and also create jobs in other industries that serve and supply the telephone business and its employees.

The report noted that use of the long distance network in the five states increased seven per cent and that business services now account for more than 50 per cent of the company's annual revenues.

Underground cable is cited in the report as one example of many developments which are helping keep costs in line while, at the same time, providing better telephone service. The company added 5,100 miles of buried cable and microwave circuits last year.

Revenues for 1968 were up 6.6 per cent and totaled $501.7 million. Expenses were a record $385.2 million. These expenses, together with operating taxes of $121 million and almost $21 million in interest and other charges, netted out to earnings of $2.39 per share of company stock, exactly matching the 1967 figure.

The report states that change is constantly creating new communications needs. This is one of the reasons, it says, that $110 million, more than three-fourths of the year's entire construction expenditures, went to improve service and expand it.

Among the many improvements made possible, the report mentions these: Larger local calling areas for about one-fourth of all the company's telephones; use of telephone facilities to communicate with computers for educational, medical and business purposes; completion of 90 new telephone buildings and building additions; and a big increase in the number of the sophisticated new electronic switching systems.

While it isn't mentioned in the 1968 report, Northwestern Bell thinks 1969 will be another record-breaking year. The company estimates that it will add more than 170,000 telephones. It expects that the 1969 construction expenditures will pass the $200 million mark and that total plant investment will stand at nearly $1.8 billion by the end of the year.

From a Handout to a Leg Up!

Villagers in Costa Rica at work with CARE tools.

The CARE package, which started out carrying food overseas to save needy people from starvation, has become a lot of other things.

A new school. A fresh water supply. A community center. A health center. A road. Tools for farming. Tools for job training. And a whole string of etceteras.

In short, while the fight on hunger goes on unabated, the CARE package has advanced from a handout to a leg up to self-sufficiency. And recipients of the aid are now "partners" in the process of bringing whole communities to a higher level of development. Here's how it works.

In signed "partnership" agreements with CARE, national and local governments commit definite funds and services which are joined with like contributions from CARE donors.

Community groups pledge to give all possible local materials and volunteer labor. A CARE man administers the project and uses funds contributed by Americans to buy whatever else is needed — work tools, cement, hardware, roofing, tanks, pumps, and doors.

Thirty-four such contracts in 14 countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America have been signed or await signature, calling for $524,000 in local funds, $2,344,000 in CARE materials.

Here are some things that will result this year: in Honduras, 400 school classrooms; in Guatemala, pure water for 30 villages plagued by polluted water supplies; in Chile, elementary school graduates trained as cabinet makers in 90 new workshops.

For the people and nations helped, the partnership spurs initiative and further growth on their own. For CARE donors, their dollars provide maximum aid that breaks the tragic cycle of hunger, poverty, illiteracy and disease.

BUYER BEWARE BE WISE

by DOUGLAS M. HEAD
Attorney General
State of Minnesota

Bait-and-switch selling is probably as old as advertising itself. Yet, it remains a highly effective—and highly deceptive—selling device.

The bait is an enticing advertisement.

A young St. Paul couple, for example, recently read an ad for a new sewing machine priced at only $46. The ad asserted that the machine was capable of a variety of stitches and carried a guarantee.

The wife called the listed phone number and was told that a company representative would call upon them to demonstrate the machine.

The representative arrived at their home the following night, carrying a small, black sewing machine. He announced that he was not a salesman. "And I'm going to tell you right off," he said, "that this isn't much of a machine."

While the puzzled couple watched, the representative began his demonstration of the machine. Shaking his head back and forth, he said, "I don't like the way that sounds."

If the couple were not then sufficiently discouraged from thoughts of buying the machine, the representative clinched the con sale by stating that the machine could not sew materials heavier than cotton.

Then came the switch.

The representative said he just happened to have a machine in his car he could sell at a once-in-a-lifetime bargain price. He walked out to his car and returned with what appeared to be a brand new machine.

The representative explained that he had repossessed the machine just that night. He turned it on, it ran smoothly. He demonstrated the many stitches that it could make.

He told the couple the machine normally sold for $304, but he would let them buy it for only $150. He explained that the person from whom the machine had been repossessed had made about half of the payments. His company, he said, was interested only in making up the difference between the payments made and the sales price.

He added syrup to the offer by saying that they wouldn't have to pay $150 cash. They would have to pay only $5 as downpayment and $10 a month.

But, the representative warned, they would have to decide immediately. He had another appointment scheduled that night with a party who, he said, would certainly be interested if they weren't.

That was enough to clinch the sale. The couple paid him $5 in cash and signed a contract for the balance.

But a bargain it wasn't.

They could have purchased an identical machine from a regular dealer for the same price, or less. And, in addition, they would have had a reputable dealer standing behind the guarantee.

They were victims of bait-and switch selling.

The man who came to their door was a salesman—despite his assertions to the contrary. He never intended to sell the advertised $46 machine. It was advertised as bait. His statements about the poor quality of the machine were not the product of an irresistible propensity to honesty.

Once he had discouraged the couple from buying the advertised machine, he had their audience for the $150 machine. Also, by downgrading the cheaper machine, he had built up his credibility—making it easier for him to convince the couple he was offering a rare bargain.

Northland Ends Wrestling Year

by Daryl Augustine
Times Reporter

Northland state junior college matmen wound up their season this past weekend with four wrestlers participating in the National Junior College Athletic association wrestling tournament held in Worthington. Wrestlers from junior colleges throughout the nation participated in the event.

Northmen ended their season with two wins and eight losses in Region VIII competition. They placed third in the conference tournaments with three championships and second in the U.N.D. Sioux invitational tournament with three champion wrestlers.

Representing the Northmen at Worthington were Bruce Nordhagen at 137 pounds, Don Sollom at 152 pounds, Les Olson at 160 pounds, and Lynn Marek at 191 pounds. Nordhagen, Olson and Marek were defeated in the first rounds of the consolation round, and Sollom won his first match with a pin.

Sollom made the pin in four minutes over Rich Barthke of Waldorf junior college in Forest City, Iowa. Sollom lost, however, in the second round to Doug Christner of Northeastern junior college in Sterling, Colo.

The match was close between Lynn Marek and Mark Soden of Northeastern until the last two minutes of the match when Soden positioned Marek for the pin with the clock showing two minutes left in the match. Soden went on to place sixth in the nation losing to Mike Bay of Joliet junior college in Illinois, who won the national championship in the 191-pound division.

No Minnesota wrestlers gained national championships, however, several placed third, fourth, fifth or sixth. Those Minnesotans wrestling in the consolation finals and gaining places were: 115 pounds—Ed Hinnan of Worthington, fourth place; 130 pounds, Ken Stockdale of Rochester, fourth place; 137 pounds, Gary Baker of Itasca, third place; 152 pounds—Al Hodgdon of Rochester, sixth place; 177 pounds, Dave VanMeveren of Worthington, fourth place and Frank Howell of Itasca, sixth place; and heavy weight—Dan Froiland of Rochester, fifth place.

115 POUNDS: Mike Cachero of Phoenix, Ariz.
123 POUNDS: Mike Shearer of Muskegon, Mich.
130 POUNDS: Terry Stuchenberg of Wahpeton, N.D.
137 POUNDS: Eddie Wells of Pendleton, Ore.
145 POUNDS: Mike Medchill of Mesa, Ariz.
152 POUNDS: Robert Pomplun of Mesa, Ariz.
160 POUNDS: Rich Maher of Middletown, N.Y.
167 POUNDS: Terry Dawson of Moses Lake, Wash.
177 POUNDS: Les Armes of Moline, Ill.
191 POUNDS: Mike Bay of Joliet, Ill.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Sophie Nelson, who passed away one year ago March 13, 1968.

What would we give if we could say,
Hello mother, in the same old way.
To hear her voice, see her smile.
So you who have a mother,
Cherish her with care,
For you'll never know the heartache,
Till you see her vacant chair.

Sadly missed by the Hesteklnd family. 1t19p

Meet Warren Tonight For District Crown

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

District 31 was assured of a new champion on Tuesday night as Warren defeated defending champion East Grand Forks by a 70-66 score. In the other semi-final game played at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse, Thief River Falls stopped Climax 66-49. Thief River Falls and Warren will meet tonight (Wednesday) for the District 31 championship at 8:30 p.m., while Climax and East Grand Forks will meet for consolation honors at 7 p.m. Both games will be at the UND fieldhouse.

Thief River Falls was led against Climax by Sheldon Joppru, as the senior center tallied 32 points to lead all players on the floor in the contest. Coach Whitey Olson pulled Joppru once again in the final four minutes of the game along with his other starters, as he let the reserves play during the final period.

Warren battled back after trailing through most of the game as they whipped the East Grand Forks Little Green Wave in a trilling 70-66 basketball game. Free throws made the difference in the game as Warren scored on 32 of 45 chances taken from the free throw line, 16 of them coming in the final eight minutes of play when they overtook the Little Green Wave which led at the end of three periods 51-42.

Thief River Falls-Climax

Thief River Falls had little trouble with the Climax Vikings on Tuesday night as they gained the finals of District 31 by stopping the Vikings 66-49. It marked the second straight year that the Prowlers and Vikings met in the semi-finals of District 31, with Climax coming out on top a year ago.

The Prowlers must have remembered that game a year ago as they took command of the game right from the start and opened up a 17-9 lead at the end of the first period. Joppru and Steve Edlund led the charge in the opening period with 14 points, as Joppru had eight and Edlund tallied six.

The Prowlers increased that lead by half time to 10 points, as Joppru continued his hot hand and added nine more points in the second eight minutes of play to bring his total at half time to 17.

In the third period the Prowlers defense held Climax to a total of seven points as Thief River Falls increased the lead to 56-32 with eight minutes to play.

The Prowlers lost Steve Edlund and Dave Kildahl by way of fouls in the fourth quarter. Having the contest well in command, coach Olson went to his bench and once again let the reserves get in some tournament play.

The big Prowler crowd-pleaser of the night came as senior guard Steve Hess, who saw limited action for the Prowlers during the season, scored his first two points of the year in the closing minutes of the contest on a jump shot from 10 feet out.

Joppru led all scorers with 32 points and played only three and one-half quarters, while reserve forward Don Balmer was the only other Prowler to reach double figures with 10 points.

Jon Haugstad led Climax with 13 points, while Andy Muhonen added 12 points in the losing cause for the Vikings.

Warren-East Grand Forks

Trailing most of the contest, for the second night in a row, the Warren Ponies came back in the final minutes to move ahead of the District 31 defending champion East Grand Forks and stop the Little Green Wave 70-66.

The Little Green Wave lost the game at the free throw line as they out-scored the Ponies from the field by a 21-19 margin, but Warren made 32 of 45 gift shots and the Green Wave made 24 of 34 shots.

Joel Engen led the Ponies to victory with 22 points, but Duane Swanson was the big gun in the final period as he tallied eight of eight from the free throw line to lead the final period surge of the Ponies. Joining Engen in double figures for the winners were Swanson with 13 and Greg Christofferson with 14 points.

Scott Gravseth and Don Johnson led four Little Green Wave players in double figures with 13 points, while Scott Rosseau and Tom Budge each tallied 10 points in the loss.

Championship Round

Thief River Falls stopped the Warren Ponies in the only meeting of the two clubs this year as the Prowlers tallied a 71-58 victory over the Ponies. The game tonight will mark the fifth time since 1925 that the two schools have met for the District 31 crown, with the Prowlers winning four times and the Ponies once.

The Prowlers in tonight's contest will more than likely go with Steve Edlund and Dave Kildahl at the forwards, with a possibility that Don Balmer could start in place of Kildahl, as he has shown some good play in the first two tournament games. Sheldon Joppru will be at center, while the guards will more than likely be Tony Johnson and Kip Poppenhagen.

Warren will more than likely go with Larry Graham and Duane Swanson at the guard spots, Greg Christofferson at center and Joel Engen and Dick Knutson at the forward spots.

First Round Action

One upset took place in the opening round of District 31 on Monday, as in the opening game of the tournament at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse, Climax stopped Crookston in overtime by a 71-66 score. The second game found Thief River Falls coming back after a slow start to whip the Goodridge Huskies by a 72-48 score. In the evening contest, defending champion East Grand Forks had little trouble from Oslo as the Little Green Wave scored a 78-57 win. In the final game, Warren just edged Fisher by a narrow 61-60 score. The four winners meet in semi-final action on Tuesday night.

Thief River Falls-Goodridge

After a slow first half start, the Thief River Falls Prowlers came alive in the second half to score 42 points as they won easily over the Goodridge Huskies by a 72-48 score.

The Prowlers, having a balanced scoring attack against the Huskies on Monday, placed three players in double figures while two others tallied eight points each in the victory. Pacing the Prowlers was center Sheldon Joppru, who tallied 21 points. The 6-1 center only played three and one-half quarters, as did most of the starting five for the Prowlers. Behind Joppru was Dave Kildahl with 11 points, and Steve Edlund added 12 points. Don Balmer and Don Brodin, seeing reserve action, tallied eight points each.

Taking scoring honors for the contest was the Huskies' Roger Blaine as he connected for 25 points. Blaine scored on nine field goals and seven free throws for his total. The most spectacular of the field goals came when the senior guard banked the ball through the hoop in attempting to pass the ball down court from near the center line. Brian Wiseth was the only other Husky to gain double figures as he tallied 10 points. Gary Anderson added eight in the loss for the Huskies.

Thief River Falls took a 12-8 lead at the end of the first quarter, but increased that lead to 29-19 at half time and came back in the third period to take a 50-34 lead.

Coach Whitey Olson started to pull his starting five—which included Kildahl and Edlund at the forwards, Joppru at center and Tony Johnson and Kip Poppenhagen at the guard spots—half way into the final period as he used the entire tournament squad.

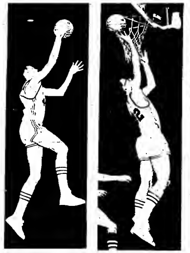
Climax - Crookston

In the opening game of play on Monday afternoon the Climax Vikings, entering the tournament with a 2-16 record, upset Crookston in overtime by a 71-66 score.

Free throws made the difference in this game as the Vikings were out-scored from the field by a 26-21 margin, but held a 29-14 margin at the gift line. The Vikings, who trailed by a 51-46 score at the end of three quarters, came back in the final period to pull within one point of the Pirates with two seconds left on the clock. A shot by Andy Muhonen, Climax guard, was no good but he was fouled on the attempt. Muhonen, who was averaging 90 per cent of free throws made during the regular season, had two gift shots. The first one he made to tie the score at 62-62, but missed the second that would have given Climax the win in regulation time.

In the overtime period the Vikings scored nine points to Crookston's four and moved into the semi-finals of the district against Thief River Falls.

The Vikings had four of five starters in double figures with a fifth starter getting eight points. Leading the Vikings was Muhonen with 24 points. Arvin Palm added 18 points, while Jon Haugstad and Dave Palm added 11 and 10 points respectively. DuWayne Lee added eight points, with four of them coming in the overtime period. Taking scoring honors for the contest was Crookston's Dave Juve, who tallied 29 points. Craig Peterson added 16 for the losing Pirates.



GOING UP FOR layups against Goodridge on Monday afternoon were Sheldon Joppru (11), left, and Dave Kildahl (32) of Thief River Falls. They were the leading scorers for the Prowlers against Goodridge, as Joppru tallied 24 points and Kildahl netted 14 points.

Game and Fish Director Urges State Control

State game and fish director Richard Wettersten has filed a statement with the US. Senate's commerce committee in support of pending bills which will guarantee the rights of states to regulate and manage fish and wildlife within their territorial boundaries.

Pointing out that the federal government owns more than seven per cent (4,058,000 acres) of the total land area of Minnesota, Wettersten said that if federal agencies were to regulate and control fish and wildlife on their holdings, the state's management programs would become complicated with the following problems:

1) If the principle of landowner control of wildlife is established, private owners would soon question the right of the state to regulate fish and wildlife on private lands.

2) Federal regulation could result in the establishment of game and fish laws in conflict with state laws and an incomprehensible maze of restrictions to confuse the sportsman.

3) If control over resident wildlife species passes to the federal government, we can expect a de-emphasis in the role of hunting and fishing in the outdoor recreation picture, as this is the direction in which federal planning agencies have been proceeding for some time.

"Since the present federal system allows for setting and changing federal policies by administrative directive, we need an expression from Congress clearly defining state's rights to manage, regulate and control resident fish and wildlife species," Wettersten said. He also said that it is fortunate that there are but few conflicts now. However, the possibilities of administrative changes at the federal level are cause for future concern.

The whitetail is the most important big game animal in Minnesota and in the United States. It is believed that we have far more deer in the U.S. now than at any time during our history as a result of management and favorable habitat.

As with the ruffed grouse, the deer is an animal of a young hardwoods forest in Minnesota, producing its greatest numbers where one finds a good combination of food and cover. Deer were found in lesser numbers or absent in parts of northern Minnesota prior to 1900 because the virgin forests of that time, heavy in pine, did not provide the habitat needed by deer. Instead we had moose and caribou, animals able to live in an old forest.

The logging and fires of 1890-1930 destroyed the old habitat and created lush new growth ideally suited for deer. The herd increased rapidly to the point where they began to starve to death in the 1930s. At that time we should have had liberal hunting seasons. We finally switched to annual seasons in the 1940s, but we still suffered winter losses in 1948, 1949 and 1950. From 1957 through 1961 we had a stretch of less than normal snowfall which allowed good fawn crops and an increase in the herd, even with increased numbers of hunters.

Despite concern by some people that the herd was going down, 64,000 deer were taken in 1955, 75,000 in 1958 and 104,000 in 1959. This harvest was twice that taken in the 1930s, the period once looked at as the "golden years" for deer. License sales and harvest continued to increase until the record-breaking year of 1965 with 127,000 deer taken by 290,000 hunters.

Then weather began to show its influence again. Three consecutive winters of above normal snowfall from 1965 thru 1967 took their toll of the deer and the fawn crop. We had not experienced such conditions in 35 years of records. As a result, the take dropped to 115,000 in 1966 and to 107,000 in 1967. Despite some grumblings from unsuccessful deer hunters, 1967 was the seventh year out of the past nine that the harvest topped 100,000 and the 35 per cent success still ranked with the best in the northeastern U.S. deer range.

In the past, deer habitat management has suffered because of lack of personnel and finances. Fortunately, good weather and a healthy herd kept up with the demand for deer. We have now reached the point, however, where three major influences are beginning to affect deer management. The first of these is increasing hunting pressure. In 1967 we sold 305,000 deer licenses. This was a seven per cent increase over 1966 and a 30 per cent increase over 1960. It is possible that if numbers of deer hunters keep increasing the take will equal or exceed the allowable harvest of about 20 to 25 per cent in parts of the state. If that occurs, the season or the hunter will have further restrictions. The other alternative is to produce more deer!

The second major influence on the herd in the next 20 years is that the northern forest, and particularly aspen or "popple" is growing old faster than it is being cut. The demand for aspen simply does not equal the growth. As the forest grows older, it provides less food for deer. By 1972, only 20 per cent of the 15 million acres of aspen will be younger than 30 years.

Only about one per cent or 200,000 acres of the forest is logged on during any one year. This means a rotation period of 100 years. For better deer habitat, this should be cut in half by doubling logging activities. However, logging depends on demand for timber and is based on economics—not deer.

The third major influence causing a decline in the habitat and the herd is that much of the aspen-birch forest is being replaced by conifers, principally spruce-fir, through natural succession. The climax forest in northern Minnesota is the spruce-fir type and its cover type eventually excludes good browse species through shading.

As the habitat gets poorer for deer and the demand for more deer by more hunters increases, it will become necessary to initiate major habitat improvements and to get far better data on deer numbers and harvest than we are getting at present. This means that game and fish money in goodly sums will have to be spent on deer programs.

At present we know what is needed and can be done to do a better job of deer management. Whether this will be accomplished will be entirely dependent upon the personnel and finances provided. We need to survey and map the existing wintering areas used by deer, begin habitat improvement along their boundaries, create and maintain wildlife openings, preserve and manage key deer yards, cut old timber by subsidy if necessary, use controlled burns to improve deer browse, and get good hunting pressure and harvest data at least on a county basis. Little of this is being done at present because there are only three game managers in the 16,500 square miles of northeastern Minnesota and big game management is only part of their job. By contrast, there are approximately 150 resource managers in the same area in public and private agencies whose objective is mainly timber management.

Wildlife Week Will Emphasize Need for Habitat

Need to protect and restore living spaces for wildlife will receive an all-out push when the Minnesota Conservation federation launches the 1969 statewide observance of Wildlife week, March 16-22.

"During the week, citizens all over the state will be encouraged to "Provide Habitat—Places Where Wildlife Lives," the theme of the observance.

State Wildlife week chairman Roger Preuss of Minneapolis said the "catastrophic" loss of natural state areas that support a large portion of the state's wildlife is due to "endless land-drainage programs, rampant pollution, enormous super highway expansion and the like.

"While it is apparent that our water and land resource will continue to be developed, every effort must be made to manage Minnesota's lands and waters so that our wildlife resource is protected as much as possible," Preuss said.

A strong effort will be made during Wildlife week to encourage habitat improvement projects, such as stream cleanup, tree and shrub planting to provide wild species with food and shelter, erecting bird nesting boxes and cleaning up junk in natural areas.

Conservation exhibits by citizens to emphasize these problems are urged as group and individual contributions to the work.

The second Information class on our United Methodist church will be conducted this Sunday at 9:30 a.m. in the parsonage, 801 N. Main. Any persons considering uniting with our church are cordially invited to join us in this informal discussion group this Sunday.

All of our church families are reminded to keep up daily with their Lenten self-denial coin folders. If it is a sacrifice for you, let it remind you of the supreme sacrifice Christ made for you.

In checking our seating capacity last Sunday morning, we discovered there is just room enough for YOU, so join with us in worship in God's House this Sunday morning.

IN MEMORIAM: GRANDPA

Exodus 20:1-17

Matthew 5:17-20
Matthew 5:21-26

Matthew 5:33-37

They sent all the way to Boston for that special piece of glass. Look closely, and you may see it in the east front window. From inside you can read the inscription: "In Memoriam . . ." and then his name.

Grandpa called himself "a retired handy-man." But in those days lumber was cheap and labor wasn't. So when they said "we can't afford to build a church," Grandpa disagreed.

"Get me the boards and a few strong fellows to set the beams. I'll build your church," said Grandpa!

Before he finished, there were fifty men and lots of dollars to help him. You can see why they sent all the way to Boston for a piece of glass.

Grandpa is gone. Yet the Christian who is eager to put his faith into action is still able to share God's blessings with hundreds of his neighbors . . . and posterity as well!

"Let us neither express, nor cherish, any harsh feelings toward any citizen who by vote or voice, has differed with us. Let us at all times remember that all Americans are brothers of a common country. I would add that too much reliance is placed on mass demonstrations. They excite prejudice and close the avenues to sober reasons." —Abraham Lincoln

Apply the Gag

Robert Shaw, manager of the Minnesota Newspaper Association, expresses the following comment about the FTC proposal to ban cigarette advertising on television:

There is good evidence—who can deny it?—that concentrated tars from tobacco smoke, when painted on the backs of mice, cause cancer in a significant number of them. There is also evidence that smoking cigarettes is one of the causes of lung cancer in human beings, and contributes to emphysema and heart disease.

At the same time, there is good evidence that drinking alcoholic beverages can result in a death of brain cells, malnutrition and cirrhosis of the liver, and is one of the main causes of murder on the highways.

There is good evidence to indicate that it's a good idea not to eat foods rich in cholesterol, because they'll clog up your arteries, make them lose their elasticity, and increase the chances of them busting.

We're getting to feel awfully old-fashioned, we who earn our living through the carrying of commercial messages to the public, when we repeat that old principle: "If it's legal to sell, it should be legal to advertise."

Lots of government officials don't think so. They figure it isn't sufficient to have cigarette manufacturers tell the public that use of the product may cause death—which the FTC is planning to do after June 30. The real way to cripple an industry, the government is finding out, is to gag it. Something of the same thing took place in June when Minneapolis city councilmen rammed through the gun control ordinance. It didn't make the selling of guns to be illegal; it did make the advertising of the selling of guns in classified pages, to be illegal.

Is the principal "if legal to sell, then legal to advertise" outdated? Or is it a responsible position to hold that if goods or services are for sale to some, then they should be for sale to all . . . and knowledge be made freely available to all, through advertising? If the cigarette industry can be damaged because its product is one of the reasons for cancer, there seems to be no logical reason why a great many other industries cannot also be damaged, in the name of the public's health.

Sure—cigarettes and guns can cause cancer and gunshot wounds. But the direct and honest way to attack the problem is to outlaw the sale of the harmful commodities themselves, not apply the gag.

Weather and Merchants

South Dakota has experienced a snow-filled winter, and the heavy snow has restricted travel throughout much of that state. That situation forms the background for an editorial in the Scotland Journal at Lennox, S.D., but the content can be applied to residents of any community almost any time. The Journal editorial follows:

This weather—oh, this weather—gives us reason to think about our hometown merchant a bit. He's that fellow who has done his best these past couple months to supply you and your family with the essentials during this prolonged inclement weather we have been having.

Contrary to what some people may believe, the local merchant has been here all the time. Even when the weather was ideal and it was a pleasant jaunt to the nearest "mall" or "shopping center," your hometown merchant was here for your convenience, ready to serve you in a pleasant and efficient manner with quality merchandise which in many instances he was selling at lower prices than were to be found at those more glamorous places . . . and that's not counting your travel expenses and time wasted standing in line.

If you're one of those folks who hadn't seen the inside of your hometown merchant's store until the weather got bad, you're still given courteous service when you do stop in. Your hometown merchant isn't going to remind you that he hasn't seen you around for a while. He will be happy to see you and serve you and will refrain from mentioning the fact that perhaps the only time he is good enough for some folks is when the weather gets so bad that they can't get any further than his store. He won't say it, but we just did.

A while back we had called to our attention a definition or a description of the home town merchant. Conditions being what they are right now, we thought it would be a good time to reprint this information.

The home merchant? Who is he? He is the chap who gives you credit when you are financially broke, and carries your account until you are able to pay.

He is the chap who gives you back your money or makes exchanges when you are not satisfied with what you have bought.

He is the chap who meets you at the door with a handshake, and let's you go out with a message to the "kids" and a real "come again, goodbye."

He is the chap whose clerks live in the town and spend their money with you and your other local people.

He is the chap who hleps support churches and charitable organizations and talks of the hometown and boosts for it every day of the year.

He is the person who visits you when you are sick, sends flowers to your family when you die, and follows your body out among the trees as far as human feet can travel.

He is the home merchant—your neighbor—your friend—your helper in time of need.

Don't you think you ought to trade with him, and be his friend and helper in time of need? (Good weather or bad.)

Don't you know that the growth and prosperity of this community depends very largely upon the success and prosperity of the home merchant?

Out of town people judge our city by the degree of enterprise shown by our stores and the degree of enterprise shown by our merchants. And our home merchants succeed when home folks give them total support.

Thanks to Whom?

From the Chicago Tribune comes the following editorial:

Among the many great achievements of the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations, according to the valedictory report of Johnson's Council of Economic Advisers, was a sharp reduction in unemployment.

Eight years ago, 7.7 percent of the labor force was out of work, a rate that today would mean 6.5 million unemployed. In fact, only 2.5 million are without jobs. The implication is that the government - created conditions which led to the employment of four million people who might otherwise be unemployed.

Dr. Melchior Palyi, a noted Chicago economist, dissects this implication in the current issue of the Commercial and Financial Chronicle.

The first thing Dr. Palyi points out is that 535,000 more troops are "employed" in Vietnam than when Kennedy took office. Did the Administration deserve credit for creating this great opportunity for employment and travel in the Far East? We would hardly classify it as an economic triumph.

Next, Dr. Palyi points out that there was an increase of about one million in other Federal employment—military and civilian after 1960. And finally, nearly two million new jobs were created in the State and local government bureaucracies. Add the half million and the one million and the nearly two million, and you will find that 3.1 million of the country's new jobs in the last eight years were financed directly out of the taxpayer's pocket.

This leaves what Dr. Palyi calls a "genuine" decrease in unemployment of only about 600,000 out of the four million.

But how "genuine," he inquires, was even this? Directly or indirectly, about 80 cents out of every dollar spent by government turns up ultimately in somebody's paycheck. Federal and local spending combined is now running about $120 billion a year more than in 1960—most of the increase being in the Federal sector.

Subtract $31 billion, which is what the 3.1 million new jobs were consuming if they averaged $10,000 each, which is a generous estimate, and you have $86 billion left. Take 80 percent of this, and you have about $69 billion more in government money which was filtering into people's paychecks, either in pay raises or by creating new jobs.

This could easily account not only for the remaining 600,000 jobs for which the Democrats took credit, but for a few million others as well. This is not the way to create a healthy, self-sufficient, job-producing economy.

CAPITOL COMMENT

BY
MARTY McGOWAN

As the mid-point in the current legislative session approaches a tabulation on progress shows little of substance achieved. This is not unusual at this time of the session, for all the major legislation is crammed into the final week of the session no matter how long it meets.

One point on which the current session is ahead is on introduction of bills. A check made at the third week of February showed 683 bills had been introduced in the senate and 838 had been introduced in the house. This is a total of 492 more bills introduced than at the same time in the 1967 session. At the same time in February this year the governor had signed 16 bills into law.

Among the bills introduced this session is a package of 11 bills dealing with reorganization of the executive branch of state government. First hearing in the house on these bills was held last week with Lieut.-Gov. James Goetz making a general presentation. As mentioned here recently, he has been assigned the task by the governor of shepherding these bills through the legislature.

Lip service has been paid to this matter of government reorganization in the past. There have been a few scattered bills on the subject, but this is the first time that can be recalled when such a concerted effort has been made with a complete package of bills.

Authorship of the bills is powerful. Some of the bills bear the names of the speaker of the house and the majority leader, Rep. Leloyd Duxbury and Rep. Aubrey Dirlam. Others bear the name of Rep. Robert Renner, chairman of the Government Operations committee, to whose committee the bills were sent.

Indicating their importance, Rep. Renner has named a seven-man sub-committee to begin detailed hearings on the bills. He named himself chairman of the sub-committee, which begun two-hour hearings at 8 a. m. Friday. Rep. Renner has indicated publicly something will come out of all this activity and if he says so, that is likely to be the case. Rep. Renner had developed the reputation and the prestige to back such a statement.

Speaking in support of the package of bills, Lieut.-Gov. Goetz made some telling points. He noted that the governor of Minnesota is charged with carrying out certain responsibilities but he doesn't always have the power or authority to carry out those charges. For example, there are something like 118 separate offices and bureaus which report to the governor or are under his authority. If the governor tried to meet with all of them to work out policies the chief executive desired it would take him a week of meetings with only 20 minutes for each one to make the rounds. Not much can be done in 20 minutes.

The package of bills would centralize authority in distinct departments, with only the heads of those departments reporting to the governor. Thus it is contended it would be possible for the governor and the public to determine who is directly responsible for a given problem and where to go for solutions. Terms of office of department heads would be coterminous with the governor and they would serve at his pleasure, thus eliminating carryovers from other administrations and making department heads more responsive to the governor. Lieut.-Gov. Goetz said that under present conditions it is often difficult for the governor to get the attention of these heads of independent agencies.

Looking around the room at the opening hearing it was possible to see the heads of various departments watching to see if they were going to lose their identity, to be swallowed up in some larger agencie. The Pollution Control Agency wants to remain independent, not become part of the Agriculture department. The Council on Aging wants to retain its identity, and not be lost in the Public Welfare department. The Livestock Sanitary Board was represented. The Secretary of state was there with arguments why he should be elected and not appointed. The commissioner of education has issued public statements why he should not be appointed by the governor instead of the board of education to keep politics out of his department.

So the battle lines are drawn. At stake is a determination of whether Minnesota will have a highly centralized executive department or one that is sprawling with the authority diffused.

Legis Lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

House File No. 1, the interim commission retirement bill for teachers, was heard before the House Appropriations Committee on Friday, February 28th. The Education Subcommittee of Appropriations considered the bill earlier in the week and recommended it to pass. The full Committee of Appropriations gave their approval and the bill will now go to the floor of the House where early and favorable action is expected. If this measure is enacted in its present form it will provide major improvement in retirement benefits. After the House completes action on this bill, it will then go to the Senate for their consideration.

In recent weeks there has been evidence that some school boards and teacher groups are unable to agree on whether or not salary negotiation sessions should be open to the public. This week hearings are being held in both House and Senate committees on a measure which would clarify legislative intent in this area of open meetings by boards and committees discussing teacher salaries. In visiting with authors of the so-called Meet and Confer Measure passed in the 1967 session, I learned that it was clearly their intent that all meetings between school board or committees thereof and teacher groups or committees thereof be open to the public. However, some misunderstanding apparently has arisen and consequently, this measure was introduced. It clearly spells out that all such sessions, including meetings of so-called salary adjustment panels, shall be open to the public. I expect this bill will reach the floor of the House for final action in the very near future.

Another proposal which defines the public's right to know; the right of "freedom of information", would require that all school districts in the State of Minnesota publish a yearly budget in a form which would be prescribed by the State Board of Education in a legal newspaper of general circulation within the school district.

Authors of this measure point out that many school boards fail to provide the citizens of their district with budget information, consequently, the citizens are not informed on how their local tax dollars are being spent.

This so called budget bill has been referred to the House Committee on Education, and I am sure that a hearing will be scheduled in the very near future.

Many taxpayers are not aware of how their tax dollar is spent but the bulk of your tax money, both on the state level and locally, is spent for the support of our educational system.

ONCE UPON A TIME there was a semi-trailer truck who really wanted to be a freight train. On Saturday at 8 a.m. the urge became too strong to resist. When the truck's driver, Wilmer Thomas Short of Hamilton, Ont., diverted his attention to pick up an object from the floor, the truck decided to become a train. It veered off the left side of highway 59 about eight and one-half miles north of Thief River Falls and headed for the Soo Line tracks. Loaded with general freight, the truck plowed through snow more than three feet deep for a distance of about 390 feet but didn't quite make the grade. Attempts to move the truck with a wrecker failed when the cable broke, and a Payloader was brought into use before the truck could be pulled from the tracks about noon. At least one train was delayed by the truck's presence on the tracks. Damage to the truck was estimated at about $200 by the state highway patrol which investigated the incident.

Board Acts To Aid Two Villages in Improvements

To permit the villages of Goodridge and St. Hilaire to continue efforts toward establishing sewer and water facilities, the Pennington county board of commissioners voted at the regular meeting to include the two villages in county planning. Inclusion is necessary in order for St. Hilaire and Goodridge to receive planning and project funds.

Appearing before the board with the request for inclusion were representatives of the Farmers Home administration which is authorized to make loans and grants for the program. Initial action has been taken for securing funds at St. Hilaire.

Bids were opened by the board on a front-end loader but were tabled until March 18. Seven bids were received and the board is studying various aspects of the bids before making a decision.

A call for bids on radio equipment for the county highway department was authorized. The system would involve a tower and mobile units for the department's vehicles. An estimated expenditure of $15,000 would include 10 mobile units, according to C. W. Rodekuhr, county auditor. The tower system could also be used by school buses should the school decide to use radio equipment.

A contract agreement with the St. Louis county work farm for holding county prisoners was approved at $3.82 per day. Bids were called for diesel fuel and gasoline with bids to be opened April 8 at 11 a.m.

Approval was also given to the county mental health budget of $228,800, with the county's share being $5,374.05. While the total budget is up considerably, the county's share is reduced from $9,870 the previous year.

Joe Siedel, county highway engineer, was authorized to set road restrictions where necessary beyond the legal required limits.

Bill To Permit Split Liquor Is Passed in House

Passed in the House of Representatives last week, a bill which would permit both municipal and private liquor in individual communities has been tabled in the Senate.

Rural and suburban legislators combined strength Monday to tack the split liquor amendment on a bill passed by the Senate. Vote on the amendment was 78 to 37. When the bill came up for a vote in the House on Wednesday, it carried by a vote of 79-53.

After being passed by the House, the bill was returned to the Senate for concurrence, at which point it was tabled. The amendment, which is now a part of the House-adopted bill, would allow cities with municipal liquor stores to issue private on-sale licenses. It does not require a vote but would leave the matter of an election up to the governing body of the local community.

School Board Meets Tonight

Review and discussion of teacher negotiations, receipt of three teacher resignations, opening bids for school buses and review of the financial report will occupy the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening (tonight) at its regular session. The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the superintendent's office at Lincoln senior high school.

C. L. CHARLSON was named by the Thief River Falls board of education as its representative on the adjustment panel formed to consider salaries for school faculty members in Thief River Falls. Charlson, chief negotiator for the board's negotiating team, was named Wednesday evening at a special meeting of the board. Joe Forberg, a member of the local faculty, was named to represent the teachers' organization at an earlier meeting.

Goodridge Co-op Creamery Holds Annual Meeting

Lynn Hanson, John Eidelbes and Gordon Pittman were named to the board of directors of the Farmers Cooperative Creamery association of Goodridge at the annual meeting held recently. Hanson and Eidelbes were reelected and Pittman was elected to succeed Clarence Petere.

In the reorganization of the board held following the annual meeting, Orlin Hanson was reelected president with Lynn Hanson as vice president and Harry Solberg as secretary.

Net margins for the period Sept. 30, 1967, through Sept. 30, 1968, were $3,907, a considerable increase from $197 the previous year. The creamery department had total sales or marketing returns of $177,628 and other departments had sales of $26,865 for a total of $204,494. Purchases or advances totaled $186,869, leaving a gross margin of $17,624.

Operating expenses included $9,462 for the plant, $3,302 administrative, and $4,074 general. The creamery has total assets of $70,132 and total liabilities of $12,175. Capital equities total $57,956.

During the past year the creamery received 3,996,886 pounds of milk and had a total of 148,007 pounds of butterfat received in milk or cream. This was a decrease from 4,056,377 pounds of milk, and 154,068 pounds of butterfat received the previous year.

Petitioners and Board Hold Talk at Newfolden

Questions concerning the possible consolidation of the Newfolden school district with the Thief River Falls district were discussed at a meeting held Wednesday evening in Newfolden. The meeting was requested by the petitioners seeking consolidation and arranged by Gene Kjellberg, superintendent of the Newfolden school.

While considerable discussion took place at the meeting, to which representatives of the Thief River Falls board had been invited and did attend, no changes are being contemplated by either the petitioners or the Newfolden school district. Thief River Falls board members expressed a desire not to become involved in the question of consolidation since it is a Newfolden district matter.

The petition for consolidation, containing 148 names of Newfolden residents, has been filed with the Marshall county superintendent of schools, John O. Pearson, at the courthouse in Warren. He is to submit a plat of the proposed consolidation to the state department of education for acceptance, rejection or modification. If approved by the state department, the plat would have to be approved by both the Newfolden and Thief River Falls boards of education. If not approved by both, there would be no further action.

In the meantime, Newfolden board of education is continuing its plans to open bids March 18 on sale of $1,450,000 in bonds for construction of a new high school in Newfolden. There has been no indication what effect, if any, the consolidation petition will have on the bond sale.

Supt. Kjellberg, in discussing the Wednesday evening meeting with the Times last week, indicated that the session provided for an exchange of information which apparently had not been disseminated enough before. Much of this was in regard to cost of the building bond issue to taxpayers in the district. Additional mills for building costs had been added to the taxes this year, he said, since some fees connected with the building are due and payable. Some taxpayers had believed the additional levy for building had not been added to the total levy for this year, and would cause a big increase in taxes next year.

Also attending the meeting was B. N. Hendrickson, consultant in school district organization for the Minnesota department of education. He clarified laws on elections, consolidation and other matters which have been or might be encountered in the Newfolden district situation.

Chester Larson of rural Thief River Falls, a resident of the former Holt district which was consolidated with Newfolden on Jan. 27, 1968, acted as spokesman for the petitioners at the meeting.

An information sheet distributed by the state education department lists the 1968 assessed valuation of the Newfolden district at $1,464,062—including $1,187,834 agricultural and $276,228 non-agricultural. The Thief River Falls district valuation is listed as $4,551,029—including $938,230 agricultural and $3,612,799 non-agricultural. Combined valuation of the two districts is listed as $6,015,091.

Oklee Mfg. Co. Buys Quilting Equipment

Wallace Groberg, president of Oklee Manufacturing company, stated recently that a quilting department has been definitely decided upon and the firm has purchased two Parodis 60-inch multineedle quilting machines.

This equipment will be used to sew the polyester fiber-fill to the lining of snow suits and other outer-wear manufactured in Oklee and other northern Minnesota plants making similar products, according to a story in the Oklee Herald.

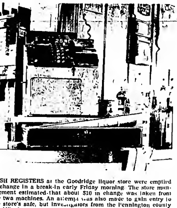
Final decision to purchase this equipment came about with a commitment from Polaris Industries at Roseau to have some of their needs handled at OMC.

Closest source for having quilting done is at Minneapolis and this has resulted in both Oklee and Thief River Falls garment plants acquiring semi-trucks to handle the bulky materials. It is believed that the Oklee facilities will serve a definite need to present and future makers of sportswear. The machines will also be able to produce a long list of other products such as mattress covers, bed spreads, sleeping bags, etc.

Projected plans for the department are three workers to be employed and a two shift basis, resulting in six new jobs. The makers of the Parodis equipment are located in New Jersey and delivery has been promised by May 10th.

Location of the quilting department will be in Oklee Village, provided construction can be completed for presently planned housing; otherwise it will be located at the original rural plant near Brooks.

CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE was done to the safe in the office of the Goodridge school during an attempted burglary early Friday morning. The would-be thief gained entry to the school through an auditorium door on the west side of the building and used an acetylene torch from the school's shop in an attempt to cut into the safe. Papers in the safe caught fire and were extinguished with water, according to investigators, causing damage from both fire and water. The thief gave up before actually opening the safe and reportedly took nothing else from the school.



CASH REGISTERS at the Goodridge liquor store were emptied of change in a break-in early Friday morning. The store management estimated that about $10 in change was taken from the two machines. An attempt was also made to gain entry to the store's safe, but investigators from the Pennington county sheriff's department and state bureau of criminal apprehension said the burglar "didn't even come close" to getting into the safe.

Kennedy School Board, Faculty Settle Salaries

Members of the Kennedy school faculty met recently and decided to accept the last salary offer of the Kennedy school board. The Kennedy school is one of the first in this area and also one of the first in the state to settle salary differences.

While the monetary end of the salary schedule has been accepted by the teachers, there are still a few items involving school policies and other minor items to be worked out, reports the Kennedy Star.

The accepted proposal calls for a $6,300 base for BS degree teachers plus Blue Shield hospitalization at the single rate. Teachers not desiring the hospitalization may start at $6,400. It also called for $225 yearly increments with a maximum raise for any member not to exceed $900. The maximum salary for a B.S. degree is $8,725 on the tenth step.

The starting salary for a B.S. plus 30 hours graduate work is $6,500 with a maximum of $8,850. The starting salary for an M.S. degree is $6,700 to a maximum of $9,200.

Two-year degree teachers will receive 75 per cent and three year degree teachers 85 per cent of the B.S. degree salary.

Plummer Co-op Creamery Will Pay Out Equities

Annual meeting of the Plummer Cooperative Creamery association will be held Monday, March 24, at 1:30 p.m. in the Plummer community hall.

Purpose of the meeting is to hear the annual financial report, elect two directors to fill the expired terms of Anthony Schiefert and Leo Eskell and pay a total of about $16,000 in equities to the stockholders.

Make Adjustment In Mail Service

Due to service adjustments now being made in the Thief River Falls postal department, delivery on the city and rural routes will be affected, according to R. J. Dryden, postmaster. Some patrons will receive their mail at the same time that they do now, but others may receive theirs earlier or later in the day.

Cause of this adjustment is the delay in mail coming to Thief River Falls from the Minneapolis - St. Paul area. Since Thief River Falls is a sectional center, the zip code mail coming from other parts of the country has to be sorted here.

Area mail carriers are leaving the post office in the city later than before and this is the main reason why patrons will be getting their mail later, Dryden said.

4 eggs
Powdered sugar

Method: Drain blueberries, reserving 1 cup syrup for sauce. Rinse blueberries and drain well. In large mixer bowl, combine dry cake mix, yogurt and eggs; blend one minute at low speed. Beat two minutes at medium speed, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Carefully fold in well-drained blueberries. Pour batter into a generously greased and lightly floured 10-inch bundt or tube pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 45 minutes, until top springs back when touched lightly in center. Cool cake 15 minutes before removing from pan. Cool completely; sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve with sauce and if desired with whipped cream.

Sauce

¼ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 cup of the reserved blueberry syrup

Method: In small sauce pan, combine sugar with cornstarch. Gradually stir in reserved blueberry syrup (if necessary add water to syrup to make one cup). Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly until thickened and clear.

(Pineapple batter cake mix may be substituted for lemon batter cake mix. Add one teaspoon lemon extract, if desired).

Mrs. Wyman stated that this was the third time that she had won a trip to the Bake-Off in the last four years. She had entered two or three times before that, was a state finalist once, but didn't win a trip. In 1965, she went to San Francisco to bake a chocolate cake but didn't win any prizes. In 1967 she won $1,000 prize in the best-of-class [illegible] with her "[illegible] Prune Loaf." The following year, she didn't go to the Bake-Off, but in June of that year, she went to the National Chicken Cooking contest in the state of Virginia. However she didn't return with an "golden eggs".

Regarding the Bake-Off trips, Mrs. Wyman said, "The trips are wonderful, as first class as Pillsbury can make it, right down to the spending money. At the three day event, Pillsbury and General Electric treat the finalists to banquets, sightseeing and other entertainment, plus running them through such rituals as shopping for their ingredients, which they don't pay for. Once the contest begins, the finalists must bake their recipes at least twice, once for the judges and once for the photographers. The completed entries identified with only a number, are handed through the guarded doorway and the judges' eating orgy begins."

Mrs. Wyman began creative cooking at an early age as her mother let her have the run-of-the-kitchen. Her earliest creation, radish stew, turned out to be a bitter disappointment.

Although the Wymans live in the town of Pembina, they are engaged in farming. She assists with various jobs from tractor and truck driving to running errands. During the busy season, she takes the meals out to the farm.

In addition to farming, Mr. Wyman roadtests and passes final inspection on buses that are built by Motor Coach, a bus factory in Pembina.

Mrs. Wyman stated that their four children have all discovered the fun of creative cooking. Dave, 17, specializes in pizzas and pancakes; Laurie, 10, makes cookies, cakes and popcorn balls; and Darren, 7, and Kevin, 6, love to work with yeast doughs when she is busy baking. The yeast dough creations, aren't always edible.

Mrs. Wyman's hobbies are oil painting, sewing, gardening and a little golf. She has exhibited some of her paintings at art shows. In addition to her hobbies, she is active in homemakers club, civic organizations and church work, which includes being secretary and treasurer for the Sunday school.

Mrs. Wyman concluded by saying that the $10,000 cash prize will help with the future education of their children.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Collins entertained at dinner on Sunday at their home. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Quesnell and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Collins and son, John. The event was in observance of the birthdays of Mrs. Quesnell and Lowell Collins.

The first annual northern Minnesota travel and vacation industry trade show will be aimed at bringing together hundreds of diverse suppliers to the state's thousands of food, lodging and recreation businesses in northern and central Minnesota.

Space for over 200 exhibit booths is being provided for manufacturers and distributors of institutional foods and food service equipment, lodging furnishings, maintenance and recreational vehicles, play equipment, buildings and building materials, maintenance equipment and supplies and resale items.

According to the show's general chairman, Bob Kohl, "the show will help professionalize Minnesota's fast - expanding travel and vacation industry through direct contact with new products, new methods and new sources of supply."

The show will be open to the general public to accommodate summer home owners and those who might be considering travel and vacation enterprises.

Find RLF Youth Not Guilty of Two Burglaries

A Marshall county jury found Robert Hamlin, Red Lake Falls, "not guilty" of burglary of the [illegible] and Vern's Standard service in Warren, in the lone jury action during the February term.

The case was tried before Judge Harley G. Swenson Monday and went to the jury for its verdict at 2:15 p.m., Tuesday. The verdict was returned at 6:30 p.m., according to Miss Sandra Brekkestran, deputy clerk of court. C. L. Charlson of Thief River Falls represented the defendant.

Wayne Hodahl, Thief River Falls, pled guilty to a charge of receiving stolen property before Judge Swenson Tuesday and was given a 90 day jail sentence and then placed on probation for one year under the state probation agent.

After the trial Tuesday, Judge Swenson dismissed the petit jury for the remainder of the court term unless notified to return to try other actions before the court, Miss Brekkestran said.

Mondale Urges Support Raise On Milk Prices

Sen. Walter F. Mondale has urged Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin to raise the support price of manufactured milk to a full 90 per cent of parity.

In a letter to the secretary, Mondale asked for action prior to the beginning of the new marketing year that begins on April 1. He wrote:

"Nationally, milk production is still declining, with preliminary 1968 production figures showing 117,811 million pounds for the calendar year, down 1.2 per cent from calendar 1967.

"In addition, I believe that in the next few months parity computations will justify a 90 per cent of parity equivalent price support level of at least $1.50 per hundredweight or some 22 cents above the $4.28 manufactured milk support level set by Secretary Freeman near the end of 1968."

Mondale said that the increase was also needed "to meet increased farm costs, climbing at one-half per cent a month, and to halt the exodus of dairy farmers which is continuing at an alarming rate."

He estimated that the price support hike would increase gross dairy farm income by over a quarter billion dollars annually in the 1969-70 crop year.

AAA Makes Poll Of Opinion on Highway Matters

A poll of Minnesota AAA members shows they are strongly in favor of a simple eye test for drivers upon driver license renewal, strongly oppose a bill to increase truck lengths to 65 feet on state highways and favor increasing the maximum fine for driving while intoxicated from $100 to $300.

The opinion poll, based on a sampling of the 315,000-member organization, also revealed that 90 per cent of those polled favor a law which would provide arbitration by a neutral party to settle disputes arising when municipalities veto road construction plans of the state highway department.

Complete results of the 10-question opinion poll on legislative issues were as follows, with members indicating percentage:

1. All drivers should be required to take a simple eye test every four years when they apply for renewal of their driver's license. Yes, 82%; No, 18%.
2. All drivers should take a written test on rules of the road when they apply for a renewal of their driver's license. Yes, 50%; No, 50%.
3. There should be a law requiring annual motor vehicle inspections of all vehicles for possible safety defects. Yes, 64%; No, 36%.
4. The driver license fee should be increased from the present $3 for four years to $6 for four years. Yes, 32%; No, 68%.
5. Minnesota should increase its budget for promoting tourism to our state. Yes, 60; No, 40%.
6. The fine for driving while intoxicated (DWI) should be increased from a maximum of $100 to $300. Yes, 90%; No, 10%.
7. The law giving municipalities veto power on road construction plans should be changed to provide that deadlocks be arbitrated by a neutral party. Yes, 86%; No, 14.
8. The $1-a-vehicle wheelage tax should be repealed. Yes, 72%; No, 28%.
9. The length limit of truck-trailer combinations should be increased from the present legal limit of 55 ft. to 65 ft. in order to allow for the use of double bottoms. Yes, 16%; No, 84%.
10. Any driver arrested for DWI should undergo a medical evaluation to determine whether he should be treated for alcoholism or be penalized under the law. Yes, 79%; No, 21%.

Newfolden had a 1968 agricultural tax rate of 262.7 mills and non-agricultural rate of 287.70 mills. Thief River Falls has an agricultural rate of 215 mills and non-agricultural rate of 240 mills for school purposes.

Current enrollment at Newfolden, according to the petitioners' fact sheet is 288 in the six elementary grades and 265 in the junior and senior high school.

A Newfolden citizens' committee prepared its own information sheet which was made available to the public through a number of Newfolden business places. The sheet is headed: "Questions to ask when considering whether consolidation of Newfolden and Thief River Falls school districts would result in a higher or lower tax rate."

That sheet points to the age of all or part of Northrop, Knox, Old Washington and Old Lincoln schools in Thief River Falls, asking if these buildings won't have to be replaced in the near future. It also mentions relative stability of Thief River Falls industry and Newfolden district pipeline investments. The sheet compares the agricultural tax rate of the two school districts since 1961, showing that Thief River Falls' rate was higher until the last two years. It concludes by asking if the Thief River Falls district can bring its facilities up to date without raising taxes, and what the long range picture looks like.

FHA Emergency Loan Funds Are Made Available

Congressman Odin Langen said today he is pleased that the bureau of the budget has responded favorably to his request for the release of additional moneys for the emergency fund of the Farmers Home administration. The budget bureau is releasing $25 - million to the revolving loan fund.

"The availability of this additional money offers some reassurance to our farmers who face the possibility of natural disasters this spring," Langen said. "They now will have the benefit of a more adequate source of emergency credit."

Langen asked the President and the budget bureau to release additional funds for the general operating fund of the F.H.A. as well as the emergency fund.

"While I am still hopeful that the operating fund will also receive the extra moneys appropriated by Congress last year, I am grateful but at least the emergency fund has been added, since this fund operates in the area of most imminent need," Langen said. "With farm prices remaining at low levels, our farmers need every available source of credit if they are to survive."

"A miscarriage of mercy is as much to be guarded against as a miscarriage of justice." Robert Lynd

Road to Nowhere

It is apparent, following a number of fruitless sessions, that local discussion on 1969-70 salaries for Thief River Falls school teachers has been a road to nowhere. A few faltering steps were taken early in the talks, but the seeming willingness to permit an adjustment panel to do the job which board and teacher representatives should do is, in slang parlance, a little bit "chicken".

The give and take which is supposed to be an integral part of negotiations has been absent from the talks here. In most cases the discussion has been cordial—is light of the very real differences which exist between the opposing sides—but it has been frustrating beause it has been almost totally unproductive.

Our guess is that the school board's negotiators and the local teacher's council could reach agreement without a great deal of difficulty if it was not for the state school boards association and the state teachers' association. The state associations are looking over the shoulders of all negotiators in Minnesota. Spurred by some success in its rookie year of negotiating last year, the MEA is flexing its muscles. But the MSBA is not about to have a second-year player running the show. Lines of conflict are drawn, and local affiliates of the state organizations are divided by the lines.

When hands are extended between the MEA and MSBA, it is usually done to point a finger rather than initiate a cooperative handshake. The point that children make, however, is certainly true: When you point a finger at someone else, you are pointing three fingers at yourself. Charges and counter charges between the two state bodies make interesting copy but do not contribute to the settlement of a very vital issue.

We feel that negotiations here are hampered by another situation. The board of education has a somewhat idealistic plan for education in Thief River Falls which requires quite a departure from the normal system of education as it has been practiced for years. Because the plan is new here, and there are no precedents to serve as guides, there are a number of questions which have no answers at present. This element of the unknown is a source of concern for the teachers because it involves them so deeply and directly.

To say that the school board's plan is idealistic is not to say that it is unrealistic. It can and should—and indeed, it must—work to provide better education, greater utilization of resources and result in overall cost savings. In order to work, it needs the support and confidence of dedicated educators who are convinced of its value and committed to making it work.

While negotiators from both sides have been attempting to view the black and white, definitely defined, clear-cut aspects of change, it is the gray area of the unknown and unanswerable which obscures the vision.

The school board has spoken of its proposed change in generalities and theory. The teachers are interested in practical application and where and how their jobs will change. They have the right to know, to the greatest extent possible, what their contracts will require of them. So far, they have been told they will work 12 months instead of nine and be in the school eight hours per day, and that nothing other than financial considerations will be discussed with the negotiating team because only financial matters are negotiable items.

But the key item in the whole current deadlock on negotiations is the reluctance—yea, the refusal—of either side to be the first to "give" to a significant degree. If negotiations are to take place in good faith, there should be no loss of honor in making a realistic offer from either side. The teachers admit they are asking for more than they expect to receive, and the board admits it is offering less than it expects to give, but neither the teachers nor the board will take the initiative to move toward the center from the widely divergent ends.

The fact that nearly all school districts in this northern portion of the state are "hung" in the same fashion would indicate that the state MEA and MSBA are putting the pressure on their members to "hang tight". So many districts would not be so similar in situation without coordinated effort from state-wide organizations.

It is our hope that one or the other of the opposing groups in Thief River Falls will see fit to reopen talks and make a modified offer that is somewhere in the realm of being realistic. Until now the talks have taken a circular route which have led nowhere.

This Is Today

If a person could renew every 24 hours the thoughts expressed in the following article by an unknown author, it would make a marked difference on his or her attitudes and accomplishments:

Today is here. I will start with a smile, and resolve to be agreeable. I will not criticise. I refuse to waste my valuable time.

Today has one thing in which I know I am equal with others—TIME. All of us draw the same salary in seconds, minutes, hours.

Today I will not waste my time, because the minutes I wasted yesterday are lost as a vanished thought.

Today I refuse to spend time worrying about what MIGHT happen. I am going to spend my time making things happen. Today I am determined to study to improve myself, for tomorrow I may be wanted and I must not be found lacking. Today I am determined to do things I should do. I firmly determine to stop doing the things I should not do.

Today I begin by doing, and not wasting my time: In one week I will be miles beyond the person I am today.

Today I will not imagine what I would do if things were different. They are not different. I will make success with what material I have.

Today I will stop saying, "If I had time," for I never will "find time" for anything—if I want time I must take it.

Today I will remember that this is the day of salvation and I will give my life to God.

Today I will act toward other people as though this might be my last day in earth. I will not wait for tomorrow. Tomorrow never comes.

Today is now. A beginning—a whole year of new days to achieve, to love, to hope and life fully.

The Governor Says . . .

"No issue is so hotly discussed, so commonly misunderstood, or so blatantly misconstrued as the qestion of controling firearms. As we open the discussion, let us proceed rationally and calmly to find the best measure which will protect the sportsman and the citizen."

These are the words of Gov. Harold LeVander in his special message to the Minnesota legislature on combatting crime, and specifically as he refers to "hand gun control".

"In regard to the sportsman and the collector," he states, "the measure I propose is not concerned with long guns or shotguns, it is not concerned with transporting such guns, and it is not concerned with owning guns.

"However, we must control the indiscriminate carrying on the person of pistols and revolvers. As one of two states in the Union without any restrictions, the time is long overdue. We can provide safeguards against the misuse of hand guns by requiring a permit to carry for anyone who desires to carry a hand gun on his person, such a permit to be issued by the local police authority on the basis that the applicant demonstrate the need to carry.

"The law should require," the governor adds, "that the permit include the fingerprints of the carrier and if the local government requires, it, a picture of the carrier.

"Support for such a proposal is widespread in Minnesota as evidenced by a recent poll that indicates 80 per cent of our people favor such a requirement," LeVander said. "This state safeguard on hand guns would reinforce the action taken recently be several local units of government."

The governor has taken a fairly reasonable position in the above statements, and has shown exceptional political (and, we think, practical) wisdom in mentioning specifically that he does not intend to tamper with actual gun ownership. It is also noteworthy that he does not propose to regulate rifles or shotguns at all.

We question his apparent faith in the "recent poll" which showed 80 per cent of Minnesota people in favor of requiring a permit to carry a hand gun on the person. Of all people, he should be most cognizant of the errancy in polls and the trouble which can result from placing too much confidence in them. We question the poll's credibility.

And that permit idea is a little too vague. Suppose the law was in effect and Suppose a driver of a delivery vehicle wanted to carry a handgun for protection since he collected a considerable amount of money from the accounts he handled. If a permit was issued by Pennington county or Thief River Falls authorities, would it be honored in any county or community where the driver made his calls? If so, where is the local control? If not, what good is the permit?

We thank the governor for taking a practical outlook on firearms in relation to crime.

Legis lative Letter

from ANDREW SKAAR

STATE REPRESENTATIVE

Perhaps the most frustrating of the problems which threaten our state and nation is the rising rate of crimes committed by members of our society against their fellow man.

We spend huge sums on corrections and rehabilitation; we allocate hundreds of millions of dollars for education in an attempt to prepare our youngsters to live in peace within their communities.

Still the social problems that fester in our midst breed more and more crime.

I am so greatly concerned about crime in Minnesota that I have presented a special message to the State Legislature dealing with recommendations which I feel are desirable. Atty. Gen. Douglas M. Head has given me great assistance in formulating this program which Minnesota needs enacted.

The growing magnitude of crime in Minnesota is appalling. The incidence of major crime in this state has increased 700 per cent since 1936. During the first six months of 1968—the latest period for which complete statistics are now available—crime in Minnesota increased at a greater rate than the national average in all but two categories ... manslaughter and assault.

And I'm not referring only to the cities. Surprisingly, the rate of increase is as great ... and in some cases greater ... in rural Minnesota as in our cities.

Make no mistake, the need for better law enforcement, the need for renewed efforts to erase certain social stigmas which exist ... these needs are statewide and not confined to any city, county or area.

I am most anxious to improve communications between law enforcement officials at all levels across our State. Better and longer police training is also a must.

And, I have recommended what I believe to be a sensible gun control measure. This proposal takes special care to protect the legitimate interests of our many thousands of hunters and sportsmen who should and will have every right to purchase and use firearms.

We are attempting only to discourage the indiscriminate carrying of handguns by persons who would use them while committing crimes.

These and the many other recommendations contained in my special message on crime control are based upon my firm desire that crime in Minnesota will be met and checked. I ask your support in this most important campaign.

Governor LeVander Reports

At the time of this writing 1,153 bills have been introduced in the House. I have had a few local bills passed for my district and a state-wide bill passed which affects co-ops. This bill allows the co-op to elect the president and secretary from outside of the board of directors.

In the House we have been especially considerate of the ladies. We passed a bill which provides equal pay for equal work regardless of sex. I am sure the ladies will be following Senate action on this bill with a great deal of interest.

I am co-author of a bill that was introduced this week that would provide a second medical school for Minnesota. We must act immediately if we are to provide the necessary doctors and health manpower needs of the future. It is already late, but we are hopeful that this legislation will make a second medical school for the state a reality.

The legislature will be asked to appropriate $500,000 to assist planning and development of the proposed school with the understanding that an equal amount of private funds will be raised to match this appropriation.

A measure was introduced in both houses of the legislature this week which would create a legislative commission to study the problems of legislative reapportionment during the interim between the 1969 and 1971 sessions of the legislature.

Actually, this proposed commission would be permanent in nature, and would be authorized to conduct a continuous study of population trends and other factors that must be used in determination of reapportionment at a later session. Congressional redistricting would also be studied.

Under terms of the measure, the commission would consist of 14 members—seven state Senators and seven members of the House of Representatives. The House members would be appointed by the Speaker, and with the Senate members would serve until July 1, 1971.

One of the most unique features of this proposal is that which would permit the commission to employ legal counsel should any court action arise out of a reapportionment proposal or problem. This particular section of the bill suggests that the attorney general or any other counsel or attorney could serve members of the commission in their study, and in any court action if court action became necessary.

Also, the reapportionment commission would have a continuing responsibility to review all state and federal court cases which involve reapportionment obligations. The commission would also be responsible, as indicated above, for evaluating the figures after every federal census in preparation of necessary plans for legislative reapportionment, and congressional district redistricting.

Portal Oats Is On Recommended List for State

Portal oats, a new high-yielding midseason to late oat variety, has joined Garland and Lodi on Minnesota's recommended list of oat varieties. It was announced by the Minnesota Crop Improvement association.

Test results from the Minnesota agricultural experimental stations show Portal to have an excellent yield, a good test weight and a fair straw strength. It is medium in height and is resistant to race 264 of crown rust.

Portal compares favorably with other oat varieties that are midseason to late in maturity. Portal's state-wide average yield of bushels per acre during the 1967-68 seasons was reported to be 84. Sharmont, another midseason to late variety, had an average of 78. The Holden oat variety had an 81 bushel per acre average, while O'Brien's average was 73.

Kelsey, 1:68, M68 and Sioux, newly released oat varieties, are presently being tested at the Minnesota agricultural experimental stations. Each had one or two years of further testing before it can be considered for recommended varieties.

Kelsey, a late-maturing oat, has a good yield and a fair straw strength. An early maturing oat, E68, is excellent in yield and good in straw strength.

Another oat variety, M68, has an excellent yield and ranks good in both straw strength and test weight. Its maturity date is midseason. Another new release being tested is Sioux oats. It is a medium height, excellent yielding oat with a late season maturity date.

Seed sources for any of these recommended varieties and new releases can be obtained through the 1969 certified seed directory or from any of the Minnesota approved seed processors.

Joppru, Edlund, Balmer Among League Leaders

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Thief River Falls Prowlers captured the first Big Five conference basketball title this year with a 7-1 record. This was based on a point system as some of the teams only met once during the regular season, while others met twice during the year. The Prowlers gained two-point wins over Climax and Warren during the regular season, two one-point victories over East Grand Forks, and split two one-point games with Crookston.

Warren finished in second place with a 6-2 record, with their only loss coming at the hands of the Prowlers. East Grand Forks was third with a 4-4 record, followed by Crookston, 3-5, while Climax was 0-8 in league play.

The Prowlers had one player who captured two of the different department leaderships in conference play as Sheldon Joppru took the scoring title and the rebounding title this year. Joel Engen, Warren, was the leading field goal shooter; Andy Muhonen, Climax was the leader from the free throw line, while East Grand Forks' Tom Budge was the leader in assists.

Joppru led 12 players who averaged in double figures for the season in conference play, as the 6-1 senior center tallied 149 points in six games on 57 field goals and 35 free throws for a 24.8 average. Joppru also captured the conference rebounding title with a total of 95 in six games. Second behind Joppru in scoring was Dave Juve, Crookston, with a 19.5 average, while Dick Knutson of Warren was second in rebounds with 70.

The Prowlers' Don Balmer was second behind Joel Engen of Warren in field goal percentage as Engen made 43 of 76 shots for a .565 percentage, while Balmer connected on 23 of 43 shots for a .534 percentage.

Leading from the free throw line, based on over 30 free throws attempted, was Climax' Andy Muhonen. He made 30 of 33 for a .909 percentage. Joppru finished third in this department with a .700 percentage as he made 35 of 50 from the line.

East Grand Forks led the assist department as Tom Budge took the leadership with 33, while Don Jamieson, Kurt Knoff and Steve Gravseth all finished in the top four.

Overall Joppru took scoring honors in all games played with a 21.3 average, compared to a 20.7 average for Juve. He also was the leading rebounder with a total of 281.

Duane Lindquist, Crookston, captured the field goal percentage title as he made 50 of 95 shots for a .526 percentage. Muhonen, the leader from the free throw line in the conference, also took top honors for all games with an .825 average as he made 66 of 80 from the gift line.

Steve Edlund of the Prowlers was fourth in free throw percentage with a .681 average on 47 of 69 shots, and fifth in rebounds with 145.

GAME OF THE WEEK

by Bob Wielinski

Out-muscled or a mis-match is what you could call the meeting of the Mentor Trojans and the Ada Vikings on Friday night for the District 31 crown at Mahnomen. The much taller and stronger Ada club had little trouble stopping the smaller Mentor club by a 75-47 score.

The Vikings showed little effort as they took the lead from the smaller Trojans mid-way through the first period at 12-11 and built up a 23-14 lead at the end of the first period. The big spark plug for the Trojans was Rob Super who tallied 10 of his 24 points in the opening period. Steve Storslee led the Vikings in the period with seven points.

Storslee continued his hot hand in the second period as the 6-2 forward tallied nine points and the Vikings upped their lead to 42-25 by half time. Storslee tallied 16 of his 23 points for the contest in the first half of play.

The third quarter found the Vikings holding the Trojans to eight points as they increased their lead to 54-33 as the third period stopped. Ada coach Chuck Johnson began to pull his starters mid-way through the fourth period with the final starter going to the bench in the last two minutes.

Ada now meets the winner of District 29, Bemidji, in the opening game of the Region Eight tournament to be held Tuesday and Wednesday at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks.

Prowlers, Ada, Bemidji and Kennedy in Region

LHS Meets Kennedy In Second Game Tues

by Bob Wisinski
Times Sports Writer

Region Eight was assured of a new champion when Warren defeated East Grand Forks Little Green Wave last week in the District 31 tournament. This year four different champions were crowned in the four districts that make up the Region Eight field. Only Regions Two and Seven could wind up with defending champions taking Regional honors this year, as all of the other defending regional champions were defeated in district play.

Making up the field for Region Eight this year will be Bemidji, District 29; Ada, District 30; Thief River Falls, District 31; and Kennedy, District 32.

Bemidji, after missing last year's region 8 tournament for the first time in 16 years, defeated defending District 29 champ Littlefork-Big Falls by a 62-34 score Friday. Ada stopped a smaller Mentor club on Friday by a 75-47 score, while Thief River Falls gained the regional by stopping Warren on Wednesday evening by a 69-60 score. Kennedy, in its last appearance in the tournament in 1962, lost to Bemidji in the first round. Kennedy gained the regional tournament on Friday night by defeating Karlstad 54-39.

Ada draws Bemidji in the first game of the tournament on Tuesday night at the University. Thief River Falls will battle Kennedy in the second game on Tuesday night. The winners advance into the championship game on Wednesday, while the two losers will battle for consolation honors. Games each night will begin at 7 and 8:30 p.m.

While under the direction of coach Whitey Olson, the Prowlers have reached the finals of the Region once. That was in 1966 when Ada stopped the Prowlers by a 50-45 score.

Looking back into the records the Prowlers, like Bemidji and Ada, are veteran tournament teams in the region. The Prowlers have appeared in 23 regional contests since 1925, winning five crowns and being runner-up six other times. The last time that the Prowlers won the championship was in 1960. They were runners-up in 1963 and 1966.

Kennedy has gained the Regional tournament in 1935, 1955, 1956 and 1962. Only once, in 1955, have they been able to reach the finals of the regional, losing to Bemidji in the championship round that year. In their last appearance in 1962 they lost to Bemidji in the first round, with Bemidji then losing to Ada for the championship.

The Prowlers, who have come on in the last five games they have played, looked like they hit their season's peak in the three district games. They played one of their best games of the season against Warren in the district finals on Wednesday night, as they had their best balanced scoring attack of the year.

In the game against Kennedy on Tuesday night they will have a height advantage. Kennedy's tallest players listed on the program are 6-0, and they are reserves. The Kennedy team is fast, according to Prowler coach Olson, who has seen the Rockets play on two different occasions, including last Friday night against Karlstad as they won the District 32 championship. On Friday night Kennedy was led by Ron Visness with 16 points. Ron Peterson added 13 points while a third starter, Bob Eukel, added 11 points in the win. Other starters are Karl Urbaniak and Mark Kroulik.

The Prowlers, who had balanced scoring from Sheldon Joppru, Dave Kildahl, Steve Edlund, Dan Brodin and Tony Johnson, will more than likely go with Joppru at center, Edlund and Kildahl at the forwards and Johnson at guard. The other starting guard against Warren was Kip Poppenhagen, and Brodin replaced him in the second period. Either of these two could start on Tuesday, while top reserve forward will be Don Balmer. Poppenhagen and Balmer are the juniors on the squad while the other five members are seniors.

The Prowlers are led in scoring by Joppru who is averaging 21.9 points per contest, hitting 24, 32 and 20 in the district games. Edlund is the second leading scorer with a 10.3 average, while Balmer is third with an 8.3 average. Brodin is averaging 8.2 points per contest and Johnson has a 6.2 average. All five have played in the Prowlers' 21 games. Kildahl is averaging 5.7 points per contest in 19 games, and Poppenhagen is averaging 2.3 points a contest in 15 games. Three Prowlers have pulled down over 100 rebounds with Joppru leading the way with 323. Edlund has 161 and Balmer 119 rebounds in 21 contests.

According to records the Prowlers, as a team, are four points away from setting a new single season scoring mark by a Prowler team. The record is held by the 1960-61 Prowlers, which scored a total of 1,304 points in 24 games. This includes all tournament games. This year the Prowlers have scored a total of 1,300 points in 21 games for an average of 61.8 points per contest.

The 32 district champions for 1969 are as follows: 1. Spring Valley; 2. Austin; 3. Rochester John Marshall; 4. Waseca; 5. Wells; 6. Mankato; 7. Lakefield; 8. Worthington; 9. Canby; 10. Gaylord; 11. Madison; 12. Olivia; 13. St. Peter; 14. Alexander Ramsey; 15. St. Paul Central; 16. Osseo; 17. Mpls. South; 18. Bloomington Lincoln; 19. Albany; 20. Willmar; 21. Starbuck; 22. Melrose; 23. Only Mankato and Duluth Central were members of the state tournament field last year, as all other Regional champions have been defeated this year. They include Moorhead, Granite Falls, Edina, St. Paul Highland Park, East Grand Forks and Hayfield.

Northland's frosh-dominated cage quintet ended the season in a tie for fifth place in the Northern junior college conference with a 5-9 record.

Prowlers Win 23rd District 31 Crown

by Bob Wisinski
Times Sports Writer

Balanced scoring and a last period scoring surge enabled the Thief River Falls Prowlers to capture the District 31 basketball crown at the University of North Dakota on Wednesday evening. The Prowlers were the first district champion named in the state of Minnesota as they defeated Warren 69-60. The win marked the 23rd time the Prowlers have captured the District 31 crown since 1925.

The Prowlers will now meet the District 32 champ in the opening round of Region 8 play on Tuesday night. The game is scheduled for 8:30 p.m., while the winners of District 30 and 29 will meet in the first game on Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the University of North Dakota field house. The championship game will be played on Wednesday evening at 8:30 p.m., with a consolation game being played at 7 p.m. on Wednesday.

In Wednesday night's game against Warren Thief River Falls had one of its best balanced scoring nights so far this year as four players hit double figures and a fifth player tallied eight points. Warren also placed four players in double figures.

Leading the Prowlers was Sheldon Joppru, who tallied 20 points, 10 of them in the final period, as Warren had three defensive players on the Prowler star most of the night. Behind Joppru in scoring was Dave Kildahl with 16, Steve Edlund with 13 and Dan Brodin with 13 in a reserve role. High for Warren was Dick Knutson with 17 points, while Joel Engen and Larry Graham each had 14 and Greg Christofferson scored 11.

The game was a real battle until the Prowlers pulled ahead of the Ponies in the final four minutes of play. The first period found the Prowlers taking the lead at 18-14 behind Kildahl, who tallied eight of his 16 points in the period. Joppru and Edlund each connected for four points.

In the second period the Ponies came back, and at half time the score was tied at 30-30. In that second period the Ponies were led by Christofferson with six points. Free throws kept the Ponies in the contest as they made eight of 12 from the line in the first half while the Prowlers missed five of five from the charity line.

The third period also ended in a deadlock at 43 each as the Prowlers were unable to get the ball to Joppru in the second and third periods. In the two periods combined, Joppru tallied on two of eight shots, and only managed to take two shots in the second period.

The Prowlers moved ahead in the final frame on two free throws by Tony Johnson, but the Ponies' Knutson tallied on a jump shot, knotting the score at 45-45. Joppru put the Prowlers out in front by two on a jump shot 47-45, but once again Knutson scored to tie the score.

Johnson scored on a lay-up that looked like it would roll out of the basket but finally dropped through, giving the Prowlers the lead once again at 49-47. Brad Fultz then tallied on a lay up and was fouled by Edlund. The free throw missed the basket and Brodin came up with the ball. Brodin and Larry Graham traded two free throws each and the score was deadlocked at 51-51.

Edlund gave the Prowlers the lead once again on a jump shot before Joppru tallied two straight baskets that put the Prowlers out in front by six points 57-51. Engen closed the gap to four points, but the Prowlers scored six straight points for a 10 point margin with just over a minute left in the game.

The Prowlers shot 47 per cent from the field against the Ponies' 42 per cent, while at the free throw line Warren shot 70 per cent and the Prowlers 56 per cent. In rebounding the Prowlers held a 37-17 edge with Joppru and Edlund pulling down 16 and 10 respectively.

13 Named to North Tri-County All-League Squad

Mentor, Fosston and McIntosh dominated the North Tri-County basketball all-conference team which was announced after the north half of sub-district 30 play on February 28. Each of the schools placed three players on the select squad which included 13 players. Clearbrook placed two on the squad while Erskine and Bagley each had one on the squad. Oklee and Gonvick failed to place a player on the all-conference team this year.

Making the squad from Mentor were Karl Xavier, Bob Johnson and Robbie Super. All three are juniors for the Trojans, who reached the finals of District 30 play on Friday night. Super is the squad's leading scorer in conference play with a 21.8 average. Xavier was second with a 13.3 average while Johnson averaged 13.2 points per conference game.

McIntosh was led by the scoring of center Mark Schimanski, who averaged 30.2 points per conference game to lead the conference in scoring this year. Mark is a senior for the Scots, who lost to Clearbrook in the sub-district finals. Joining Schimanski on the all-conference team from McIntosh were Steven Haaven, senior forward, who averaged 13.2 points per league contest, and junior forward Jim Benson, who averaged eight points per contest in loop action this past year.

Making the squad from Fosston were forward Ken Rustad, guard Bob Holm and center Mike McNelly. All three are seniors for the Greyhounds, with Rustad leading the pack in scoring in conference action with a 17.9 average. Holm, from his guard position, averaged 14.4 points a contest while McNelly clipped the nets at 13.8 points per league contest.

On the squad from Clearbrook were center Gordy Engebretson and guard Jim Goudge. Engebretson was the lone senior on the Hornet squad this past season and averaged 16.1 points a game in conference play. Goudge, one of four juniors who became eligible after Christmas, averaged 14.1 points a contest in loop action.

Making the team from Erskine was Curt Jenson, a junior center for the Comets. Jenson was the second leading scorer in the conference with a 22.8 average. Kim Everhart, Bagley, was the lone sophomore on the squad as the forward averaged 14.4 points a contest for the Flyers this season.

Scoring over 100 points in conference action but not selected to the all-conference team were Larry Groshong and Gary Lindom, Clearbrook, with 14.6 and 11.0 averages respectively; Bob Dorr, Erskine, with a 12.0 average; Darrell Halvorson, Erskine, with an 8.3 average; Richard Derby, Bagley, with a 10.1 average; and Brad Eck, Gonvick, with a 9.3 average.

Jaycees Give $2,000 To Activity Center

Contribution of $2,000 to the Falls Day Activity center for retarded children was authorized by the Thief River Falls Jaycee chapter at its recent meeting. Funds are to be used by the activity center for improvement and expansion of its program.

Art Heinze, Jaycee president, states that the funds were earned by the Jaycees through the second annual States-Dominion snowmobile rally. Final figures are not yet available on the rally, but preliminary totals indicate that the rally netted about $2,000.

The Falls Day Activity center is currently in the process of making plans and obtaining funding for an expanded program for retarded persons. Funds are available from the state of Minnesota on a matching basis, with a limit of 25 cents per capita for the population of the area served by day care centers. This means that the Falls center is limited to approximately $5,500 in state funds according to Roger Person, project chairman for the Jaycee chapter.

State statutes also permit municipal and county governing bodies to contribute to the support of day activity centers. This contribution is also limited, Person said, but it is essential that a portion of the funds be raised from either private individuals or from civic organizations.

Thief River Falls Mrs. Jaycees, who have supported the activity center through their charity ball for a number of years, have recently conducted a telephone survey for the purpose of locating and tabulating handicapped persons. As a result of this survey, the activity center learned that it had several more potential participants.

Current enrollment at the center is 14, and it is anticipated that enrollment may rise to 30 or 40 within two years. A budget

City Has Reading On Ordinances; Requests Report

Reading on five ordinances for annexation of land to the city of Thief River Falls was held Tuesday at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls city council. The city fathers also asked for a feasibility report on sewer and water extensions and named a committee to draw up a sub-division ordinance.

Final reading was held on ordinances annexing land in the Kendall avenue and Greenwood street area, and the Eighth street and State avenue area. Second readings were held on ordinances annexing the city's industrial park and a portion of the Frank Heinze addition west of the industrial park.

First reading was held on an ordinance annexing about 30 acres of land south of highway 1 and east of the new vocational-technical school. All annexations are being made at the request of the property owners.

The feasibility report on sewer and water work to be done later this summer was requested from D. H. Stewart, city engineer. This includes extension of sewer and water through the Rustad addition to the Sherwood Forest addition on the northeast edge of the city.

Appointed to a committee for drawing up a subdivision ordinance were D. H. Stewart, city engineer; Robert Wurst, city attorney; William Froiland, member of the city council; and William Fahey, city clerk. The ordinance would permit the city to regulate platting of property in and near the city.

The council also voted to call for bids for a truck chassis for the street department with bids to be opened April 1 at 3:30 p.m.

Board Buys Buses, Accepts Resignations

Purchase of two school buses, acceptance of three teacher resignations, discussion of teacher salary negotiations and superintendent's report on the Franklin junior high school swimming pool operation were main items on the agenda of the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening.

Northern Motors, Inc. of Thief River Falls was the lower bidder on chassis for two new buses with a bid of $7,238 for both units. Low bidder for the bus bodies was Hoglund Bus company of Monticello, which bid Thomas bodies at a combined total of $8,410. Total of the two bids is $15,648. The new units will replace two old buses in the school's bus fleet.

Resignations were received and accepted for Walter Kelly, Dorothy Strand and Helen Crichton.

Discussion of teacher negotiations was held, with the negotiating team noting that the last negotiating session resulted only in naming of an adjustment panel member by the teachers' council. Further negotiations may take place subject to call.

Senior Citizens To Hear Talk on Good Gardening

Good gardening practices will be discussed at the regular meeting of the Goodridge senior citizens on Thursday (tomorrow) at 3 p.m., in the Goodridge community hall, and at the Thief River Falls city auditorium at the regular meeting of the Thief River Falls senior citizens on Friday at 1:30 p.m.

Guest speaker at each meeting will be Mrs. Carolyn Billing, Farmers Home Administration home supervisor. "Family living expenses are increasing each year," Mrs. Billing said. "The major part of this expense is food. A good home garden could result in reducing food costs by $500 to $700 per family each year. In addition to reducing the food expense, a good home garden would provide fresh foods in season, be a source of pride to the grower and enable him to live better."

Asks Increase In Market Order

Land O'Lakes Creameries, Inc., Minneapolis, has petitioned the United States department of agriculture for a hearing to consider an amendment to increase the Class I milk price in federal milk marketing order 60. That order regulates the handling of Grade "A" milk in northwestern Minnesota, eastern North Dakota and northeastern South Dakota.

Minnesota counties involved are Becker, Marshall, Beltrami, Norman, Big Stone, Otter Tail, Clay, Pennington, Clearwater, Polk, Douglas, Red Lake, Grant, Roseau, Hubbard, Stevens, Kittson, Traverse, Lake of the Woods, Wadena, Mahnomen and Wilkin.

The request made by Land O'Lakes asks raising the Class I price paid by handlers for milk used for bottling purposes by 24 cents per cwt. of milk.

Newfolden Board Gives Statement on Position

(Editor's Note: The following informational article was prepared by Oens Kjellberg, superintendent of the Newfolden school district, and represents the official position of the board of education of School District 441 at Newfolden. It is being published in full by the Times as a public service.)

It has been requested by some of the residents of Marshall County Central School District that a news article be prepared to give information to the residents of the district concerning a meeting held in Newfolden on Wednesday, March 5, 1969, between the Thief River Falls school board, the Marshall County Central school board, two representatives from the group petitioning to consolidate Marshall County Central with Thief River Falls, and two representatives from a citizen group opposing such a step. It is very difficult to do this since any meeting of this type mainly involves the exchange of ideas and information and conclusions reached may vary depending upon the convictions a member has concerning the issues discussed.

It is felt that in order to present the total picture one must digress and start with factors that have led the district to the point where it is now. Following is a review of those factors and the steps taken by the district.

In October of 1967 the State Department of Education sent a member from the secondary education unit of the State Department to the Newfolden school to study the school and make suggestions and recommendations to the Board of Education regarding the operation of the school. Although some items in this report do not relate directly to this issue, the entire report is submitted verbatim below so each person can decide what might or might not be pertinent.

Commendable Features:

Administrative Procedures

1. The treasurer's bond is $30,000.
2. A blanket bond of $3,000 covers the superintendent, superintendent's secretary, principal, and clerk.
3. No depository collateral outside of FDIC coverage is provided. (See comment below on this.)
4. Fireproof storage is provided for permanent school records.
5. The superintendent's secretary maintains the clerk's records; the treasurer maintains his own records.
6. The superintendent is working on the development of board policies.
7. A student and teachers' handbook has been developed. Work is also progressing on a bus drivers' manual.

Program

1. Art instruction is provided one semester, five periods a week in grade seven.
2. Music is offered two periods a week in grades seven and eight.
3. Health is offered five periods a week throughout the year in grade 8.
4. Two sections of German I are offered this year. German II will be offered next year.
5. Chemistry alternates with Physics. Chemistry is taught this year.
6. Four sets of encyclopedias have been ordered and 50 high school dictionaries have been ordered.
7. A new type of report card has been introduced this year.

Other Improvements

1. Two new school buses have been purchased.
3. New sidewalks and curbs have been installed on the east side of the school.
3. Trees have been planted on the athletic field.
4. A secretary has been provided for the principal.
5. A considerable amount of new equipment has been purchased.

Situation Recommendations:

1. At the present time no depository collateral is provided for your school funds over and above the $15,000 provided by the FDIC. Perhaps collateral is not necessary in light of the fact that your district is not in a good financial condition. However, if and when additional school funds are accumulated, depository collateral should be provided according to MSA 118.01 of the Laws Relating to the Minnesota Public School System.
2. The Science program in your school needs to be modernized. It is recommended that the Life, Earth, and Physical Science concept be carried out respectively for grades seven, eight, and nine.
3. Your Mathematics program also is in need of modernization.
4. At the present time the following teachers are on permit: Mr. Elseth in the area of Science, Mrs. Milsten in Home Economics, Mrs. Tunheim in girls' Physical Education. These individuals should take additional course work in order to become qualified in their respective areas.
5. Your library is very deficient. It is too small. Your book collection is too low—approximately 3,000. Your present collection needs weeding out. Space

Carol Ann Peterson And Roger DeLap Vows Spoken

Baskets of white gladioli, white carnations and lighted candelabra provided the setting at Trinity Lutheran church for the wedding of Miss Carol Ann Peterson and Roger L. DeLap on Saturday, February 8, at 7:30 p.m. Rev. Reuben Wongberg officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of approximately 275 relatives and friends.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Peterson of rural Thief River Falls and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward DeLap of this city.

Mrs. Walter Larson of this city presided at the organ, playing the "Processional" from "The Sound of Music" as the processional and recessional. She also accompanied David Morken of this city as he sang, "The Wedding Prayer" preceding the ceremony, "Beautiful Savior", and "The Lord's Prayer" while the couple knelt at the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor-length, A-line styled gown fashioned by her sister, Mrs. Donald Rupprecht. Designed of a silk worsted type fabric with a rounded neckline and wrist-length bell sleeves, the gown was complemented by a long, matching tie-belt and was trimmed with lace, accented with rhinestones. The nylon tulle, elbow-length veil, which was held in place by a looped bow, was fashioned by the bride of matching lace accented with rhinestones. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, white carnations and varied foliage. The traditional, "something old, new, borrowed and blue" was carried out.

Miss Joyce Peterson of Grand Forks, N. D., a sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. John Wroblewski of New Hope, a friend of the bride, was bridesmaid. Their gowns, fashioned similar to the bride's, were made of tapestry brocade, satin-stitched in hues of blue and green. Their accenting long tie-belts were of a green silk worsted type fabric and their headpieces were of blue nylon tulle held in place with a looped bow of the same material as their gowns. Each carried a cascade bouquet of varied foliage intermingled with white carnations and a touch of blue baby's breath.

Julie Peterson and Lynn Mosbeck, nieces of the bride, were flowergirls. Their gowns styled similar to the bridesmaids' were of a green silk worsted fabric accented with tie-belts of a blue-green tapestry brocade. Their headpieces and bouquets were similar to the bridesmaid's and their necklaces were gifts from the bride.

Miss Betty Haughom, a friend of the bride, served as the bride's personal attendant.

Attending the groom as best man was Kenneth DeLap of Pittsburg, Pa., a brother of the groom. Groomsman was Richard Petersen, brother-in-law of the groom. Gordon DeLap, brother of the groom, and Dwight Johnson, a nephew of the bride, seated the guests and served as acolytes. The men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with white carnation boutonnieres.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Peterson chose a blue woolen dress with black accessories. The mother of the groom wore a beige knit dress accented with brown accessories. Both wore corsages of yellow roses and white carnations. Mrs. Ruth Nicholson, grandmother of the groom, who was attired in a light blue dress, wore a similar corsage.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the church parlors by the parents of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Johnson, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, served as host and hostess.

The bride's blue-green color theme was carried out throughout the dining hall, including the candles and greenery on the tables. White netting skirted the bridal table, graced with blue candles and streamers.

Centering the table was a four-tiered wedding cake, trimmed with blue and white roses and topped with a silver Christogram. Mrs. Benhard Wold, aunt and godmother of the bride, and Mrs. Chris Saustad, aunt of the groom, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Melvin Christopherson of East Grand Forks, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Albert Reider of Felton, aunt of the groom, poured.

Mrs. Wayne Jacobson, a friend of the bride, assisted Paula DeLap, sister of the groom, and Judy Mosbeck, a niece of the bride, in serving the lime punch. White net skirting graced the punch table together with blue and green streamers and bows.

Mrs. Richard Petersen, a sister of the groom, registered the guests. The groom's cake was distributed by Melodee Rupprecht, a niece of the bride, from a basket trimmed with a green net skirt with white lace edging, green ribbon and a white bell.

Waitresses were Judy Nicholson of Moorhead, a cousin of the groom; Ruby Peterson of Jamestown, N. D., a cousin of the bride; Mrs. Richard McGraw of McIntosh, Mrs. Ronald Hanson, Carol Hoffman and Karen Swendsgaard, all friends of the bride. All wore yellow carnation corsages and green net aprons with white lace trim, gifts from the bride. Opening and displaying the gifts were Mrs. Curtis Johnson, Mrs. Dennis Kuinz, Mrs. Roger Rupprecht and Margaret Lynskey of Minneapolis, all friends of the bride.

Mrs. Odin Hanson, a friend of the family, was in charge of serving the reception. She was assisted by Mrs. Clarence Kverno, Mrs. Edwin Helgeland, Mrs. Johnnie Nelson, Mrs. J. Arthur Johnson and Mrs. Marshall Kays, members of the Miriam circle of which the bride's mother is a member.

Out-of-town guests were from Fort Bragg, N. D.; Hillsboro, Jamestown, Bismarck and Grand Forks, N.D.; Pittsburg, Pa.; Minneapolis, New Hope, Little Falls, Alexandria, East Grand Forks, Angus, Blackduck, McIntosh, Moorhead, Felton, Halstad and the surrounding Thief River Falls area.

Best wishes were also received by telegram and telephone from Illinois, New York and California.

The evening preceding the wedding, the parents of the groom hosted a bridal dinner at their home. Among the 23 guests were relatives, friends and clergy.

The bride is a 1965 graduate of Lincoln high school and is employed at the Pennington county welfare office. The groom, a 1962 graduate of Lincoln high school, attended Bemidji state college and is presently stationed on the USS John F. Kennedy aircraft carrier out of Norfolk, Va. Photo, Neal Fox Studio.

Olson Serves on USS Berkeley

United States Navy fireman apprentice Myles A. Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus S. Olson, Thief River Falls, is serving aboard the guided missile destroyer USS Berkeley at its home port in Long Beach, Calif.

Berkeley is a fast, highly maneuverable and versatile destroyer equipped with surface to air guided missiles and anti-submarine rockets. The destroyer's guns are also effective against both surface and air targets.

During its last combat tour of duty in the Gulf of Tonkin, the Berkeley proved its effectiveness by firing over 5,000 rounds of ammunition at enemy targets ashore. The ship also participated in the Navy's Sea Dragon operations.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Carlson returned Friday from Kingston, Wash., where they spent three weeks at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leland Pietron, and grandson, Darin. While there, the Pietrons became parents of a daughter, Turi Lee, born on February 22.

Red Lake Falls Board, Teachers Reach Impasse

Salary negotiations between the board of education and the Red Lake Falls education association reached the impasse point officially on March 1, when the education association requested the board to set up an adjustment panel pursuant to Chapter 63, Section 7, Minnesota laws of 1967.

At the present time, Red Lake Falls teachers and the board are quite far apart in total dollars for teachers' salaries in the forthcoming year, the newspaper says.

Teachers have lowered their original request to a salary based on a $6,800 starting salary for a beginning teacher, with the scheduled increments based on the present salary schedule. This would allow the maximum to reach $9,350 for a person with a B.A. degree and 11 years' experience.

Starting salary would be $7,400 for a teacher with a master's degree, going to a maximum of $10,050 for a person with 13 years' experience. Total cost of the proposal would be approximately $50,000.

The board's proposal offers $6,100 starting salary to a beginning teacher with a B.A. degree, with a maximum of $8,700 after 11 years experience. Starting wage for a master's degree would be $6,700 with a maximum of $9,950 after 13 years. Total cost of this proposal would be about $21,800.

Farm Programs May Aid Wildlife, ASCS Head Says

Farm programs administered by the U. S. department of agriculture are aimed at balancing supplies of farm products with demand, but they also play a key role in providing habitats for game birds, deer and other wildlife.

"The importance of this wildlife habitat is stressed in the theme for National Wildlife Week being observed March 16-22," states Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee. The theme for this year's observance, sponsored by the National Wildlife federation, is "Provide Habitat—Places Where Wildlife Lives."

USDA farm programs provide habitat through establishment of ponds, woodlands and nesting places on land not needed for agricultural production.

"The Agricultural Conservation program is one of our most active programs for providing habitat," Knutson said. "Through ACP the federal government shares with more than a million farmers and ranchers the cost of carrying out soil, water, woodland and wildlife conservation practices on individual farms and ranches."

Some ACP practices of direct benefit to wildlife include providing food and protection by planting grasses, legumes, shrubs and other vegetation, construction of shallow ponds for waterfowl and fur animals, and deep ponds for fish.

Many practices supported by the National Wildlife federation are available on a cost-share basis to farmers through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service. Knutson said program information can be obtained from county ASCS offices.

"I encourage all citizens to support National Wildlife week," Knutson said, "and I especially encourage farmers to investigate the possibilities of ACP and other farm programs as a means of improving wildlife habitat."

Newfolden Board Gives Statement On Position:

is a problem in your school, but an effort should be made to find larger quarters for your library. You have only seating for a maximum of 8 pupils in your library. In spite of these problems, your library book collection has a good circulation. Mrs. Ulferts is a qualified librarian and is conscious of the needs in this area. It is recommended that $5 per pupil be spent on library books until your library reaches desirable standards. Also, a new third edition, unabridged dictionary is needed for your library.

6. It was rather disconcerting that clocks carrying advertisements of various soft drinks were being used in several rooms throughout your building. It is recommended that efforts be made to provide standard room clocks.

7. There is need for providing more overhead projectors and wall screens in your school.

8. The custodians supply room on the second floor of your building needs a good cleaning out.

9. In fact, the housekeeping through your school was not very good. There is a definite need for improved housekeeping practices and better maintenance needs to be implemented.

10. Your Science facilities are totally deficient. There is little or no opportunity at the present time for individual Science laboratory experience on the part of your pupils. Your Science supplies are also poor. A real effort needs to be made for the improvement of the facilities and equipment in the area of Science. Your present facilities are very depressing.

11. In addition to equipment and supplies, new Science texts are needed.

12. It is recommended that your old, outdated sets of encyclopedias and discarded textbooks be discarded. Encyclopedias bearing copyright dates beyond ten years and discarded textbooks should be removed from the building.

13. Many of the floors in the old portion of he building are squeaky. An attempt should be made to remedy this situation.

14. The dressing room and shower facilities for your boys are very limited.

15. The Industrial Arts department is located in a former bus garage. This is a relatively old building, but the equipment provided is adequate.

16. It is recommended that the school lunch supplies be removed from the floor by using strips of wood to provide air space between the floor and the boxes.

17. The lighting is poor in the boys' lavatory in the elementary building.

18. The elementary library book collection needs weeding out.

19. I is recommended ha a survey be made of the elementary ramps.

20. Your district has no provision for a special education program. Apparenly there is little need for such a program at the present time, but if and when pupils appear in need of such a program, consideration should be given to the installation of a special education program.

21. It is recommended that the librarian be employed for 9½ months.

22. It is recommended that a change be made for the required elementary time allotments. Curriculum Bulletin No. 1 is an excellent source for this information.

Final Comment:

Some careful thinking needs to be given to the matter of school district enlargement and consolidation by the Administration and Board of Education of your district. If the present rural districts now being served by you merge with you, a decided improvement in your school district valuation would result. Your present valuation is low and it would take an unduly high mill levy to raise a substantial amount of funds at the present time. There is a real need to sizably increase your present valuation.

Your present high school building poses a serious problem. It is suggested that you invite Mr. Guy Tollerud, Director of School Facilities Planning in the State Department of Education, to come out and look over your present facilities. Some decisions will have to be made on what to do with your present facilities in the not too distant future.

Mr. Kjellberg is conscious of your school needs and is providing sound and capable educational leadership as your Superintendent of Schools.

The Board of Education generally agreed with the recommendations in this report and where possible has initiated changes to comply with the recommendations. The final comments in this report are the items that most directly relate to the issue at hand. As was pointed out at the public meeting held prior to the bond issue, the board felt that the students in District No. 441 were not getting an even break and that the recommendations in the final comments should be carried out or the district should look toward consolidation with a larger district where proper facilities might be provided.

In order to provide facilities in this district, consolidation with Viking and Holt had to be accomplished. The school boards of the Viking and Holt districts requested that a plat be drawn to consolidate. The plats were drawn and were sent to the State Department to the Commissioner of Education.

The Commissioner then sent a letter to the County Superintendents in both counties, both county auditors, and to the boards of all districts involved stating that the plats had been received and would be held for study and evaluation and that anyone desiring to file a statement for or against the proposal should do so as soon as possible. The Commissioner did receive a proposal that that part of the Viking District that was in Pennington county should be consolidated with Thief River Falls. The Commissioner agreed with this and altered the plat to accomplish this.

The plats were then returned; a favorable vote was obtained in the Viking and Holt Districts, and consolidation occurred. The board of the original Newfolden District then asked the Holt and Viking boards to suggest the names of three people from their boards who could serve on the board of the newly formed district and represent the views and ideas of the residents in their district. This was accomplished.

The Board was aware of the fact that the State Department of Education was encouraging larger school districts and that they would no doubt not approve plats which they felt would create a weak or undesirable district. The board was encouraged by the fact that the Commissioner of Education did approve the plats to create this new district and looked upon this as encouragement from the State Department to maintain a school district in central Marshall County.

The Board then traveled to St. Paul and met with both Mr. Hendrickson from the school district organization section and with Mr. Guy Tollerud from the school facilities planning section of the State Department of Education. They discussed the building needs of the district and drew up a rough outline of what should be done to improve the facilities here. School district size, bonding power, enrollment, stability and potential of the district were discussed and the conclusion was reached that the board was on the right track and should proceed.

Mr. Tollerud later traveled to Newfolden and looked the situation over and on another occasion his assistant Mr. Floyd Erickson visited the area and met with the school board in Newfolden. Several subsequent conferences were held between the school superintendent, the school architect, and Mr. Tollerud in order to plan the best type building for the situation.

A citizen committee was organized with membership from all areas of the district so that information and ideas could be gathered from all parts of the distict and, in turn, decisions and information could be disseminated to the public by these representatives. To further inform the public, a public meeting was held to discuss the issues.

It was pointed out at this meeting that the board felt that one of two things should be done. Either the building should be built so the youth of this district could have access to proper facilities or the district should start thinking about closing the school and consolidating with another district. The board then left it to the people in the district to decide. The people voted to build the building by a vote of 494 for and 259 against. The Board, as representatives of the people, accepts ths as clear mandate from the people to build the school instead of closing it and consolidating with another district.

Since this election, a petition has been filed by 148 people in the district asking for consolidation with Thief River Falls.

The board received a letter from the State Department of Education indicating that Mr. Hendrickson from the State Department had met with representatives from this group in Thief River Falls and had provided them with information and data concerning the two districts.

After this meeting and after the petition had been filed, the board held the meeting described in the first paragraph of this article. This meeting was held at the request of a representative of the petitioners. The representative requested that the Thief River Falls Board, the Marshall County Central Board, a representative from the State Department, and representatives from the public meet. The purpose of the meeting was to present the petitioners' point of view, clear up any misunderstandings that might exist, answer questions the petitioners might have and to exchange any other information regarding the issue that might be brought up.

The representative from tha petitioners who requested the meeting asked that it be a closed meeting instead of a public meeting. Agreement was reached that the meeting should be held and that information gained at the meeting should be relayed to the different groups in the district by the representatives who attended the meeting.

At the meeting held on March 5, the Board of Education of District No. 441 discussed the steps they had taken and presented the information given thus far in his article as the prime basis for the decisions they have made and will have to make in the future. Tax rates were discussed at length.

The main points brought out were that the mill rate in the Thief River Falls district is at the present time 47.7 mills lower than the mill rote in this district; that the levy for the new building is included in the present District No. 441 rote; that when the new pipe line and pump station is added to the tax roll the tax picture in District No. 441 should impove, and that if inflation continues taxes in all distiets will continue to go up due to increased cost in operation and maintenance of schools.

It was also pointed out that the buildng pogam, although very significant, does not account for the largest portion of the total taxes levied for schools. The levy for District No. 441 this year is spread as follows: Maintenance, 25.00 mills; Additional, 107.63 mills; Capital Outlay, 19.34 mills; Debt Service, 84.12 mills; Other, 6.61 mills. This is a total of 262.7 mills.

Matters such as enrollment trends, district population, potential for growth due to industry in the area, possibilities of losing more population, possibilities for further consolidation to further strengthen this district, and possibilities of someday sending the top three grades from this school to Thief River Falls and using the new building for a junior high were discussed. No conclusions were agreed upon since, as mentioned earlier, these are matters of judgment and opinion and each group might draw different conclusions from the discussion.

Since the meeting on March 5 some board members of District No. 441 have been asked by one of the representatives of the petitioners to hodl another meeting for the purpose of explaining what was discussed at the March 5 meeting. The board does not feel that another meeting would serve a great purpose and hopes that this article will inform the people of the district of the stand the board must take and the reasons they have taken he steps that they have in this issue. They do not feel that another discussion on the same issues that have been discussed at the public meeting prior to the bond election or at the March 5 meeting will shed any new light on the picture or alter the course that the majority of the people of the district have elected to take.

Restrictions on Highways Begin

Temperatures unusually high, along with excessive moisture, has made it necessary to place road restrictions on the highways in zone six on Thursday. This means that all roads shown on the proposed load restriction map for 1969 will be in effect on that date.

The following changes in the load restrictions are now in effect as they went into effect on March 10 in zone five: Trunk highway one from west state line to Wadren; Trunk highway 11 from west state line to junction 75; trunk highway 220 from Oslo to Robin; and trunk highway 317 from west state line to junction 220. These restrictions are for six to seven tons per axle.

The Library Corner

by Flora Alliasn
Books for Adults

There really is something for everyone at the library. If you doubt it, just make a tour of the stacks and give a careful look at the titles; move from section to section, and we dare you to come away without something you are interested in reading about.

Let's start with men's interests, and no matter how young or old you are, there's something here in the automotive section to make you respond. Maybe it's "How to Fix Old Cars," by LeRoi Smith, former editor of Hot Rod Magazine. What to do with that not-quite-junker will no longer be a problem with this book on that basement shelf. This also tells whether the particular project you're considering is worth the time and money you'll be putting into it, and what to expect from it in the line of performance. Also included is a list of organizations which may be able to scare up the old parts needed. "Handmade in England" by Lavine is also about something old, from the severely plain to the ornate in British craftsmanship over the years. The furniture is not only discussed but pictures, from a clumsy rocking cradle of oak and walnut (guaranteed to tire mother before it tired baby) to a set of silver-crafted figures of the royal household brigade, the set given to Queen Elizabeth for her coronation in 1953. If you appreciate lovely things, this book will fasinate you. Also new is "The Encyclopedia of Furniture" by Aronson, this one with some 2,000 illustrations. Nothing is left out, from famous museum pieces to the best of today's offerings: sedan chairs, Sheraton Sideboards, French and other secretaries (writing desks) of all types and periods; ornate beds, loveseats, hutches, high chairs, tables, chests, mirrors, the works. Explains every imaginable term in furniture construction and ornamentation and illustrates most of them. A field day for collectors and furniture buffs, whether beginner or professional. (No, I'm not on a "furniture kick", these just happen to be some of the new books to find their way onto the shelves or catch my eye before they got away.

A novel based on prejudice is "The Two of Us." This one is a new twist in plotting, in which a Jewish boy escapes the Nazis in a shrewd move by his parents, who give him a Christian name, teach him The Lord's Prayer, and make other deviations from his Jewish heritage and hide him out with a French peasant family. They are ignorant of his nationality, and love the boy for himself alone. Called "one of the most beautiful stories in the world," it probes the conscience and the heart and seeks to learn whether love cannot transcend prejudice. While the boy awaits Peace and the return of his parents, the old man who loves him meanwhile rails against the Jews, DeGaulle, the Americans, and the Bolsheviks, for all the unhappy events that plagued the world, and him. . .And then the American liberators came, the European war ended, and the two of them had to say goodbye when the boy, with mixed emotions, rejoins his parents only to suffer heartache at the separation from his adoptive family.

Books for Teenagers

If the role of good Americans is to become involved in what's wrong with the world and doing something to better it, here's a good place for young Americans to start: Read "Stinking Creek", an I-was-there look at a small, dying community in Appalachia, named for the sluggish creek from which it drew its water supply, in which the inhabitants bathed off the sweat of the day and perhaps some of the frustrations, and which with the mountain at its perimeter, cut them off from the rest of the world. In this little pocket of hillbilly land, going nowhere, doing nothing, the smell of hopelessness and decay is everywhere. What a challenge for young people with fresh ideas, new, untried solutions. The book reads more like fiction than non-fiction and is as blunt, truthful and uninhibited as you'd expect these victims of circumstance to be.

"Who Goes Next?" by Robert Alter isn't a new book, but is too good to stay unread on the shelf. You'll scarcely breathe as you agonize with prisoners of one kind and another who lived only for the day when they could find the freedom they had lost unjustly. One such story is about a political prisoner who vowed he would escape or die, and made five unsuccessful attempts, only to meet with heartbreaking failures. On the sixth try, he does escape and savors the good taste of freedom for 30 years before his fate catches up with him and he is executed during the French Revolution. This is only one of the stories of tenacity and desire that make men risk everything to breathe free air some of them surely the unluckiest men in the world!

Teenagers, pressured by each other and by what they think in a society that does not understand them, are constantly coming up against the problem of dropping out. "Where Tomorrow?" is a good look at just one such teenager, and what happened to her. At first the new joy of being on her own, having a job of sorts and having money to spend as she pleased, was the grooviest thing in the world. And then came disillusionment; she lost her job, and there was no place for her among the graduate workers on the job market. She fell back on her gang, dropouts like herself, and this led her into Big Trouble, and this time it was with the police. How she meets the situation and becomes a young adult ready to face responsibility makes for some interesting and often absorbing action that kids your age love to read about.

Easy books we have to tell you about, because we don't want any of you to miss them, are "Twilight Tales"; little stories about some of the babies of the animal world, and "Sleeping Beauty." The first deals with Mrs. Hen and her chicks, the Fieldmouse family who insisted on privacy and installed a sign over their house, a flat door with the words, "Please knock, scratch or peck thump," and the Squirrel family in their treehouse. And the second, in the fairy tale section, holds all the fragile magic of the glowing Sleeping Beauty who took us out of the world of our own childhood and into a world of handsome princes, fairy godmothers, glitter and richness. The same fascination still lures each children into the world of fantasy found in the ageless stories called fairy tales.

"All the Year 'Round" by Fritz Peters, is just an easy walk of discovery thru the countryside during the four seasons of the year. Have you ever felt that there is magic in springtime when the ice frees the river as it melts? Or in summer, when the corn grows so fast you can almost hear it grow! Or in the fires of autumn, before the snow blanket covers the tree roots? This special book, with its beautiful drawings of the something special that is a part of every season, will help you see the magic with your own eyes.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

"Could an excess of vitamins be harmful?" asked a father in a recent letter to the Minnesota state medical association.

"My neighbors are on a 'vitamin kick'—the adults take about 10 vitamin pills a day, the children are given between four and five. I maintain that one multiple vitamin pill a day is sufficient, but they argue that such a small quantity is not enough," he said.

Many parents are echoing the same question in their attempts to decide whether their children should take vitamin pills daily.

Vitamins, says the Minnesota state medical association, are regulating chemicals needed for growth and the control of body activities. If you have an adequate and balanced diet, chances are you get all the vitamins you need. Only when your physician prescribes vitamin pills should any members of your family, whatever their ages, take them.

Healthy persons with adequate diets may require supplementary vitamins during special periods, such as pregnancy. But the kind and amount of vitamins should be decided by a physician.

Persons who try to "doctor" themselves with vitamins often take too much of one vitamin and not enough of another. Some vitamins have been proven harmful if taken in excessive amounts. Too much vitamin A in children, for example, can retard or arrest bone growth. Although vitamin A intoxication is rare, damage to cells in the cartilage of bones is irreparable and growth of the bone to its full length is not attained.

Many parents equate vitamin pills with food. They have been deceived by skillfully misleading advertisements into believing vitamin pills will take care of the family's nutrition. Children don't gain pep by taking vitamin pills, nor does giving a child more vitamins than he needs for normal growth speed up his growth rate.

If you are well but think you need a vitamin boost, says the association, remember that properly selected diets are the best path to good nutrition.

The ski season is here again and with it broken ankles, twisted knees and various other injuries not to mention sore muscles, bruises and skinned flesh.

Most of these injuries need not happen if skiers observe a few safety precautions, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

The skier can help to prevent injuries by being physically fit, having good equipment and learning how to ski under control. Pre-season exercises to strengthen legs, particularly knees and ankles, are important. Good equipment is a must. Most important is to remember that an early sign of fatigue is loss of control.

Loss of control is the leading cause of accidents. Besides fatigue, lack of experience, faulty technique and excessive speed lead to loss of control. Medical men who have studied ski injuries report that most accidents involve beginners who attempt ski runs that are too daring for their ability.

It is a good idea to learn the slopes before beginning to ski them—their condition and locations of the danger areas. Be sure to check snow and weather conditions.

Skiers should always:

1. Check equipment before starting.
2. Take the run that really suits skiing ability.
3. Look both ways before starting, entering a new run or turning.
4. Take a course as far as possible from other skiers.
5. Stay off the runs when not wearing skis.
6. Anticipate other skiers' actions.
7. Avoid stopping in mid-slope or in the trail.
8. Fill in the snow dug out by a fall.
9. Quit a half-hour earlier than planned.
10. Read the snow report, pay attention to signs and the suggestions of the ski patrol.

A fundamental safety rule is: never ski alone, says the Minnesota State Medical association. In case of an accident, a friend can get help. Ski only in patrolled or supervised areas.

A PEARL PIN was presented to Charlotte Rude, Thief River Falls FFA chapter sweetheart for the past year by Richard Habedank chapter president, at the chapter farmer initiation Monday evening.

REMNANTS OF THE SHOP of the old Tunberg Motor company building at the corner of Third and Main in Thief River Falls are pictured above. Snow accumulation on the roof of the building caused the walls to start bulging, so the owners decided to tear down the roof and parts of the walls in the back of the building. No future work is planned on the structure.

BUYER BEWARE BE WISE

by DOUGLAS M. HEAD
Attorney General
State of Minnesota

The "vanity publishers" operate on the assumption that flattery will get them everywhere.

Using frequently misplaced praise, the vanity publishers convince thousands of would be writers of literature or songs that their work merits publication.

The vanity publisher dangles before the amateur writer the prospect of fame and fat royalties. The writer needs only finance—or help finance under what the publisher describes as a "cooperative venture"—the cost of publishing his work.

That cost frequently runs in to thousands of dollars.

The vanity publisher, for the required payment, simply provides a printing service at inflated prices. If any royalties materialize, they amount to no more than the return of a portion of the writer's initial investment.

The vanity publishers often lure their victims through advertisements in classified sections of newspapers. The ads invite writers to submit their works for evaluation.

The vanity publisher is invariably ecstatic over the merit of any submitted work. The National Better Business Bureau suggests that the vanity publisher could find literary value in a shopping list.

One tongue-in-cheek employee of a better business bureau in California submitted to one vanity publisher an extraordinarily terrible song entitled "Cold Camp Fire Ashes".

A portion of "Ashes" read as follows:

"Like Cold Camp Fire ashes
My love is flatted and died
And left me nothing else to do
But ride and ride and ride
And when the last round-up is ore
And my heart is dead and dreary
I'll know I never will forget
When you were mine my deary
When you were mine my deary".

The vanity publisher quickly replied, describing the song as "very exceptional". He did allow as how the song was "interestingly different", but predicted that "it will have unusual commercial possibilities".

Such letters of praise are the stock in trade of the vanity publisher. After the writer is cajoled into believing his work has merit, he is asked to sign a contract. The fine print places the financial burden on the author and spares the publisher any financial responsibility. The costs must be paid in advance.

One vanity publisher—called song sharks in the music field—bilked amateur song writers out of $453,000 in "fees" before he was convicted of mail fraud.

The vanity publisher, in short, makes his profit out of the author. The reputable publisher makes his profit out of the sale of a book or a song.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—Will I receive educational assistance allowance from the Veterans administration for my wife and two children if I am enrolled for less than half-time in school?

A—No. You will be reimbursed for the cost of the course only, with monthly payments not exceeding $60 for less than half-time or $30 for quarter-time or less.

Q—When I was discharged from the army a couple of months ago, I converted my $10,000 servicemen's group life insurance policy to a permanent policy. I have recently been advised by the VA that I can apply for up to $10,000 government life insurance since I have a service-connected disability. Can I obtain this insurance and keep my converted SGLI policy also?

A—Yes. SGLI is not issued by VA but by private insurance companies. National Service Life Insurance is issued and administered by the VA and is also available to veterans with a service - connected disability who were separated from service on or after April 25, 1951. You must apply within one year from the date VA determines your disability to be service-connected. $10,000 is the maximum amount of government life insurance any veteran can have, but this is in addition to the SGLI.

Q—In determining a veteran's entitlement to a nonservice-connected pension, does the Veterans administration consider the veteran's gross income or his taxable income? I am over 65 years of age and have no dependents. I have not applied for a pension previously because my income was above the $1,800 limit. This year, however, I expect to incur unusually heavy medical expenses that will bring my taxable income under that limit. Will this make any difference?

A—Entitlement to a VA pension is based on gross income from which certain exclusions are deducted by the VA. If you file a claim, list your gross income and its sources—all legal exclusions will be deducted. Medical expenses do not reduce your gross income except where they are related to a condition for which you are receiving disability retirement benefits. However, since the income maximum for a veteran with no dependents was increased from $1,800 to $2,000 a year on January 1, check with your nearest VA regional office or local county service officer.

State MEA Leaders Say MSBA Group Is Being Unreasonable

Two Minnesota education leaders charge that the "unreasonable attitude" of the Minnesota School Boards association (MSBA) not only is torpedoing teacher-board bargaining but is stripping districts of local control.

"Not only that," Executive Secretary A. L. Gallop of the Minnesota Education association (MEA) adds, "the state's educational system is threatened by the apathetic attitude of boards toward quality education."

MEA President Fulton B. Klinkerfues, assistant principal of North St. Paul - Maplewood's John Glenn junior high school, agrees with Gallop, maintaining that the MSBA's current unreasonable attitude leaves the MEA no alternative but to urge its local associations where negotiations have not occurred not to participate in adjustment panels - until school boards indicate they will bargain in good faith.

By week's end the MEA reports, 22 teacher employment agreements had been reported among Minnesota's 480 high school districts; also reported were 289 impasses.

Gallop — who also is chief legislative lobbyist for the MEA—accuses school boards of "making a farce out of the MEA - sponsored meet - and - confer law passed by the 1967 Minnesota Legislature—which the MSBA did not oppose and which teachers believed recognized teaching as a profession while providing them with an influential voice in that profession."

"Had there been more meaningful negotiations, Minnesotans would not now be faced with such chaos in the schools," Gallop points out. "School boards have consistently thwarted teacher efforts to carry on good faith bargaining by refusing to cooperate in meaningful discussions.

"They have prejudged teacher proposals as outlandish, unreasonable, incredible. How do they know? Those who make such statements haven't bothered to negotiate.

"Such boards are blunting legislative intent. They are defeating the purpose of the procedure—without trying them.

"The MSBA," Gallop maintains, "is stripping districts of local control by applying steady pressure to its member boards across the state to establish and maintain a hard-line attitude toward teachers, which also helps negate the law's intent.

"There is no doubt that MSBA intends to continue its stranglehold on negotiations," Gallop asserts. He cites a mimeographed letter dated 3 March by MSBA Executive Secretary W. A. Wettergren to school board members, which states:

"The organization and preparation of school boards towards the matter of teacher salaries and professional services has been effective in attaining a unified position on the part of school boards to meet the unified position which the teachers of Minnesota have had during the past years, and this has undoubtedly been responsible for the lack of salary settlements.

"It is apparent that the majority of Minnesota public school boards believe that the recommendations of the board of directors were sound, and that unity should be maintained. The board of directors urges you to study very carefully your decision to settle so that you do not exceed the recommendations of the board of directors. If you do exceed the recommendations by any large amount, you must recognize that the unity so far maintained by the majority of the school boards will be jeopardized. WHAT YOU DO IN ISOLATION TENDS TO SET A PATTERN FOR THE MAJORITY. THE NEXT 15 DAYS WILL BE MOMENTS OF STATESMENSHIP.

"The board of directors is calling a statewide meeting for all school board members, superintendents and school board consultants for Saturday morning, March 15th, 9:30 a.m., at the Hotel Lowry in St. Paul. Unless you can settle within, or very near, the recommended guidelines, we urge you not to settle before that time."

Klinkerfues says, "The MSBA's current attitude toward the negotiations law leaves the MEA no alternative but to recommend to its members that they refrain from participating in adjustment panels until such time as school boards indicate that they are ready to begin bargaining in good faith.

"The function of the adjustment panel is to resolve those problems that teachers and boards are not able to settle, not a substitute for the entire negotiations process.

"Because of insincere actions of school boards during the negotiations period we believe that these adjustment panels would produce nothing more than continued frustrations for the teachers and, in turn, our whole state educational system," Klinkerfues concludes.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

The earliest biochemical sign that indicates the end of the prediabetic state is a significant rise of blood sugar during a glucose tolerance test. This is chemical diabetes. Later, a patient may develop the classic symptoms of diabetes: thirst, increased volume of urine, increased appetite, loss of weight and fatigue. This is overt diabetes.

Joppru Named To Big Five All-Conference

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

Second place Warren dominated the Big Five All-Conference team selected by the conference coaches at a meeting held on Monday in Thief River Falls. League leading Thief River Falls had one all-conference selection, while East Grand Forks placed two on the squad and Crookston and Climax each had one on the squad of eight players.

The biggest surprise of the meeting came when Dave Juve, Crookston, was named as the league's most valuable player, over the Prowlers' fine center, named to the all-conference squad.

Named to the squad from Warren were [illegible], Duane Swanson and Dick Knutson. East Grand Forks had Dan [illegible] and Steve Grayseth and Climax placed Andy [illegible] on the squad.

All are seniors with the exception of Knutson. The Pioneer forward was the only junior receiving votes in the all-conference voting.

Juve, a 6-2 senior, led Crookston in scoring and finished second behind Joppru in the league's scoring race with a 19.5 average. Joppru averaged 21.8 points per contest.

Sheldon Joppru
All-Conference Pick

This was the league's first year of operation and Joppru captured seven of eight records set this year, while Juve failed to set a mark this year.

Joppru holds the conference record for most field goals attempted and made in a single conference game, 31 attempts against East Grand Forks, and 14 made against East Grand Forks. He holds the record for the most free throws attempted and the most made in a single game when he took 14 shots and made 11. He scored the most points in a game (31) and pulled down the most rebounds (20) in a contest, both against East Grand Forks. The only record not held by the Prowler center is in assists where Duane Swanson of Warren had 10 in one game against East Grand Forks.

Prowlers receiving votes in addition to Joppru in the all-conference balloting were forward Steve Edlund and guard Dan Bradin. Others also receiving votes for the squad were Craig Peterson, Crookston and Tom Budge and Tim Nellermoe of East Grand Forks. All five are seniors.

It was also noted at the meeting that the next conference meeting be held in the fall when new officers will be elected. Present officers include Whitey Olson, Thief River Falls, chairman; and Larry Selk, East Grand Forks, secretary-treasurer.

It was also discussed at the meeting that Olympic rules be used in the junior varsity games next year against league opposition. A motion was also made that junior varsity games be started at 6:15 p.m., instead of the present 6:30 starting time, so that varsity games would get underway at 8 p.m. There was no decision made on the motion, however, as the coaches had to check with school officials before making the move.

PULLING DOWN a rebound against Kennedy on Tuesday night at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse is Steve Edlund, Thief River Falls. Edlund is being watched by Bob Eukel, Kennedy, and Sheldon Joppru, TRF. Edlund scored 13 points against the Rockets as the Prowlers edged them 53-52.

Goodridge Lions Set Cage Benefit

A basketball program is set for the Goodridge high school gym on Friday beginning at 8 p.m. Proceeds will go to the sponsoring Goodridge Lions club for its auto graveyard clean-up campaign.

A team made up of the Goodridge Lions club will take on a team made up of Goodridge area farmers. In another game the elementary boys team will take on a team comprised of their fathers; while a third game will put the Goodridge P.T.A. Women against a team of the Goodridge Girls Athletic association.

March 16-22 Is Wildlife Week; Habitat Cited

During 1969 Wildlife Week, March 16-22, civic organizations, youth groups, sportsmen's clubs, schools, libraries and numerous individuals will join the Minnesota Conservation federation in a statewide campaign to protect wildlife areas.

In a recent interview, state Wildlife Week director Roger Preuss of Minneapolis pointed out that since 1940 more than 350,000 sloughs and marshes, choice wildlife habitat in Minnesota and the Dakotas, have been drained. "We know that civilization will continue to make in-roads into the amount of living space for all our wildlife," the director said. "The objective is to develop our field, forest and water resources in ways that do not destroy habitat."

Conservation displays by local chairmen in many Minnesota communities will emphasize these problems. Throughout March, the St. Paul library features on exhibition of museum reproductions of paintings of various species of North American wildlife in their typical habitat, painted by Preuss.

Wildlife Week was originated in 1938 by the National Wildlife federation, a non-profit organization. The federation's program of conservation education includes the publishing of "National Wildlife" and "Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine."

The Minnesota Conservation federation of Hopkins, its non-profit state affiliate, distributes the official Wildlife of America calendar and publishes "Minnesota Out-of-Doors". Persons interested in conservation are invited to contact the federation.

TRF Gains Region Finals on Joppru's Basket

Prowlers Meet Jacks For Region 8 Crown

by Bob Wielinski
Times Sports Writer

A last-second shot by Prowler center Sheldon Joppru gave the Thief River Falls Prowlers a 53-52 win over the Kennedy Rockets in the second game of the Region Eight tournament at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse in Grand Forks Tuesday. In the first game Bemidji defeated Ada by a 69-55 score.

The Lumberjacks and the Prowlers will now meet for the Region Eight championship tonight (Wednesday) at the same site, with the game starting at 8:30 p.m. The Kennedy club and Ada squad will battle for third place in a 7 p.m. game.

Tuesday night's win for the Prowler was one of the storybook variety, as the Prowlers trailed through almost all of the contest. Only in the final second of play did the Prowlers pull the game out of the hat.

In that final minute of play the Rockets had several chances to pull out of the Prowlers reach as they led 52-51. Dan Brodin fouled the Rockets' Randy Swanberg with 20 seconds left in the contest. The Kennedy guard missed the free throw with Dave Kildahl of the Prowlers coming down with the rebound. He started up the floor and, looking at the Prowler bench, took an extra step and was called for traveling, giving the ball back to the Rockets. Brodin then fouled Swanberg once again, with four seconds left on the clock. Once again he missed the free throw with Joppru coming down with the rebound and the Prowlers calling a quick time out. The score was 52-51 in favor of the Rockets with one second showing on the clock.

The stage was set for the storybook ending as the Prowlers took the ball out of bounds from Kennedys' back court. Tony Johnson passed the ball to Joppru, who let fly with a 25-foot shot from the top of the free throw line. The ball passed through the hoop and gave the victory to the Prowlers by a 53-52 margin.

The Kennedy players stood in a daze as they couldn't believe that they had the victory in their hands and all of a sudden came out on the short end of the score.

The game saw many mistakes on the part of both teams as they looked like they had just started the season instead of playing the Regional tournament at the end of the year. The regional winner advances to the state tournament which will begin next Thursday at Williams arena on the campus of the University of Minnesota. The Prowlers were counted, unofficially, to have turned the ball over to the Rockets on 30 different times, while the Rockets turned the ball over to the Prowlers on 22 other times. The Prowlers, who were much taller than the Rockets, out-rebounded them by a 36 to 24 margin, but the main difference in the game was the missed free throws at the end of the game by the Rockets. In the first three periods of play, Kennedy only missed two of 12, while in the final stanza they missed eight of 12 from the charity line. Thief River Falls, on the other hand, cashed in on 13 of 17 shots and made 20 field goals, while the Rockets only managed 19 during the contest.

Kennedy took the early lead in the game and then kept on raising the score, as they led at the end of the first period by a 12-11 margin, at half time by 24-22 and at the end of the third period 44-36. The Prowlers came back in the final period to score 17 points and the Rockets only managed to connect for eight points in the period.

Joppru took scoring honors for the contest with 18 points on seven field goals and four free throws, while Kennedy was paced by Ron Visness with 16 points. Steve Edlund added 13 for the Prowlers, while Swanberg dunked 12 for the Rockets.

Bemidji-Ada

Bemidji, led by the front line of Wayne Olson, Tom Hill and Tony Burke tallied 55 of 69 points as the Lumberjacks coasted into the final of Region Eight play by stopping Ada 69-55 in the first game of Region Eight play on Tuesday night.

Olson and Hill tallied 20 points each, while Burke added 15 points in the win over the Vikings.

The Lumberjacks led at the end of the first period by two lead to four points at half time 31-27 and then put the game out of the reach of the Viking as they led by 10 at the end of three periods, 52-42.

The final period found the Vikings closing the gap to three points, but free throw accuracy kept Bemidji out in front as three minutes of play, along with some key baskets.

GETTING READY to take a shot is Dan Brodin, TRF (30), as Kennedy players Bob Eukel (43) and Randy Swanberg (25) hold back in trying to block the shot. Don Balmer is shown getting in position for a possible rebound. Action took place in the semi-finals of Region Eight on Tuesday night at the University of North Dakota.

PARDON ME—That could be what the Prowler's Sheldon Joppru is saying to Kennedy's Ron Peterson as Joppru pulled down a rebound against the Rockets in the semi-finals of Region Eight on Tuesday night. It was Joppru's last second shot that won the game for the Prowlers 53-52. Others in the photo are Karl Urbaniak, behind Dave Kildahl of the Prowlers, while Dan Brodin (30), Prowlers, looks on.

SCORING TWO of his eight points against Kennedy on Tuesday night is the Prowlers Dave Kildahl, as he gets high off the ground to drop the ball into the basket. Ron Visness (21), Kennedy, tried in vain to block the shot.

Wildlife Week Places Emphasis On Game Habitat

Protection of vanishing wetlands and field and forest areas is the theme of the 1969 Minnesota Wildlife Week, March 16-22. The need, embodied in the week week's slogan "Provide Habitat—Places Where Wildlife Lives" is the most crucial in the 32-year history of wildlife week, said state chairman Roger Preuss, Minneapolis, wildlife artist.

"At least two-thirds of Minnesota's original marshlands have been destroyed by draining, dredging, filling and polluting, with dangerous effects on the water table and flood liability." Preuss pointed out, "This irresponsible destruction is continuing virtually unabated, and it must be reversed."

Besides their direct value for man, wetlands provide vital habitat, in addition to waterfowl, for furbearers, many songbirds and game birds, other small game and spawning fish.

Groups, and individual citizens, and school classes are urged especially to support vital projects such as "Wetlands for Wildlife—Ducks United States" and "Save the Wetlands", and to organize habitat improvements projects, such as food and cover plots for wild species, the cleaning out of junk from natural areas, attacking pollution in streams; and reclamation in general of neglected wetlands and other open spaces.

Wildlife Week '69 has gained support from 300 state sportsmen's clubs, schools, civic groups, libraries and youth groups, and from numerous individuals. Preuss will direct efforts of the Minnesota Conservation federation, Hopkins, in leading the statewide campaign, which is co-sponsored by the National Wildlife federation and its state affiliate.

Chairman Preuss urged citizens and groups to contact county and community wildlife week committees, and to co-operate with them in their projects.

"Minnesota is fortunate in its outdoor wildlife heritage. It has a lot at stake because it has a lot to lose. Hundreds of Minnesotans, understanding this, are underwriting wildlife week with personal effort in this educational program to help and restore and protect our exploited open and wild lands," Preuss said.

Asks Dog Owners To Be Sure Pets Don't Kill Deer

Due to numerous complaints of dogs chasing and killing deer in various portions of the state, a reminder of state law regarding such action has been issued by Donald Fearn, state conservation officer stationed in Thief River Falls.

Officer Fearn stated that this is a critical period of the year for deer and a time when they are especially susceptible to danger from dogs. In a weakened condition they are unable to fight or escape if attacked and the deep snow in the woods hampers their movement while allowing dogs to run on top of the crust.

Persons who own dogs are asked to pay special attention to them during this time, since even the most docile pet can be a potential or actual deer killer, Fearn said. The warning is for the safety of the pet as well as the deer, for state law provides the following:

Section 100.29, Subdivision 19: "Any person may, and it shall be the duty of every game warden to kill any dog pursuing or killing deer or moose, and no action for damages shall be maintained against the person for the killing."

Any person who has observed dogs chasing or killing deer is asked to contact the local conservation officer.

Operating Costs of U of M During '68 Total $193,330,729

Operating costs of the University of Minnesota for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1968, totaled $193,330,723 for all campuses and stations, according to a summary of financial operations released today by L. R. Lunden, vice president for business administration. Of this total, the state of Minnesota provided 32 per cent.

In addition to its operating expenses, the university paid out $21,486,114 for the construction and remodeling of buildings and the purchase of land. In the 12 month period, to meet construction costs, the sum of $9,352,439 was withdrawn from funds appropriated by the state legislature for that purpose.

Largest operating outlay, Lunden reported, was the $58,366,868 spent for the instruction of students at collegiate level and all campuses. An additional $27,135,709 was expended for organized activities relating to instructional departments such as university hospitals and libraries. Budgeted and sponsored research expenditures amounted to $39,072,174. Cost of extension such as the general extension division, the agricultural extension service and the Bell museum of natural history totaled $16,031,459.

The university's overall operating costs were $193,330,729 while transfers, increases in obligations and other adjustments added $3,181,945 for a total of $196,515,675, Vice President Lunden pointed out. Of this total, the state of Minnesota provided $61,945,136 or 32 per cent. State support funds consisted of the legislative maintenance appropriation of $52,[illegible], a special appropriation of $2,592,032 ($1,171,402 of which was charged to the counties for the care of indigent patients at university hospitals and a legislative allotment of $7,820,460 for special projects carried on by the university for the general benefit of Minnesota's citizens.

These special projects include agricultural extension work and research, business and economic research, medical research, operation of the Minnesota rehabilitation center, the child psychiatric hospital, the Multiple Sclerosis clinic, the institute of child development, the schools of agriculture student aid fund and several others.

Sources of the university's operating income other than the state, the report indicates, are: appropriations from the federal government $3,798,517; student tuition and fees, $17,146,177; self-supporting auxiliary services, $27,376,182; sales and services such as hospitals, $30,280,089; trust funds, $53,128,371, of which $43,281,022 represents federal contracts and grants for research, training program, institutes and other projects; and intercollegiate athletics $1,669,798.

Income from intercollegiate athletics included $1,508,422 from the Minneapolis campus, $128,480 from the Duluth campus, $25,134 from the Morris campus and $7,761 from the Crookston campus. Expenditures for the operation of intercollegiate athletics and that part of physical education expenses paid from athletic receipts totaled $1,742,504 for the fiscal year 1967-68. Involved was an outlay of $1,562,254 in Minneapolis, $143,332 in Duluth, $29,774 in Morris and $7,142 in Crookston.

Other highlights of the report released by Vice President Lunden include the following:

Overall total current fund receipts of the university for the fiscal year amounted to $196,515,675. The free unencumbered balance as of June 30 was $3,482.

Expenditures for building and remodeling and land purchases, totaling $21,486,114, were distributed as follows: Minneapolis campus, $14,218,662; St. Paul campus, $3,473,318; Duluth campus, $1,327,265; Morris campus and station, $1,685,103; outlying schools and stations and off-campus plant, $751,764.

At the close of the fiscal year, the university total endowment fund, including the permanent university fund, which amounted to $48,025,925, totaled $80,703,125.

University-owned land as of June 30, 1968, consisted of 17,809 acres which cost $16,250,282, while the university's 885 buildings had an estimated value of $190,097,447, representing original cost. University equipment was valued at $86,319,172 and included $374,206 in livestock and $16,599,770 in books and museum collections.

VA Benefits Are Generally Exempt

Veterans administration reminded Minnesota veterans today that VA benefits are generally tax exempt and need not be reported as income on federal or state income tax returns.

Except for interest earned on GI insurance dividends left on deposit with VA (which is a reportable item), all proceeds from GI insurance policies are tax exempt, according to John R. Murphy, manager of the VA center in St. Paul.

Other major items of income that need not be reported include educational assistance allowances, pension and compensation payments, subsistence payments to vocational rehabilitation trainees and grants for special automobiles and "wheelchair homes" for the severely disabled, he said.

Murphy said all benefits to surviving dependents of deceased veterans and compensation allowances for dependents of disabled veterans are also tax exempt.

Correction

In Wednesday's edition of the Times an accident report for February 27 stated that Bernard Rustad, rt. 1 had backed into a front-end loader in the Piggly-Wiggly parking lot. Actually, the front-end loader backed into the Rustad car while removing snow from the lot.

NW Sports Show In Minneapolis Opens March 28

Northwest boat, sports and travel show opens in Minneapolis March 28, with a mixture of new and time-tested features for the outdoor minded. The 10-day event will cover 160,000 square feet on four levels of the Minneapolis auditorium and convention hall.

Among the tools of the outdoor sportsman that will be exhibited are boats and canoes of all sizes, motors and marine accessories, fishing tackle, recreational vehicles, scuba diving apparatus, camping equipment, water skis, floating docks and do-it-yourself canoe kits.

The recreation seekers also may check on fishing spots and lodges all over North America, arrange passage on flying services into remote areas, book a float or canoe trip or get special information on camping sites and vacation facilities in several states and Canada.

Attendance has shown appreciable increases yearly and based on previous figures, this year's total should top the 150,000 mark, according to Philip H. Perkins, show manager.

More than 30 boat manufacturers will be represented with their 1969 models in a section covering 50,000 square feet of space. Because of their growing popularity, canoes and sail boats will play a bigger part in this year's show than ever before. There also will be a heavy representation of those who outfit sportsmen for canoe trips into the North country.

In the exhibition hall and on the ground floor of the auditorium more than 225 recreational vehicles, pick-up campers, motorized homes and deluxe sports trailers will be shown. A total of 21 national manufacturers have reserved booths in the travel section and an army of experts will be on hand to supply authoritative answers to the fishermen's questions. Facilities are provided by the show for those who wish to test a new rod or reel.

Literature, films and travel tips will be available. Approximately 200 travel counselors from 13 states, five Canadian provinces, the Northwest Territory and the Republic of Panama will be on duty throughout the show to help prospective vacationers formulate their plans.

The states represented in the show will be: Minnesota, New York, South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Missouri, Kentucky, Michigan, Nebraska, Montana, Washington, Idaho and Oregon. From Canada, Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan will send travel representatives and so will British Columbia the Northwest Territory and the Republic of Panama.

Answer Questions on Federal Income Tax

These questions most frequently asked by taxpayers on federal income tax matters with authoritative answers is provided by the office of the district director of Internal revenue, St. Paul.

Q—My refund was held up last year. What can I do to avoid the same thing happening this year?

A—File a complete, accurate return and send it in early. Refund claims filed now can be processed and the refund issued in five to six weeks.

A major reason for refund delays last year was incomplete returns. Many returns were received with a missing or an incorrect social security number. Other common errors were failure to sign the return and failure to include W-2 statements.

Missing supplementary forms, such as those to claim the sick pay exclusion or a moving expense deduction, also delayed some refunds.

Q—A W-2 form came last week for my son who is now in the Navy. Does he have to file a tax return?

A—Yes, he does if his income was $600 or more last year. A return would also have to be filed to obtain a refund of tax withheld even if income was less. However, if he is stationed overseas he has additional time to file his return.

Taxpayers out of the country have an automatic extension from April 15 to June 16 to file 1968 returns. If your son is in Vietnam, his return isn't due until 180 days after he leaves that area.

Q—What taxes can I deduct on my return?

A—You may deduct state and local income, sales, gasoline, personal property and real estate taxes.

Deductions are not allowed for: Federal taxes, drivers licenses, state and local taxes on alcoholic beverages, tobacco and the cost of auto tags.

Q—I am a widower. Does the fact that my nephew now makes his home with me allow me to file as head of household?

A—If your nephew also qualifies as your dependent then you may be able to file as a head of household. Check your 1040 instructions for details.

Q—Social security tax was taken out of my pay on both jobs I had last year. Is there any way I can get part of this back?

A—If more than $343.20 was withheld from four wages last year for Social security taxes, then the excess can be claimed as a credit on your income tax return. The amount of the credit should be entered on line 18, page 1, of the Form 1040.

Be sure to attach W-2 forms from both employers showing the amounts that have been withheld.

Q—Can I make changes in my withholding exemptions whenever I want

A—It depends on yoir employer. Many employers will let an employee change his withholding certificate at any time. Under the law, however, the employer is only required to make payroll change four times a year, on January 1, May 1, July 1 or October 1, for changes filed at least 30 days previously.

Q—Why isn't a check made out to cash acceptable as proof of a charitable contribution

A—To substantiate a deductible expense your records must indicate, among other things, the purpose of the expense, to whom paid, as well as the amount.

A check made out to cash or to yourself gives no indication by itself of the nature of the expense. This kind of check must be supported by other records, such as receipts, to be useful in proving any deductions you claim.

A check made out to a specific organization, a charity for example, may well be sufficient to establish that a deductible contribution has been made.

COIN BOX of the juke box in the Goodridge liquor store was robbed of its contents in a break-in early Friday. The thief gained entry by forcing the front door of the store, and pried the back of the juke box and the lock of the coin box to obtain the contents. No estimate has been made of the cash loss. Investigation of the burglary is continuing.

Lack of Communication

There is no subject where there is a greater differene in views than there is in conservation. It seems that everyone is an expert. This is espeially true when conservation is tied so closly to politics. The real authorities are the biologists and their voices are rarely heard above the lamor made by the bounty hunters and badly informed 'sportsmens' groups.

One weekly Minnesota newspaper headlined a release from the Minnesota conservation department as follows: "MORE PROPAGANDA NONSENSE FROM YOUR CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT." The release contained the information that crusted snow this winter is compounding problems for deer trying to esape from free running dogs. The story went on to explain that the sharp hoofs of the deer break through the crust while the dogs can run along the surface of the snow. This is factual information. In fact dog packs have killed many sheep for which the [illegible] has been blamed. We have traced down several stories of sheep being killed by wolves only to learn that dog packs were responsible. But try to tel, the ill-advised bounty hunter these facts.

Save The Wolf

Milt Stenlund, the regional game manager at Grand Rapids, is one of the best-informed wildlife experts we know. Here is what he said in a recent article:

"Large predators such as the buffalo wolf, mountain lion and grizzly bear have either become extinct or reduced to endangered numbers over most of their original range in the United States. Minnesota has the unique distinction of having the last important population of timber wolves left in the nation except for Alaska.

"Mountain lions are now being considered as game animals and the timber wolf is protected in Michigan—programs which are possibly too late to save them. Being too late with too little is usually the story of most wildlife species that face the most destructive predator of all—man himself."

Minnesota has an excellent opportunity to change this destructive pattern in regard to the wolf—and in our case it is not too late! It will all depend on whether Minnesotans have developed a "conservation conscience" in recent years which will recognize our timber wolf as a natural asset and necessary component of the wilderness of our state.

"Most of our wolves are found in the Superior national forest and particularly in the most remote boundary waters canoe area. Here they feed mainly on deer, compete little or not at all with the deer hunter and have been in a rough "balance" in numbers with the deer herd for several decades.

"Aerial observation by conservation department and U.S. forest service planes over the area during the winter indicate little change in wolf numbers in that area over the past 20 years. More wolves, apparently, have been south of the Superior national forest in recent years, but it is difficult to compare these figures with any earlier ones.

"As the BWCA receives more and more attention as a wilderness area and as the wilderness species such as the fisher, marten and moose increases, so too will the importance of the timber wolf increase as an integral part of that wilderness. The timber wolf is now on the endangered list of the U.S. department of interior and Congress has directed federal agencies to protect it and its habitat.

"However, just as important and perhaps even more so, is this last important population of wolves. I have received more pro-wolf letters in the past two years than in the previous eighteen! "The general policy of the conservation department is one that directs control of predators when the control is necessary and only where it is needed. Minnesota needs a program where the wolf will be left undisturbed in the remote parts of the Superior national forest.

"We have an excellent opportunity in the BWCA to show the nation that we have matured, conservation wise, to the point where we recognize the value of the wolf in the wilderness and have acted to save this last important group of large predators."

Politics Again

Why are bounty bills introduced in the legislature? Because the voter back home insists upon such a bill and the legislator listens to the voter rather than to the expert even though his actions do harm to the wildlife picture. Lack of COMMUNICATION is the problem. In some way, the biologist and John Q Citizen must be brought together so that Mr Citizen can grow up as a conservationist.

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—I have just completed three years of army service and plan to enter college under the GI bill this coming fall. If I work while attending college, will the amount of money I earn be deducted from my GI bill allowance?

A—No. The amount of GI bill education allowance paid by the Veterans administration is determined only by the amount of schooling you receive (full-time, half-time or quarter-time training), plus the number of your dependents. Whether you work or have other income does not affect your VA allowance. However, an outside job could affect your school schedule—that is whether or not you will be allowed to carry a full-time course.

Q—My pension from the Veterans administration was increased the first of the year. Was this an automatic cost-of-living increase and will the pension be raised again next year if living costs continue to rise?

A—The increase in your VA pension was not automatic. It resulted from a law passed by Congress last year restructuring the VA pension program and providing for increases depending upon the amount of the recipient's income. Since it is not automatic, any future increases in pension amounts must be legislated by Congress.

Q—I am under age 60 but old enough that my World War II GI term insurance is already very expensive. I know that I cannot afford the even higher premiums that will be due in the future. However, I still need this insurance protection. Can the Veterans administration suggest a solution to my problem?

A—Happily, yes. The modified life plan offers the lowest premium permanent plan protection. You must convert to this coverage before [illegible]. While the amount of insurance is halved at age [illegible] you will still have the option then of replacing the reduced half of your coverage with ordinary life insurance. For additional information and assistance in this matter, check with your nearest VA regional office or your local county service officer.

PRACTICAL USAGE

One of the first practical uses of a radioisotope occurred in 1911 when scientist George de Hevesy sprinkled a trace amount on his unfinished dinner. The next night he was able to prove that his landlady was using her boarder's leftovers to make the next evening's hash.

Sleep in Heavenly Peace

Peace is a baby sleeping. Peace is a walk in God's forests. Peace is gentle Love for one another.

Great word . . . Peace! We see it in the newspapers, on T.V., in magazines beside horror pictures of war and carnage. But, Peace is not something outside ourselves. It is within. It is the quiet calmness of mind and soul, unperturbed, undismayed.

But it is difficult to acquire this frame of mind, this elusive state of soul, this tranquil spirit.

To achieve it we need guidance and help, and therefore we turn to our Church. Here, one sets problems in order, sees difficulties in perspective and consults with one's Creator. Peace of heart is a two-way street—our way to God, and His way to us.

STAMP SAVERS CAN NOW REEL IN MUSKIES

Gil Hamm, President of Muskies, Inc., and Group Project Director Fay McCall pose with toothy friend to symbolize that conservation clubs can now secure yearling muskies and other live gamefish for stocking in return for Gold Bond stamps and Gift Stars coupons. Other species obtainable include trout, bass, panfish, northern pike and walleye. Sorry, "Minnie" isn't available. The mounted 42-pound muskellunge is the mascot of Muskies, Inc., tax-exempt, non-profit group dedicated to the improvement of sport fishing and fish habitat.

For more information, contact Muskies, Inc., 1708 University Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55104.

We Don't Need Them

Once again there is legislation before the state's law-making bodies which would increase the legal limit for size of trucks operating on Minnesota highways. And once again the two groups which stand to lose the most by such an increase—the driving public and the railroad industry—have formed opposition to the plan.

Being a member of the driving public, this writer will go along with the opinion that longer trucks are not exactly a motorist's dream. In open country on four-lane highways, the longer trucks could be tolerated to a certain degree. But trucks can't move freely throughout the state on four-lane highways in open country. Somewhere they are going to have to leave the four-lane routes, and then the trouble begins.

House File 760 seeks approval for use of 65-foot trucks with a cab and two trailers (commonly known as double-bottoms). These would be used on four-lane highways and on interconnected routes as designated by the state highway commissioner. And that extra 10 feet of length, you can bet your fifth wheel, would soon be requested for all highways throughout the state.

We can sympathize, to a degree, with the trucking industry which is trying to economize as much as possible. Being able to haul a larger load with one unit certainly seems to be efficient. But imagine trying to pass a couple of these double-bottom rigs on a windy day on a two-lane, curved and hilly highway!

And while the railroads certainly have a right to object to bigger trucks, let them object on the real basis for their concern—competition. Let them object about trucks using public roads while railroads must maintain their own, and complain about government restrictions which won't let the railroads lower rates to more effectively compete. The motorists will uphold the drivers' general opinion of the highway giants.

Double-bottoms 65 feet long? No thanks, we don't need them.

Law Must Be Enforced

America must soon come to know the truth in the words of J. Edgar Hoover as he comments on the problems facing law enforcement officers in the nation today. He wrote as follows in the current FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin:

A newspaper columnist noted that today's law enforcement officer has to "speak softly and carry a big law library." Actually, his paraphrase of the well-known quotation from Theodore Roosevelt comes close to being true. There is nothing wrong, of course, with an officer's speaking softly and being well-versed in legal criminal procedure. Ideally, this is as it should be.

Unfortunately, in the criminal realm within which he must work, the law enforcement officer is the only one "playing by the rules." This places him at a definite disadvantage. In complying with all the procedural safeguards established for criminals, an officer must often subordinate his personal safety, his own rights, and the rights of society to insure that he does not commit some error which might later result in the release of the guilty. Criminals are usually well aware of their legal rights and take full advantage of them.

Many critics of law enforcement today substitute paper theories for grim realities. When they advocate more restraints on arresting officers, they do so apparently on the premise that police are dealing with only law-abiding, co-operative citizens who respect the law and those charged with enforcing it. While a big percentage of police contacts are with the responsible members of society, increasing assaults against and killing of law enforcement officers are indicative of the open contempt numerous violators have for police and authority of any kind.

Arguments are made that court opinions and legal restraints are not so broad as to require arresting officers to unduly endanger their lives in order to meet standards established to protect the rights of the suspect or accused. Here again, we encounter the difference between theory and practice. Judicial guidelines which are so vague and questionable that even the highest jurists disagree on thier intent place a heavy burden of judgement on the enforcement officer. In crucial moments, this burden of judgment can create indecision. And as we know, moments of indecision can cost an officer his life.

The trend today, even though unintentional, is to negate the enforcement of the laws to insure that the criminal is protected. We are asking our officers to operate under an honor system in dealing with an element of our society which has no honor. Certainly, arresting officers cannot be permitted to resort to illegal tactics themselves, but they must be allowed to perform their duty with confidence and with the assurance that they have the support of the public, the government on all levels, and the courts. The powers of arrest must be as clear and positive as possible.

Vigorous law enforcement is needed to cope with crime and violence in our Nation. It cannot be achieved if arresting offiers are required to make an apologetic approach to every killer, rapist, robber, and thug roaming our streets. If the rule of law is to prevail, the law must be enforced.

... Too Proud for That

In a letter to the editor of the Beaumont (Tex.) Enterprise, Mrs. Irene Palmer of DeQuincy, La., wrote the following:

"These marches, demonstrations, riotings, lootings, police slayings and such make me literally sick, especially the reasons our government officials are trying to cram down our throats as causes of these law-breaking episodes.

"Sir, I know what hard working, hardship pain and suffering is. I had polio at age 5 months which left my left leg one and one-half inch shorter than my right and about one-third the size.

"My father died at 6 p.m. Sunday in 1935, was buried on Monday on my 17th birthday. My brother died at 5 p.m. Tuesday and was buried Wednesday, leaving me with two small sisters and my mother to support.

"At 17 I was not a drop-out at school. With no education (not enough anyway), no experience, and with only one good leg, I quit school and went to work to support a family. I didn't have a teenage life because my working hours were always from 10 to 20 hours a day.

"In 1948, I got my right hand (my working hand, I'm right-handed) in an electric ice shaver and mangled it. It was doubtful I'd ever be able to use it again, but after much pain and suffering I learned to use what I had left of a hand. This left me with one good leg and one good hand, but I didn't give up.

"I would like for Earl Warren, President Johnson, H. H. Humphrey, the late Martin Luther King and all the hell-raising juveniles to come to my home and follow me just one day. I can guarantee that they wouldn't have enough pep left to go on a demonstration, marching or rock-throwing party.

"My day begins at 4 a.m. and ends about 8 or 9 p.m., when my health permits. I do my own housework, cooking, washing, ironing, sewing, raising flowers and a garden. In fact, for the past three weeks I have been standing in a hot kitchen, over a hot stove, canning my vegetables. Have an airconditioner? Are you kidding? Neither do I run up town, when I get hot and turn on the water hydrants, nor start rioting and looting stores. Do you see any civilrights workers doing this kind of work, trying to add to their income? If you do, show me.

"I have two wonderful children who were reared most of their lives in hot, crowded apartments. They know what it is to do without a lot of the better things of life. If we could have afforded just one vacation for them, it would have been a luxury, yet neither are rioters, rock-throwers, nor law breakers.

"I would like to show some of the officials in Washington, the marchers, rioters, and all those who have their hand stretched out for a handout, some of the handicapped people who are making it on their own and not asking Mr. Nobody for anything. . .

"Sir, can our President, Vice President, any civil-rights worker, agitator, or whomever they may be, stand up and look us handicaps, whose very life itself has been a struggle for most of us, in the eye and try to cram down our throats an idea as idiotic as hot weather, crowded living quarters, low income, hard working conditions and all the other excuses they try to pass on to the people as being reasons for these riots we are having? I, for one, cannot nor will I swallow such tommyrut.

"You may see us handicaps become furious when we see a gang of abled-bodied men and women, whether they are black, white, purple or spotted, running up and down our nation saying I want this, gimme that, without lifting a finger to earn it, but you will never see us in a something for nothing. We're too proud for that.

Borrowed Nonsense ...

And then there's the boy who asked his father, "Dad, what's a Grecian urn?" Replied the father, "I dunno. It probably depends on what he does."

BY MARTY MCGOWAN

Salaries of teachers in Minnesota are big in the news these days. Negotiations between teacher organizations and school boards are in progress all across the state with a notable lack of success. At the same time a related battle has been conducted in the state legislature.

It all stems from a law passed in the 1967 legislative session called the meet and confer law. This was new legislation setting up a council in each school representing the teachers in each district which is to conduct the negotiations for all teachers in a district with the school board. When this law first went into effect a year ago the Minnesota Education Association advised its members that such council negotiation sessions did not come under the open meeting law of the state because such "councils" were not specifically mentioned in the law.

To remove any doubt on this point bills were introduced in the house and senate recently which said that such meetings were to be open meetings and that provision should be made at such negotiation meetings for the press and public. After two committee meetings the bill passed the house. The bill was scheduled for its third committee hearing in the senate Tuesday.

Principal opposition to the legislation has come from the Minnesota Federation of Teachers, which seems to regard its members as hired hands like steel workers and auto workers, who should negotiate for salaries like steel workers and auto workers, usually behind closed doors with a press conference held at the end of negotiations to announce the results. Some teacher members of the legislature have carried this opposition in committee and on the floor with help from labor-oriented DFL members.

The Minnesota Education Association, which seems to regard its members as professionals on a par with the doctors, dentists and lawyers, regards hard-nosed bargaining as demeaning to their profession. They also find it more comfortable to negotiate with the press and public excluded.

Unstated reason for teacher opposition is that teachers are novices at negotiating salaries and don't want their inability exposed. Some teachers are apparently so naive that they feel when they ask for a salary schedule it should be accepted without quibbling. Their first demands this year have been greeted with loud protests from taxpayers. Teachers want to prevent these recriminations by not revealing their first requests, only the final settlements.

It has also been found that teacher negotiators who recede from the first request to a moderate settlement are often subjected to abuse from teachers who feel the negotiator sold out to the school board. So the negotiator doesn't want it exposed that he receded. He only wants to talk about the final settlement—and use the suppression of news as the vehicle to do it.

The principle involved is that all meetings of public bodies are to be open to the public and press on the ground that the public is entitled to know how the public tax dollar is being spent. This is the distinction between a teacher salary negotiation involving public funds and a labor negotiation at U.S. Steel, the Ford Motor Co. or General Motors involving private industry.

Opponents of the proposed clarifying legislation want to sacrifice this principle on grounds of expediency and ease of negotiation. They say it is in the public interest to keep the public in the dark as to how the negotiations proceded, not merely how they turned out.

This squabble has produced some strange alliances. Gov. LeVander does not come out entirely clean on this issue. He recently drew plaudits for compelling publication of a suppressed report of the Pollution Control Agency on levels of atomic radiation and ordered the report published on the ground the public had the right to know what was in the report. On the meet and confer law he was quoted at a press conference as saying as an old labor negotiator he had some doubts. Later his office said he had no firm position and he was studying the bill. If he is opposed to it, this would put him in opposition to four of the most powerful members of the house—including the majority leader—who are authors of the bill.

The clarification is probably being attempted in the wrong section of the statutes. It should be in the open meeting statute to apply to all open meetings, not just in the teacher bargaining section. This seems to single out teachers, which is like waving a red flag in front of them and has created much of the controversy.

MINNESOTA'S FUTURE

LAND • WATER • AIR • PEOPLE
University of Minnesota • Agricultural Extension Service

Changes in American society have contributed to tremendous changes in the rural and urban family in Minnesota and the nation, according to Ronald Pitzer, University of Minnesota family life specialist.

The family of today is generally smaller than the family of the past, large kinship groups are spread over greater geographic areas, and the functions of the family have undergone drastic change.

The changes are the result of increasing technology, the trend toward urbanization, the tation, the increasing complexity of social and economic life, and new and faster modes of transprotation and communication.

For example, 50 years ago the family structure was characterized by large kinship groups—relatives living in the same area with frequent contact and social, community and family gatherings. In addition, the agrarian family of the past was the primary social, educational and production unit in society.

It was not uncommon in the past to find two or three generations living in the same house or in the same area, with relatives assuming responsibility also for the social and educational training of the youth.

In the past also, chances were pretty good that the children would remain in the community in which they were raised, and that the sons often would enter the occupation or trade of their father.

This has changed. The modern family has become part of a larger and more complex social and economic network. The increasing complexity of life has affected the family.

Today, for example, the primary educational function of the family has been taken over by the schools. And schools and other organizations assume a major role in the socialization and recreation of the child.

The family also has become primarily a consuming unit rather than a production unit, Pitzer says. This means that the son often doesn't have the opportunity to see his father in his male occupational role, nor does the family serve a vocational training function.

It also is not unusual for today's families to be spread over large geographic areas, Pitzer says. Mobility, transportation and communication have resulted in movement away from the home community if better jobs can be found elsewhere. This is especially true in rural areas where many of the youth seek the better occupational, social and educational opportunities of the city.

In the urban environment the large networks of relatives living in the same area often doesn't exist. The large kinship family has given way to the nuclear family composed of only the father, mother and dependent children living together. As a result children in today's families often see less of their relatives than in the past, and these relatives play an increasingly minor role in the social and educational development of the child.

This does not mean that the nuclear family is completely isolated from the larger kinship group, Pitzer says. While it is true that generations don't live under the same roof, or even in the same community, modern modes of transportation and communication keep essential lines of communication open between family members.

Because of these lines of communication, family members still provide support and aid to each other in times of crisis. However, while support, interaction and aid occurs, the final decision on issues rests with the nuclear family unit, and not with the patriarchal head of the family as it often did in the past. Today also the interaction children occurs. Thus today's occurs on the level of the telephone, mail and even tape recordings.

Despite the changing nature and functions of the family, the family is not any less important today than in the past, Pitzer says. It is still important as a primary unit which provides the environment and models within which personality and social development of the children occurs. Thus today's family serves an important personality development and maintenance function, communicates the meaning of life to the family members, and provides a sense of intimate belongingness to family members which provides both security and personal identity.

The family will continue to be an important unit if it adapts its functions to the changing social, technological and economic environment, Pitzer says.

Delegates from Thief River Falls are Tim Duke, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Duke, and Linda Burger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Burger. Selected from Goodridge are Lee Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Nelson, and Susan Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich Hoffman.

Alternates from Thief River Falls are Darrold Rodahl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Rodahl, and Carole Kraemer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Kraemer. Goodridge alternates are Gary Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Anderson of Grygla, and Las Paulson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kemel Paulson.

Boys State will be held June 8-14 at the campus of Gustavus Adolphus college at St. Peter, while Girls State will be held June 12-18 at the 4-H club building on the state fair grounds in St. Paul.

According to information supplied to the Times, Tim Duke is a member of the student council, FFA, 4-H club, captain-elect of the 1969-70 football team and participates in wrestling. Darrold Rodahl participates in varsity basketball, track and orchestra and is active in his church. Both boys plan to attend college.

Lee Nelson is a member of the FFA, letterman's club, National Honor society and participates in basketball and football. Gary Anderson is a member of FFA, student council, and letterman's club and participates in basketball, football and baseball. He is vice president of his 4-H club and active in his church.

No individual information was provided on the Girls State candidates.

Boys State is conducted annually by the American Legion as a special study of how government works in the United States. For one week the campus college will set up a mock government in action, run by Boys State delegates from all parts of the state. Delegates from Thief River Falls and Goodridge are selected each year by Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 on the basis of scholarship, activity and interest.

Minnesota Girls State is a practical application of Americanism and good citizenship training for a selected group of girls through a week of intensive "living" of government, in groups patterned after our own city, county and state governing bodies. Purpose is for the participants to become better citizens, spread the gospel of good citizenship throughout their own schools and communities and learn of the contribution women can make to the welfare of city, county, state and nation.

GOODRIDGE will be represented at Boys State and Girls State by Lee Nelson and Susan Hoffman. The juniors at Goodridge high school were selected for participation in the program with their trips sponsored by Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 of the American Legion and auxiliary in Thief River Falls.

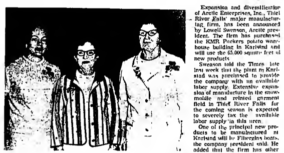
Arctic Buys Potato Building at Karlstad



TWO LOCAL WOMEN were elected District 1 officers of Business and Professional Women's clubs at a meeting held in Thief River Falls Saturday. They are Mrs. Dolores Johnson (center) who was chosen as chairman succeeding Lyndell Netzer of Bemidji and Mrs. JoAnn Reeve (left) who was elected as secretary-treasurer. Florence Richardson (right) of the Leech Lake-Walker club was selected to replace Dolores Johnson as vice chairman. The district meeting, hosted by the local club, was held at the Elks club rooms.

Expansion and diversification of Arctic Enterprises, Inc., Thief River Falls' major manufacturing firm, has been announced by Lowell Swenson, Arctic president. The firm has purchased the KMR Packers potato warehouse building in Karlstad and will use the 65,000 square feet of new products.

Swenson told the Times late last week that the plant in Karlstad was purchased to provide the company with an available labor supply. Extensive expansion of manufacture in the snowmobile and related garment field in Thief River Falls for the coming season is expected to severely tax the available labor supply in this area.

One of the principal new products to be manufactured at Karlstad will be Fiberglas boats, the company president said. He added that the firm has other possible products in mind for manufacture which he did not wish to disclose at the present time. It is not anticipated that the Karlstad operation will provide any parts or components directly related to the Thief River Falls snowmobile manufacture.

The KMR plant, which has become inoperative as a potato washing and bagging facility, has been used exclusively as a warehouse by stockholders of the corporation. Its large open interior space and insulated walls make it ideal for the use intended by Arctic Enterprises, Swenson said.

According to the Karlstad Advocate, in which purchase of the facility was announced, there are still potatoes in the bins and some of the washing machinery is still in the front portion of the building. The machinery is expected to be removed quickly and contractors will likely be working to remodel the front portion of the building before the end of March. Bin walls will be replaced with steel griders and the floor will be completely re-done, the Karlstad newspaper reports.

The Advocate also speculated that a working staff of about 30 persons would be employed in the initial operation of the firm, and that the work force might be enlarged to 200 in the ensuing months.

Swenson told the Times that Arctic has a ready-made distribution system arranged for its snowmobile products, and that the distributors are waiting for more items to sell. He is optimistic about the manufacture of new products and the public reception they will receive. In anticipation of possible future expansion, arrangements have been made to acquire whatever property may be needed for expansion at the Karlstad site.

The Arctic president complimented the civic-minded people at Karlstad for their efforts.

Farmes Presents Paper On Insurance for Depredation

(Editor's Note: Robert E. Farmes of Thief River Falls, area game manager for the Minnesota department of conservation presented a paper entitled "Crop Insurance for Waterfowl Depredation" at the annual North American Wildlife and Natural Resources conference March 5 in Washington, D.C. Because of the concern about crop damage due to waterfowl in this area, and the interest by farmers and sportsmen in the problem, the presentation is being published here in its entirety.)

"In these days of waterfowl scarcity, when Federal, State and local agencies entrusted with the conservation of wildlife are practically unanimous in the opinion that the wild fowl of North America are in a precarious condition and that some species are possibly in danger of extermination, it may seem strange that suggestions for the reduction of damage by them are called for."

The statement was made in 1935 by E. R. Kalmbach in the introduction to a leaflet published by the Bureau of Biological Survey (Kalmbach, 1935). Over 33 years have elapsed and yet this statement is equally applicable today.

In those years considerable attention has been given to the waterfowl depredations problem. Numerous writers have problems in a number of areas and many have written about various control techniques. The problem is so well known, as are the various techniques of feeding and scaring, that they will not be reviewed here.

Despite the fact that a great deal has been done to alleviate the problem in certain areas, depredations by waterfowl are still an almost annual occurrence in some areas and each year more and more farmers are getting a taste of waterfowl damage to their crops.

The seriousness of the problem has been stated time and time again. Day (1949) in his review of the problem said that if Government agencies do not reduce crop damages to a reasonable level, farmers would feel remedies they could. Leitch (1951) in discussing waterfowl management in western Canada considered a solution to the duck depredation problem an urgent need. Munroe and Gallop (1955) speaking of the same area felt that crop damage was the limiting factor and the major land-use problem on the breeding grounds. Bossenmaier and Marshall (1958) recognized that waterfowl programs would suffer as long as they grossly conflict with agriculture and spoke of a moral obligation. More recently Hammond (1964) has said, "The small-grain farmer holds the future of waterfowl in the palm of his calloused hand. At times he is in the mood to throw it away. Hordes of ducks gorge on his full crops. Sometimes they trample more than they eat. Hunters in pursuit of grain-fed ducks may scatter his swaths, leave his gates open, throw away beer cans to pass through his combine and thumb their noses at him if he protests their carelessness. No wonder the western grain farmer has reservations about the value of waterfowl."

In recognition of the seriousness of the problem in Minnesota the legislature made a study of the problem and sued a special report of duck depredation in northwestern Minnesota (M.O.R.R.C. 1967).

In the early 1960's a waterfowl depredations control committee was formed in Minnesota to coordinate the control activities between the Minnesota

Beet Growers To See Program Mar. 25 and 27

All segments of the sugarbeet industry in the Red River Basin have teamed up to organize a top-level program which will be presented March 25 at the West Fargo fair grounds and March 27 at the Red River Valley Winter Shows arena.

Over forty representatives of the fertilizer, machinery, herbicide and other allied companies have purchased booth space to demonstrate their products to the growers of sugar beets. Additionally, electronic thinners will be on display. Top-level speakers from the processing industry, from Land Grant colleges, and from Manitoba, Canada, will present slides and discussion on weed seedling identification, chemical weed control, using soil analysis to determine fertilizer requirements for sugar beets in Manitoba, soil testing recommendations, and planting depth studies. A question-and-answer period winds up the day.

Gerald H. Smith, extension sugarbeet specialist, is the chairman of the arrangements committee made up of representatives of the Sugarbeet Growers association, American Crystal Sugar company, Holly Sugar corporation, the Northwest Agricultural Experiment station, Crookston, and the Extension Services from North Dakota and Minnesota.

All sugarbeet growers and others interested in seeing the latest from the allied industries and hearing some of the latest information on the culture of sugarbeets are invited to be present. The program commences at 9 a.m. with registration and viewing of the exhibits. Coffee will be available upon arrival. The sugarbeet institute program will begin at 10 a.m. Noon lunch will be served on the grounds. The program will "wind up" in late afternoon at each location.

Swanson Joins Minn. Committee Health Sciences

Ernest L. Swanson, Goodridge is a newly-appointed member-at-large of the Minnesota Committee for University Health Sciences, according to Gerald T. Mullin, chairman.

"The enthusiastic response we are receiving from throughout the State exceeds our expectations and is most encouraging," said former state senator Mullin. "The crisis in health care manpower in Minnesota is real, it is serious, and it is here now. It is evident from the response that the people of Minnesota are concerned about the need for reversing the downward trend in available health sciences manpower."

Swanson joins an impressive state-wide group of leading citizens, including the University of Minnesota board of regents, Deans of the college of medical sciences, college of pharmacy, school of dentistry, the college of veterinary medicine, and directors of the school of public health and the school of nursing, as well as civic, religious, educational, medical, dental and paramedical leaders in Minnesota. In accepting this position, Swanson will help in the dissemination of information about the University Health Sciences proposal in this community.

MRS. IVER BLADE of Viking

"Treasure Bars", what a provocative name for today's recipe. But then, can't most homemakers be labeled as treasure hunters? As such, they are constantly searching for new methods of preparing foods that will tempt the family's appetite. When a receipe is found that meets with the approval of the family, it is placed in the permanent file, to be brought out and used again and again.

TREASURE BARS

Crust
1 cup shifted flour
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup butter or margarine.

Method: Combine flour and sugar, and cut in butter, like making a pie crust. Press into a greased 9x13 pan and bake in a 350 degree oven for 12 minutes.

Topping
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs slightly beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup walnuts
1 cup coconut
½ cup chocolate chips

Method: Add sugar and vanilla to slightly beaten eggs and continue beating until light and fluffy. Combine flour, baking powder and salt and add to egg mixture. Fold in the remaining ingredients and spread over baked crust. Return to the oven and bake for 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool and cut into bars.

The Iver Blades returned to the Viking community after leaving there in 1953. Employed by the Lakehead Pipeline company, Blade is serving as station chief at Viking. Prior to coming to this area in January, they lived in Wisconsin. They have two sons, Randy, enrolled at Superior State University in Wisconsin, and Greg, who is in the sixth grade at Viking.

In addition to taking care of her home and family, Mrs. Blade enjoys bowling.

Five-Day Plan To Quit Smoking Starts Tonight

With about 25 persons registered early this morning and additional registrations being received during the day, the five-day plan to stop smoking will begin tonight (Monday) at the new vocational-technical school. The building is located east of Thief River Falls on highway 1.

Persons who have not pre-registered may feel free to register at the first meeting tonight, according to Dr. Leo Herber of the Thief River clinic. The clinic is sponsoring the course and a physician or dentist will be in attendance at all sessions. Eugene Armour of the American Temperance society will also be present through the five days and will provide displays and information to participants.

A five-dollar registration fee is being charged and will be refunded to all persons who take the five-day plan but do not quit smoking, Dr. Herber said. Each nightly session through Friday will be held from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The course utilizes a special program booklet with individual aids and instructions, a "buddy" system and group therapy for reassurance and special instructional programs. "This plan is the easiest way to give up smoking with the least discomfort," Dr. Herber said.

Former RLF Editor Buys State Papers

George W. Christie, former editor of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, and Edmund Johnson of Edina announced their purchase of the Kanabec County Times at Mora, the Braham Journal, and the Ogilvie Sentinel. They assumed operation March 1.

Christie was a member of the Gazette staff for 20 years and became editor upon the death of his father in 1956. The Gazette was sold last June by Mrs. George W. Christie, Sr., to Harold Nelson.

Johnson, who has been in advertising in Minneapolis, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson of Red Lake Falls.

The two families will remain in their respective homes until the current school term is finished.

Lyceum Program Slated Thursday At Lincoln HS

"My Country 'Tis of Thee," a program of Americans, by Americans and for Americans, will be given Thursday at 3 p.m. at Lincoln auditorium.

Greg Godeke, a member of the touring theatre, will present the inspiring words of those Americans for whom the issues of the day were deserving of unreserved commitment.

The script will range from Robert E. Lee's final speech to his troops to John F. Kennedy's inaugural address with the challenge, "Ask not what your country can do for you, but what you can do for your country." The speeches of Abraham Lincoln and lines of Carl Sandburg are also included.

Admitted purpose of the program is to encourage those who hear it to take pride in the United States. According to the creator of the program, there is much to inspire in the U.S.A. of yesterday and today. This hour of re-enactment is to serve as a reminder of America's greatness.

"My Country 'Tis of Thee" is touring the Upper Midwest under the direction of the University of Minnesota Program Service, a division of the Department of Concerts and Lectures.

MEA To Present Views, Answer Questions Tues.

Residents in the Thief River Falls school district may hear the views of the Minnesota Education association regarding salary negotiations in a special interview to begin at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday on KTRF radio and cable television.

Donald L. Olson, station manager, will interview Allen Thielmich, assistant executive secretary in charge of informational services for the MEA; Al Sollom, field representative for the MEA; and Ted Hellie, co-chairman of the teachers' salary negotiating team in Thief River Falls.

The program format will include informational presentation by the three MEA representatives, questions from the interviewer, and questions which may be telephoned to the station. Olson said the time allotment for the program is an "open end" commitment, and it will continue until it seems that most reasonable questions have been answered.

Deadlines Noted To Ask Loans On Farm Crops

Producers enrolled in farm programs who want loans on 1968 crops of wheat, barley, oats, rye, rice, dry edible beans and flaxseed should request the loans at the county ASCS office by the end of March for rye and the end of April for the other crops mentioned. This is one month before the maturity, according to Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee.

Final dates for requesting the loan are one month before the loan maturity date for the particular commodity. If the crop is not placed under loan, it may be sold to the Commodity Credit corporation by notifying the ASCS county office before the loan maturity date, Knutson said.

Growers who are considering the reseal of 1968 crops under loan—either on farms or in commercial warehouses—also should file a request for extension of the loans. The 1968 crops eligible for reseal are wheat, corn, grain sorghum, oats, barley and soybeans. Reseal loans on older crops which are stored on farms will be extended automatically without the filing of a request.

New procedures for loan extensions on 1967-crop and 1968-crop grains being transferred from farm storage to commercial warehouses, call for the grain to be transferred and the loan disbursed by the maturity date for the crop involved.

Knutson pointed out that price-support loans enable producers to market crops when prices are most favorable. Crops may be redeemed from loans any time before maturity by paying off the loan plus interest.

Farmes Presents Paper at U.S. Wildlife Meeting

Division of Game and Fish and the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife. Depredations problems are common in a two county area in northwestern Minnesota where the State Roseau River and Thief Lake Wildlife Management Areas and the Aggassiz National Wildlife Refuge are located. As a result of the formation of this committee both the State and the Federal agencies have taken a more positive role in trying to control the problem. This program consists of feeding on the major wildlife areas together with searing on private lands.

While these measures have done a great deal to help alleviate the problem, the committee believes that if the average grain farmer is going to look upon ducks as something more than pests, more has to be done. In search of new ideas, the committee has expanded to include the Soil Conservation Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation and the University of Minnesota Extension Service. In addition, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife personnel from North Dakota with considerable experience in depredations work including personnel from the Northern Prairie Wildlife Research Center joined the group.

Discussions at these expanded committee meetings have involved such things as the various feeding and scaring techniques, methods of harvesting crops, possible new crops or new crop varieties and direct payments for losses including an insurance program. It was generally agreed that research efforts should be directed primarily at developing methods of avoidance rather than by developing new and better techniques of combative action.

Through the efforts of the depredations control committee, a special Agricultural Conservation Practice was adopted by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service aimed at alleviating the waterfowl depredation problem. Limited to one county on a trial basis, it provides for small grain plantings of 10 acres per 160 acres of ownership to be left in the field until all other grain in the area is harvested. To date too few farmers have adopted the practice to evaluate it.

Students Study In Northwestern Therapy Dep't.

Two occupational therapy assistant students, Miss Carol Rose and Miss Karen Anderson, from the Duluth Area Institute of technology, started a four week student affiliation at the Northwestern hospital occupational therapy department today, under the direction of Art Heinze.

Economist Says Eggs Are Bargain In Nutrition

Eggs are economical, protein-packed convenience foods containing substantial amounts of vitamin A and iron, riboflavin and thiamine, according to Verna Mikesh, extension nutritionist at the University of Minnesota. They can be used as meat substitutes for Lenten meals, served as an early morning eye opener and add glamor to the dessert course.

Anyone can master the art of egg cookery, Miss Mikesh says, by choosing high-quality eggs—Grade AA or Grade A—and cooking egg dishes at low to moderate temperatures.

The university nutritionist gives these added tips to success with egg cookery:

To avoid curdling, add hot liquid a little at a time to beaten eggs, stirring constantly. If you use the reverse order, adding the eggs to the mixture, the result will be lumpy or curdled because the hot mixture will cook the eggs immediately.

For biggest volume, have egg whites at room temperature before beating. Since eggs separate more readily when cold, separate them at once after removing them from the refrigerator and then let them warm up to room temperature.

For custards and souffles, set the baking dish in a pan of hot water.

Make hard meringues on a plate or package in an airtight container and keep frozen until needed. If made on a very humid day, meringues may be gummy.

Remember that one egg is equivalent to one tablespoon of flour if you are using eggs for thickening pie filling, salad dressing, sauces or puddings.

Amateur Artists Receive Awards At Annual Show

Twenty amateur rural artists received gold merit award ribbons in this year's University of Minnesota town and country art show.

The show opened March 9 in the University of Minnesota's student center galleries on the St. Paul campus.

Winners of the merit awards, as announced by A. Russell Burton, coordinator, are Mrs. Jennie Arkins, White Bear Lake; D. E. Arneson, Rogers; Julia Barkley, Annandale; Jeffery Black, Hutchinson; Nancy Carlson, Millie Miller and Connie Wesner, Appleton; Maude M. Kelly, Brooklyn Park; V. Kraft, Zimmerman; Durlene Kmupa, Alexandria; Valdis Malnquist, Buffalo.

Also Gladys Patterson, Walker; Sue Sharp, Pine City; Ruth Simmons, Roseville; James Turkla, Britt; Mrs. Sylvester Wesley, Waterville; Beatrice Windhorn, St. Peter; Rita Teff, Foley; and Louise A. Malcolm, Inver Grove Heights.

Nine oils, five watercolors, one acrylic, two tempera, a woodcut, a plaster cast and a metal sculpture were represented in the awards. Merit award exhibits will be hung in the American-Swedish institute in Minneapolis from April 6 to April 27.

Included in this year's art show are 266 paintings and pieces of sculpture by Minnesota rural artists throughout Minnesota.

The Minnesota town and country art show will continue through March 28. Viewing hours are 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. week days and 12 noon to 10 p.m. Sundays. The show is open to the public, free of charge. A special program of demonstrations, lectures and gallery tours will be featured during the closing week.

Social Security Benefits Given To Disabled

A person severely disabled before age 31 may now qualify for disability benefits with less than five years of work under social security, Clifford Kittelson, district manager for social security pointed out today.

If a person under 31 has earned quarters under social security in at least half of the quarters from age 21 until the time he became disabled, he now meets the time test. Anyone disabled before age 24 qualifies with six quarters (1½ years) of work. Work before age 21 can count toward this time requirement.

The disabled person who meets this time requirement may qualify for benefits if he is so disabled that he is unable to do any gainful work of consequence for at least 12 months.

Any seriously disabled young person who thinks that he may qualify should contact the social security administration in Grand Forks, N.D.

PTA Supports Legislation To Aid Juveniles

A call to action has gone out to the more than 1,000 PTA units throughout the state, urging members to write their legislators in support of legislation to bring about improvements in the detention and rehabilitation of juvenile delinquents.

According to Mrs. E. E. Jacobsen, state president, "The PTA is concerned over reports that legislators are hearing little or nothing from constituents about this need. Unfortunately children in trouble with the law cannot lobby for themselves, nor do they usually come from an environment that is likely to make its voice heard.

"PTA can be this voice, speaking in behalf of children who need help, and need it now, in order to grow into responsible citizens. With the growing number of juvenile crimes and the increasing pressures of today's society upon children and youth, it is important that the problem be dealt with this session. Postponement will not only lead to greater costs but greater anguish on the part of parents and children who need help."

PTA members were also asked to support legislation making kindergarten mandatory throughout the state and legislation to strengthen the private trade school act.

Salty Advice: The average American is eating forty times as much salt as he or she needs. . More than enough salt is present in bread, frozen foods, soups and meats as well as nearly all prepared foods.. Blood pressure of many patients with high blood pressure returns to normal, without other medication, when they eat low salt diets.

People, Cars and Guns

The following editorial by Dick McCune appeared in the "Outdoor Times":

It is interesting to note the approach being used these days by highway officials and related researchers to solve the nation's motor vehicle fatality problem, as outlined in recent newpaper articles.

Millions of supposedly "normal" people, an item said, become emotionally disturbed as the result of personal experiences, and contribute to the deaths of 1,000 people a week on U.S. highways.

Extensive surveys have been conducted to find the cause. In up to 80 per cent of the traffic accidents, it's been found to be the emotional condition of the operator.

"A driver's emotions, such as fear, anger, depression, elation and others," says the item, "impairs his perception and delay or block his reaction." He may look directly at a stop light, then drive through it, or he may fail to see a car merging into his traffic lane."

What's the reason for such abnormal behavior? The American Medical Association's Committee on Automotive Injuries and Deaths says that normal individuals under stress are antagonistic, impulsive and openly aggressive, or they are despondent or absorbed in problems.

It all makes a lot of sense, so much so that the Federal Highway Act of 1968 requires states to evaluate drivers suspected of emotional instability. Several programs have been initiated by researchers, all aimed at educating motor vehicle operators.

The interesting part about all this is that people, not cars, have been mentioned in all phases of the problem. People, not cars, cause accidents in this particular case. Probers recognize one simple fact—that cars are merely a tool used by people.

And they pinpoint emotion in people to be the root of the problem. Eliminate the causes of why people behave the way they do and you eliminate the nation's annual slaughter of human beings on the highways.

Why does it have to be different with firearms? Far fewer persons are fatally injured with guns than are killed in or by motor vehicles. Cars are registered, but the slaughter continues. Yet, no one advocates outlawing cars or confiscating them as a solution to the problem.

Researchers have shown a penetrating insight in analyzing the motor vehicle fatality problem and sound logic in the direction of a solution. They have discovered that autos do not kill people, especially when parked. People kill people when they get behind the wheel and drive irresponsibly.

Why isn't the same logic applied to people and guns? Why the different approach in attempting to reduce the nation's crime rate as though guns were the only tools criminals use? Why is the gun the point of concern and not the person who uses it?

A Point to Ponder

Too many people tend to look at federal grants as "free money" without realizing that it costs them $100 to get $78 from Uncle Sam. Just where that kind of expense gets to be a bargain takes an awful lot of explanation, but the American people have been "sold" on it over the years.

Writing in Minnesota News Features, Orlin Folwick states: "State budgets have become complicated things in recent years, particularly since the federal government discovered it was collecting far more money from the people than it needed for its own operation. Now, instead of cutting the tax levies for its purposes, it levies more and emerges in the process as a great, beneficient Big Daddy to the people by turning back in 'grants' and 'aids' many billions of dollars.

"Hence, Minnesota can expect to get back from the federal government some $690 million during the next two years for education, highways, welfare and research. Wisconsin expects something in the neighborhood of $800 million.

"But the federal goverment's cost in collecting, handling and sending this money back to the states runs around 22 per cent. If the two states could keep this money without sending it first to Washington, they'd have some $300 million more than they get," Folwick notes.

And, like the legislator remarked to his fellow lawmaker on leaving an appropriations hearing: "Maybe it is petty, but you save a million here and a million there and after a while it amounts to something."

The Rural Parents' Role?

What is the role of parents in rural communities? If one would believe the economists and education and sociologists, it is to prepare their youngsters for life in the cities.

And what brings this to mind again is an article by Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Crummy of Argyle, active 4-H club leaders in Marshall county, who attended a state leaders forum in St. Paul. The Crummys quoted Larry Harris, an assistant superintendent of the Minneapolis public schools, who spoke at the forum.

"Raise your 4-H kids so you'd be proud to have them as neighbors and we'll welcome them into the city," Harris mean it the way it sounds, but we interpret the idea as being a bit overly possessive. We're just not so sure we want our kids to be swallowed up in the brick and mortar of the asphalt jungle, welcome or not.

We like to think that all is not lost for the rural area, and that sociologists and economists and planners and consultants and philosophers and others will soon come to realize that the good life is in the country and not in the urban areas. Industry is beginning to realize this, and is expanding in smaller communities whenever feasible. Government, in spite of its tradition to act in the least efficient and most costly manner on all items it undertakes, may come to realize it too.

When the word finally gets around; when the cities have become a little older and more crowded and dirtier; when people long to leave the cities for a breath of fresh air and some uncluttered scenery instead of only to pull a few burglaries or steal hubcaps; when crime becomes too common, traffic too congested and living costs too high; then the return to the country will be a salvation for many city dwellers.

We who choose to live in the country realize that we are blessed with the finer things in life. Our kids grow up to be good neighbors because they grow up in an environment surrounded by good neighbors. In the country, being a good neighbor is a way of life, not an unnatural challenge.

And we think that people who choose to live in the country are not being selfish if they strive to make a place for their children in the country. It should not be the main purpose of rural parents (and by rural we mean non-urban) to produce children train and educate them in responsible citizenship and employment skills, and export them to the urban clutter of smokestacks, riots and crime.

. . . So I Quit School

The following commentary appeared in the Minnesota School Boards association journal:

Me, Eugene Jefferson, tough dude, a cool guy. School I didn't dig it, nothing but a drag. I couldn't use those teachers always yellin' and those books weren't sayin' too much. I wanted to get out and do something, so I quit.

The first few days were dynamite. I hung around the gym, hit the poolroom, a few parties, you know. And then there weren't any happenings and I needed some dough so I figured te check me out a job.

Right away this dude asks me if I have a high school diploma. And when I said like no dad, he started talking about skilled personnel requirements." I said I didn't know about that jive, but did he have a job for me. He said he had no job for me.

It ain't like I couldn't get some kinda job, but, man, after they take for Sam and whatnot, you want to have some folding stuff left to front with. Besides, what chick is gonna groove with a dude who's got no dough. And I want to pick up Aretha's latest soul sound.

The man said I looked like a nice boy and that maybe he could find something for me. I told him "boy play with Tarzan" and that I WANTED A MAN'S JOB. He started rapping about how I didn't have the skills to do a man's job, but that he could teach me a little. He said I didn't have enough education to really knew all about it.

This job is really a drag and the man gives me nothing but grief. He says that he might have to lay me off next week. I wonder if I can find another gig? Wonder if I coulda got a btter job if I'd stayed in school? I wonder what I'm gonna do for scratch next week?

Eugene Jefferson will spend many years wondering about his future. If he had spent just a few more years in school, he would have known.

Borrowed Nonsense . . .

"If you had seven pieces of candy," the teacher asked the small boy in arithmetic class, 'and I asked you to give me four of them, how many would you have left?"

"Seven," the lad honestly replied.

MINNESOTA'S FUTURE
University of Minnesota • Agricultural Extension Service

The development of regional trade centers may be the answer to decreasing population and economic opportunities in rural Minnesota areas, according to Wilbur Maki and John Hoyt, Jr., University of Minnesota economists.

Writing in a recent issue of the "Minnesota Agricultural Economist," Maki and Hoyt say that every community with more than 10,000 people has the potential of becoming a regional trade center if it has the potential to provide adequate goods and services to a multi-county area of over 100,000 population.

In the report, the economists identified 29 Minnesota cities as potential growth centers, including four with less than 10,000 population. These cities are Thief River Falls, International Falls, Bemidji, Hibbing, Virginia, Fergus Falls, Wadena, Brainerd, St. Cloud, Willmar, Marshall, Mankato, Albert Lea, Austin, Rochester, Winona, Worthington, Minneapolis - St. Paul, Fargo - Moorhead and Duluth-Superior.

The economists quickly point out, however, that this is not an exhaustive or exclusive listing of potential growth centers. Other communities can become growth centers if they utilize and develop their resources properly.

In addition, four cities outside of Minnesota may serve as potential growth centers for Minnesota regions. These cities are Brookings, Watertown and Sioux Falls, South Dakota, and LaCrosse, Wisconsin.

Today exactly half of the small Minnesota communities of 200 to 10,000 people are less than 30 miles from growth centers, Maki and Hoyt say. The remaining half are spread over a 30-50 mile zone and beyond from growth centers. In addition, more than 55 per cent of the small communities in the state are less than 100 miles from the central business districts of Minneapolis-St. Paul.

Generally, towns and cities that are less than 30 miles from an area growth center and less than 100 miles from the Twin Cities face a more promising longrun economic future than communities located further away, the economists say.

Proximity to a growth center is a critical determinant of one important development alternative facing rural communities—becoming a residential community for individuals commuting to work in larger trade centers, for weekend and seasonal residents, and for retirees.

Maki and Hoyt believe that residents of small rural communities face three alternatives: continued concentration of population and industry in the Twin Cities metropolitan area, focused decentralization in outlying growth centers, and the development of new growth centers based on present and future technologies such as communication.

Each alternative has different implications for small cities and towns in the state.

To The Editor:

Our compliments to one college president who took "the bull by the horns" and finally told the students that "anyone or any group who substitutes force for rational persuasion, be it violent or non-violent, will be given 15 minutes of meditation to cease and desist." Those who could produce identity cards would be immediately suspended. If they did not stop within 5 minutes more they would be expelled. Those who did not have identity cards would be arrested as trespassers. That is the way to do it whether the students like it or not. We hope that the example set by the president of Notre Dame University will be followed in many other areas of the academic world. "Three cheers" for the president of Notre Dame. We can not afford to grant voting privileges to a group who is proving themselves irresponsible.

Bids To Open For Roseau Co. Road Project

Roseau county was listed among six county highway projects estimated to total approximately $767,800. Bids for the projects will be open the week of March 24, Commissioner of Minnesota Highways, N. T. Waldor reported.

Roseau county's project includes the construction of aggregated base, bituminous stabilized subgrade, plant-mixed bituminous surface and aggregate shoulders on 6.0 miles of CSAH 4 located between trunk highway 89, one mile south of Wannaska, and CSAH 9.

A New Wrinkle: If a wife makes her husband leave a project in which he is fully involved to take a vacation he is apt to spend that vacation under a good deal of stress. Staying on the job may keep him young and free from illness. Years wrinkle the skin but to give up enthusiasms wrinkles the soul.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Lung cancer occurs ten times more often today than it did 40 years ago, says the Minnesota State Medical Association. The steady increase is the most rapid ever reported for a noninfectious disease.

The search for its causes has been intense. Although total agreement is lacking, most scientists believe that excessive cigarette smoking is a major cause of lung cancer.

Statistical studies reported by the U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare and the American Cancer Society show that lung cancer death rates are ten times as high in patients with a history of regular cigarette smoking than in nonsmokers. Among two-pack-a-day smokers, the rate is more than 60 times as high.

Scientific evidence confirms statistical studies. Seven of the many compounds found in tobacco smoke and tars have been proved cancer causing for laboratory animals; other substances promote cancer production or make animal tissues more susceptible to a cancer-causing agent. Laboratory studies also indicate that smoke interferes in normal lung functions and allows accumulations on bronchial tube linings.

Since about 10 percent of all cases of lung cancer occurs in nonsmokers it is obvious that the use of tobacco is not the only cause although the association of each of the others is minor in comparison.

Early diagnosis of lung cancer is very difficult and consequently, rare. The first symptoms of lung cancer—a cough, wheeze, vague chest pain—rarely lead a patient to suspect lung cancer. The chest X-ray examination can tell the doctor far more than can symptoms. Bloodstreaked sputum is the initial symptom of lung cancer in only about five percent of the cases. It is the symptom however, that is apt to send the patient to the doctor with the least delay.

Longtime survival for lung cancer patients is, unfortunately, the exception rather than the rule. Relatively few cancers can be cured by removal of the lung or a portion of it.

X-ray treatment is generally given for relief to patients who cannot benefit from surgery. Scientists are also exploring the effectiveness of combining radiation and surgery in addition to combining surgery and drugs, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

Bernard Crummys Write Report on Leader Forum

(Editor's Note: Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Crummy of Argyle, who attended the state 4-H leaders forum held in St. Paul, wrote the following report. Mr. Crummy is president of the 4-H executive council in Marshall county.)

The state 4-H leaders forum which we attended in St. Paul this winter was sponsored by the Sears Roebuck Foundation in cooperation with the agricultural extension service of the University of Minnesota.

It was planned to help 4-H leaders gain inspiration and a deep commitment to their work with young people. It also aimed at providing opportunities for leaders to voice their perception of needs in 4-H, to suggest ways to meet those needs and to gain an understanding of the new levels of leadership in the 4-H program.

To accomplish these aims, members heard a panel discussion on "Breakthroughs in 4-H Programs" and took part in informal roundtable discussions on such topics as recruiting adult leaders, obtaining the cooperation of parents, teaching project material and evaluating the work of members. Leaders also made use of a "brag corner" to exhibit newspaper clippings, pictures, scrapbooks and other items illustrating activities which had been successful in their local clubs.

Another objective of the forum was to help leaders gain a better understanding of youth and their adjustment to an urban environment. Dr. Paul Cashman, an assistant vice president of the University of Minnesota, gave us his "View of Today's Youth" and some suggestions for bridging the generation gap.

He explained that our young people have been indoctrinated with the value system of their parents up to (and sometimes through) their high school years. They then discover with shock that the conduct of adults doesn't always square with the values of honesty, integrity and respect for others which their elders have preached to them. The young adult is confused and upset by this contradiction between ideals and reality and may react in a variety of ways. He may choose to ignore the problem and continue to follow the pattern of his elders; he may join the backlash by striking out at people or at the society which upsets him by taking part in looting and rioting or the hippie movement.

Another group of young adults after evaluating the standards of the older generation, may set about developing new standards for themselves. They decide which of the old values are still applicable to today's world and hold onto those, while discarding others as false or outdated. They also formulate new values to add to those they retain from their elders. It is with this group that adults can most easily work to bridge the generation gap.

In conclusion, Dr. Cashman said that young people are so concerned about our troubled times they have forgotten how to laugh; while adults have forgotten to show love for youth.

Another view of today's youth was presented by Mrs. Phyllis Williams, one of the 4-H leaders who worked with the state extension staff in directing the forum. She presented a group of records, illustrating the type of music that is popular with today's youth. She gave us copies of the words for songs while she played the records.

Some of the songs she discussed were "Nowhere Man", "Skip - A Rope", "Cinamin," "Son of A Preacher Man", "Love Child", "We Shall Overcome" and "Song of Peace" (Finlandia).

Some of these songs express the disillusionment of young people when they see adults talking one set of standards and living by another. Others express their reaction to the lives of their own generation and their attempt to tell it like it is. Most of these songs indicate loneliness, a feeling of frustration and disillusionment. A few, "We Shall Overcome" and the "Song of Peace" express hope for BETTER days to come.

Larry Harris, an assistant superintendent of Minneapolis public schools, spoke on the topic "Current 4-H Leaders and the Future Urban Citizen". He said the rural person who moves to the city must be flexible to change with the times because the future will be a time of many changes. A person can no longer expect to train for a job and continue in it throughout his working lifetime, but must expect to change jobs perhaps four or five times as automation replaces people with machines.

Increased leisure time, the result of shortened working days and weeks, will be a problem rather than a blessing for the urban resident of the future. Perhaps the greatest change in urban living and working conditions will occur as minority groups demand and fight for the first class citizenship that has been denied them in the past.

As the city becomes more of a melting pot racially, living in it will require increasing adjustments. Mr. Harris listed several characteristics of youth that will be necessary for a successful adjustment to urban living.

Self - respect is of first importance and it is followed by respect for others—the ability to disagree without being disagreeable. The ability to accept change and move with it, to work with others, to choose a field or activity suited to their skills and abilities and to volunteer for a certain project and to follow it through a completion, to listen, reflect, question and act.

Young people must be able to laugh and love and to have concern for others. Ideally we should judge our success by what we do for our neighbor, not by how many cars, T.V. sets, etc., we can amass in a lifetime. In summarizing his ideas, Mr. Harris said "Raise your 4-H kids so you'd be proud to have them as neighbors and we'll welcome them into the city."

QUESTIONS Answered for VETERANS

Q—The Veterans Administration pays $250 toward the burial expense of deceased eligible veterans. Is this allowance also payable when interment is in a national cemetery where there is no charge for the burial plot?

A—Yes. The place of burial makes no difference. The $250 allowance is paid toward the total funeral expense.

Q—My aunt is a widow of a Spanish - American War veteran. She receives $70 a month pension from the Veterans Administration. However, a friend of hers, who is also a Spanish-American War veteran's widow receives $75 a month from the VA. Why the difference?

A—The $75 check goes to the widow of a Spanish-American War veteran who was married to the veteran during all or part of that war. The widow, such as your aunt, apparently, who married such a veteran after the war receives the $70 monthy check.

Q—I was awarded a pension and move to Florida. Will the profit I receive on the sale of the home affect my VA pension?

A—Not directly. Proceeds from the sale of property are not considered income for veterans under the present pension law. However, you are advised to notify VA of the sale because net worth is also a consideration under the pension law in determining penion entitlement. While you live in the home its value is not reportable as part of your net worth, but when you convert it to cash, the cash is considered part of net worth. For further information and assistance in this matter, check with your nearest VA office or local County Service Officer.

AAA Scores Bill To Prevent Gas Tax Deduction

A proposal in Congress which would deny motorists the right to deduct their state gas taxes on their federal income tax returns was branded today "another soak-the-motorist measure which would bear most heavily on low income families," by Harlan Heid, Mankato, Minnesota AAA president.

Heid sent telegrams to all Minnesota House Representatives urging them to oppose the measure.

On the national level, George F. Kachlein Jr., executive vice-president of the American Automobile association (AAA), appeared before the House Ways and Means committee last Monday to oppose the proposal which was part of a tax reform package now undergoing hearings in the House.

"For the average Minnesota motorist," Heid said, "such a proposal would result in the loss of the right to deduct about $50 or more from his federal income tax. AAA feels strongly that the present provision permitting deduction of state gasoline taxes . . . should definitely be continued. If eliminated, the added tax burden would be felt much more by lower and middle income groups."

The AAA head pointed out that, to the majority of Minnesotans, "the automobile is an absolute necessity in gaining a livelihood. . .not a luxury." Heid said the proposal in the House "consists more of backsliding than reform, since it would write one more inequity into the federal tax structure.

"It seems fairly obvious that owners of cars are the most heavily taxed class of citizens in America today," Heid added. "Their annual bill in special taxes as highway users. . .based solely on their ownership and use of motor vehicles. . .is more than $9.23 billion a year."

Heid also urged restoration of a provision, eliminated in 1964, which permitted deductions for automobile license plate fees.

Gout is Good: Uric acid, one of the factors of gout, has often been implicated in business and intellectual success. Elevations of cholesterol, were seen in these individuals under a successful training situation. Interesting was the fact that those who did not have as high a level of uric acid elevation did not complete the course. Gout may not only have its compensations, it may be necessary for some people's full personality development.

VA Head Says Vets Should Read Letters

Newly returned veterans in Minnesota should not overlook information they receive in the mail from the Veterans administration about job opportunities, money for education, free medical care and other benefits.

John R. Murphy, manager of the VA center in St. Paul, said today that computers are used to help bring information on veterans benefits to recently released servicemen at the time they are most likely to act on it.

One problem, Murphy observed is that many organizations and agencies are trying to reach the new veteran at a time when he is unsettled and likely to be moving about. So VA contacts with the veteran are carefully planned with this problem in mind, he said.

Before separation, most servicemen are briefed on their veterans benefits, and many in Vietnam are briefed by VA while they are still in the field. Servicemen about to be discharged are shown a movie on benefits. Printed information is also available at separation centers and the separation process sets up still another contact.

A copy of every discharge goes to VA's computer center in Austin, Tex. Computer-produced letters are sent to the veteran's home address and, in the case of veterans who have not finished high school, copies go to the VA regional office nearest their homes.

The computer takes note of whether the veteran has completed high school or if he has a disability, and produces a letter to fit the circumstances. For example, the man who hasn't finished high school is asked, "Do you want to finish high school? Do you want a job? Do you want help in buying a home? Do you want medical or dental treatment?"

Murphy said letters to all veterans give a VA telephone number where more information is available. A pre-addressed inquiry card is enclosed so that the man who wants help on a specific subject by mail has only to check the right box. If he writes in his telephone number, a VA officer will call to set up an interview. For the veteran without a high school diploma who has not responded, there is still another letter. He is advised that an appointment has been made for him with a VA representative. If he can't make it, he is asked to select a more convenient time.

Murphy said that Vietnam veterans returning home in small numbers "might not be met by parades and bands, but they are never overlooked by the mailman." He urged that relatives and friends ensure that mail left with them for a veteran actually reaches the veteran.

Whether the mail catches up or not, he said, all recently released servicemen should be urged to write or visit the VA center at St. Paul or the county veterans service officer in their vicinity.

Highway Dep't. Has Many Acres On Right-of-Way

Minnesota highway department operates one of the largest farming activities in the state.

The rights-of-way along its over 12,700 miles of highways, roads and streets will include over 250,000 acres when the federal interstate highway system is completed in 1974. This includes 75,000 acres of actual road surface and 175,000 acres of roadside.

In 1968 the cost for the various roadside environmental projects cost $1,844,544 out of the highway department's total amount let for new highway construction of $120,273,002, or 1.5 per cent of the total dollars expended on new highway construction.

This was used to seed 6,061 acres which cost $97,321 and required 286,327 pounds of seed which cost $166,950. The cost of 1,791,837 square yards of sodding delivered and laid was $747,490 and 6,918 tons of mulching materials cost $569,997. The 1,574 tons of commercial fertilizer used cost $178,456 and 1,228 tons of lime cost an additional $17,338.

A Puff And Up

Nylon balloon is inflated by air pump by Speedspace Corporation, Santa Rosa, California, a subsidiary of Potlatch Forests, Inc., to unfold and erect one-room prefab building. When blown up the balloon is 20-feet long by 10-feet high. After folded roof emerges and reaches eaves height, metal pole jacks are installed as temporary supports. Then wall sections which are hinged at center end sections, are unfolded. Longitudinal walls tilt up from inside. Sequence is repeated on other side of the building. Speedspace buildings are in demand for schools. Constructed of fiberglass-insulated plywood panels, average building costs about $13,000 installed. Fork lift or truck mounted crane can also be used instead of balloon.

Steak Factory Uses Thermal Heat Exchanger

Comfortable cattle quickly turn into quality steaks. In the world's first "steak factory" of its kind, comfort for the cattle is what it's all about.

A space-age steak factory looks like a cattle barn, but cattle lucky enough to get the space-age treatment never leave the building. They are kept from getting too warm or too cold, and have nothing to do but eat, drink and rest. As a result they are healthier and of a better quality sooner than cattle forced to live a more rugged existence.

Winter heating costs are reduced an estimated 80 per cent of normal in the steak factory, built by George Rauenhorst, an innovative farmer and a regent of the University of Minnesota. The building is located near Olivia, Rauenhorst's home town.

One of the main features of the structure is a thermal heat exchanger, 21 feet high and 160 feet long, which makes up one wall of the building. The sun's rays, shining through glass panes on this wall, are collected on black insulation material inside.

"Because solar radiation is practically the same in Minnesota as it is anywhere in the United States, it is sufficient to keep the heat exchanger working even though the day may not be sunny and warm," according to Professor Clarence Lund of the university's mechanical engineering department, who advised Rauenhorst in the project.

"The foul air from the cattle is our main source of heat," Rauenhorst points out. "The foul air is driven with high-velocity fans to the heat exchange wall. Here, the heat from this air is transferred to incoming fresh air without directly mixing with it. As a result, warm fresh air enters the building continuously while cold foul air leaves."

Air circulation in itself is another feature of the building. As air flows to the ceiling, it reenters through small openings, jetting and spreading to the floor. These air currents keep the floor dry, eliminating the necessity for frequent manure removal. No large doors have to be opened to disturb the temperature control system.

"Over a million cubic feet of air an hour is circulated through the building in making this work," Rauenhorst said.

"Moisture coming from the cattle moves into the air," Rauenhorst explained, "then freezes onto the heat exchanger surface when the air on the other side of this same surface is extremely cold.

"The next day, when the sun comes out, the rays coming through the glass heat the incoming air enough to dissipate the ice, formed the night before.

"About a thousand BTU's from cooling and condensation, plus about 210 BTU's from freezing each pound of water, are collected and used to heat the building.

"In effect, we 'borrow' from tomorrow's sunshine to rid the exchanger of ice so the exchanger is ready to work the next cold night."

In addition, Rauenhorst said, "We've found that the humidity inside is 20 per cent below the outside humidity on high humidity days."

In the summer, because the sun hits the building at a different angle, it is blocked by an overhang on the building. Because the building is well insulated, the same air flow system keeps the cattle cool and comfortable. This is done by increasing the air supply, causing moisture in the building to evaporate.

Under the direction of Rauenhorst and Lund, two graduate students from India, Satya Garg and Pradhash Rastagi, carried out the details and design of the heat exchanger. This work enabled the students to complete part of their requirements for advanced degrees in engineering.

Rauenhorst, who sees the structure as a symbol of what can be done on a farm, hopes that his fellow farmers will be inspired to look for more innovations.

State Taxpayers Receive Refunds Of $31,706,000

As of March first, 153,800 Minnesota taxpayers have received federal tax refund checks amounting to $31,706,000, according to George Lethert, IRS district director.

Last year, on the comparable date, approximately 63,000 more refund returns had been processed, and the amount returned to state taxpayers was more than $9 million greater.

It is too early to assume the shortage of refund returns is due to the 7½ per cent surcharge taxe which has been added to the regular 1968 tax liability, Lethert indicated.

Reports of taxpayer errors from the IRS service center in Kansas City indicate that 30 per cent of the incorrect returns reveal mistakes in the surcharge tax area. "Many taxpayers fail to add the surcharge," Lethert said. "Others compute their regular tax wrong, and then the added surcharge tax is not correct."

To assist taxpayers, the IRS has printed surcharge tax tables in the instruction booklet. If an individual's tax is $734 or less, the correct surcharge tax may be determined from the tables. If more than $734, individuals should compute 7½ per cent of the regular tax for the correct federal tax owing for 1968.

Mondale Pushes Bill for Dam At Twin Valley

Senator Walter F. Mondale has introduced legislation in the Senate to build a multiple-purpose dam on the Wild Rice river above Twin Valley. The measure will be co-sponsored by Senator Eugene McCarthy.

Sen. Mondale said the $8,352,000 project will help control recurring floods in the basin whose costs, according to Corps of Engineers study, average $497,800 annually based on 1966 prices. Water-based recreation and enhancement of wildlife habitat would also be provided by the dam, Sen. Mondale said.

The Wild Rice project authorization missed inclusion in the 1968 omnibus rivers and harbors bill because of executive necessary reports to the Congress, Mondale said. He introduced similar legislation last year, and said that he was hopeful of favorable consideration this year because of what he called "serious and recurring flood problems facing Minnesotans" which could be corrected by the legislation.

Traffic Course Open at Bagley Starting April 3

An extension course in traffic engineering will be offered in Bagley during the spring term, open to teachers in the area and regularly enrolled college students preparing for certification in driver education.

Organizational meeting for the course will be in the Bagley high school Thursday, April 3, at 6:30 p.m. Richard Haugo, Bemidji state college assistant professor of industrial education, will be instructor of the four-credit course.

Tuition is set at $40, payable at the initial organizational meeting. A minimum of 40 students will be needed to organize the course. Inquiries may be sent to Haugo, Bridgeman hall, room 230, BSC, or the the Director of Continuing Education, Memorial 202, BSC, 56601.

Browse Cutting Helps Deer, But Bill Is Needed

Hundreds of men, women and children are cutting browse for emergency deer feed in this winter of deep snow, reports Save Minnesota Deer, the Grand Rapids organization spearheading the project. Hundreds are mailing contributions to back the campaign to pass legislation to assure a continual program of deerherd improvement.

House File 975, introduced by Rep. Robert Renner of Walker, calls for the addition of $1.50 to the big game hunting license, with this surtax dedicated solely to improving winter deer feed on a year-around basis. Save Minnesota Deer is now urging residents to write to their legislators in favor of H. F. 975.

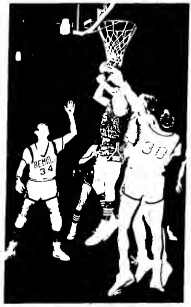
"It's wonderful to see browse cutting in the woods," says Save Minnesota Deer president Dave Shaw of Grand Rapids, "but the important thing is to get H. F. 975 passed so that winter food conditions will be improved every year."

Oddly enough many of the people sending cash for the campaign for legislation are not deer hunters.

"I'd love to come up there and help you fellows, but I'm too old at 78," says a man who has killed his share of deer. An elderly lady who has hunted deer all of her life sent a check.

A sixth grade class in New Brighton made posters and staged a skit to raise $11.30 which it promptly sent to Save Minnesota Deer. A junior high science club in a northern Minnesota community gave up a school holiday and spent it cutting browse near a deer yard, and these same boys are going door-to-door selling membership and distributing literature. Enthusiasm is contagious; the boys have been joined by many others.

"But the payoff is House File 975," Shaw said. "Getting that legislation is the important thing so that deer will have improved feed in the future."



SCORING TWO of his 20 points in the first half is the Prowlers Sheldon Jappru as three Bemidji players try to stop the 6-4 center for the Prowlers. Bemidji players include Tom Hill (34), Tony Burke and Wayne Olson (30). Jappru kept the Prowlers within striking distance of the Lumberjacks in the first half as the Jacks led by one, 25-24, at halftime.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our wife and mother Mrs. Evelyn Brekkestran who died five years ago today.

What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in days that used to be;
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.

Sadly missed by her husband and family. 1t22c

Bemidji Tops Prowlers For Region 8 Crown

by Bob Wicinski
Times Sport Writer

Shedon Joppru put on a one-man scoring show in the first half of the finals of the Region Eight tournament on Wednesday night, but the 6-1 center for the Prowlers couldn't continue his hot hand as the Thief River Falls Prowlers fell to the Bemidji Lumberjacks, 60-49, in the Region Eight championship.

Joppru scored 20 of his 24 points in the first half to keep the Prowlers within one point of the Lumberjacks. He tallied on nine of 12 chances from the field in the first half and at times had scored more points by himself than the entire Bemidji team. In the second half he hit on only one out of six attempts from the field.

In the game at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse, Bemidji, behind their fine forward Tom Hill, jumped to a 4-0 lead before the Prowlers were able to get the ball over the center line. Joppru then hit on a 15-foot jump shot to put the Prowlers on the scoreboard as Bemidji led by a 4-2 score. Free throws by Greg Beaumont and Hill and a basket by Tony Burke sandwiched around Joppru's second basket of the game, gave the Lumberjacks an 8-4 lead. Seven points by Joppru put the Prowlers out in front by an 11-8 score. Bemidji regained the lead 12-11 as Beaumont tallied on a lay up and Wayne Olson hit on two free throws. A basket by Steve Edlund gave the Prowlers the lead at the end of the first period 13-12.

Hill scored on two free throws at the opening of the second period to take the lead once again for the Lumberjacks at 14-13, before Joppru scored six straight points, increasing the Prowlers lead to 19-14. Hill added another free throw, making it 19-15 in favor of the Prowlers and Joppru tallied another field goal, giving the Prowlers their biggest lead of the game at 21-15. Hill then tallied six points as the Jacks knotted the score at 21-21.

Joppru put the Prowlers in the lead at 22-21 on a free throw, but Beaumont put the Lumberjacks back in the lead at 23-22. Darrold Rodahl scored giving the lead back to the Prowlers and then hit on a 20-foot shot that gave the Jacks the lead at half-time 25-24.

The third period found the Prowlers going ahead by a 27-26 score as Edlund tallied a field goal. Olson then put the Lumberjacks ahead 28-27 before Edlund knotted the score at 28 all. Hill tallied three points, making the score 31-28 in favor of the District 29 champions. Beaumont and Olson tallied three more points as the Jacks enjoyed their biggest lead of the game so far at 34-29. Dan Brodin cut the lead to 31-34 on a jump shot, but baskets by Beaumont and Degerman upped the Bemidji score to 38-31 and Bemidji led at the end of the third period by a 40-33 score.

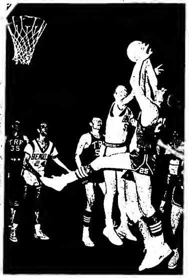
Bemidji jumped out to a 10 point lead at the start of the final period as three free throws by Degerman and Beaumont gave the Jacks a 43-33 lead. The Prowlers were unable to close the gap as the champions from District 29 took home their 25th Region Eight title. It was also their sixth Region crown in the past nine years, missing the state trips only in 1962, 1966 and 1968.

Joppru took scoring honors for the contest with 24 points, while Hill scored 22 for the winners. Beaumont tallied 19 and Degerman tallied 10 in the win for the Jacks. Edlund and Rodahl each scored eight points for the losing Prowlers. Rodahl came off the bench in the first period for starter Dave Kildahl and did a good job the rest of the way for the Prowlers.

In the consolation game, Kennedy, which lost a heart-braker to Thief River Falls on Tuesday night, came back to stop the Ada Vikings by a 79-66 score. Kennedy trailed by 10 points in the third quarter before starting a come-back drive that yielded a victory.

The Rockets placed four players in double figures for the game with Ron Visness leading the way with 29 points. Karl Urbaniak had 14 while Ron Peterson and Bob Eukel added 11 and 10 points respectively. High for Ada was Rich Merkens with 20 points while Randy Balzum and John Sheridan added 16 and 10 points in the losing cause.

TWO THIEF RIVER FALLS Prowlers have their hands on the basketball as Bemidji's Tom Hill tries to take the ball from Darrold Rodahl (25) and Dan Brodin (41). Watching the action are Steve Edlund (35) and Tony Johnson (21), TRF. Action took place during the Region Eight championship game on Wednesday evening at the University of North Dakota. The Lumberjacks won the contest and will meet the Region Three winner in the last game of the state tournament's first round on Thursday evening.



HAVING A SHOT BLOCKED is the Prowlers' Darrold Rodahl who came off the bench on Wednesday night to score eight points in the championship game of Region Eight play at the University of North Dakota fieldhouse. Tony Burke (52), Bemidji's 6-3 center, is blocking the shot.

Roseau to Issue Bond for Ice Plant

Roseau Village council recently agreed to call for a bond issue for installation of an artificial ice plant in the Roseau arena and adopted a change in the electrical rate scheduled to become effective Jan. 1, village clerk Herbert Monsrud reported recently.

A six-member delegation from the arena committee met with the council to seek approval for the ice plant. The committee will now draw up the plans and specifications, as well as total costs so the council can take action on calling for a bond issue.

New electrical rate is estimated to save the rate payers approximately $14,000. All electrical services will be on a single-meter basis for each business or residence. If any have two meters at present, they will be combined into one for the rate structure purposes.

FOG WAS LIFTING and the sun beginning to shine when this photo was taken Tuesday morning at Tindolph park in Thief River Falls. Heavy fog Monday night and early Tuesday morning, combined with below freezing temperatures, put a coating of frost on exposed outdoor surfaces. Warm day-time readings have caused the snow to shrink considerably in the past couple of weeks, and the season's high temperature of 40 degrees was recorded on Monday. Yesterday the mercury climbed to 33 degrees.

F				13,000
		* Max. $1,400	* Max. $1,500	* Max. $2,000

Salary schedule adopted for 1969-1970 term at the March 17, 1969, school board meeting.

* Denotes maximum increase over 1968-69 salary.

Adoption of a salary schedule which calls for a starting salary of $7,200 and maximum career teacher salary of $13,000 was accomplished by the Thief River Falls board of education Monday evening. If all teachers in the system signed the contracts offered to them, the increase would be $196,440, over 1968-1969 contracts according to computations made by the office of the superintendent of schools. The schedule is for a 12-month contract.

Adoption of the salary schedule came more than two hours after the school board went into "executive session," meeting behind closed doors with the public and news media excluded. The meeting convened at 8 p.m. in the superintendent's office; chairman Dr. George Martin asked the board's permission to go into executive session; and the board met in secret until reconvening after 10 p.m. in the Lincoln school library.

Need for setting of a salary schedule comes from a deadline date of Thursday, March 20, when the school board is required by law to make its contracts available to teachers in the system. Teachers have until April 1 to sign and return them, resign their positions, or by failing to sign or resign, to remain under the current year's contract.

The salary schedule adopted by the board for contract purposes was the same in form as the one offered in initial teacher negotiations, except that the base level of pay was raised from $6,000 to $7,200, and other adjustments were made in the dollar amounts for probationary and Class I, II and III teachers. Non-degree teachers at the elementary level would receive a $1,300 annual increment, and extra compensation would be given to master teachers to be assigned later in particular subject areas.

In discussing the salary schedule with the Times, Supt. Lloyd M. Johnson noted that the projected cost of the increment of $196,440 could be reduced by deducting about $33,000 for extra-curricular activities (incorporated into an eight-hour day), $21,300 for a special summer school program (based on cost of summer school in previous years) and $22,400 in recreation salaries, including summer recreation. These estimated deductions total $76,700.

Apparent purpose for the "executive session" Monday evening was to permit the board to discuss individual teachers in private while assigning them to positions on the new schedule to be adopted later in the evening. Positions on the schedule determined the dollar amount which was to be placed on each contract for the 1969-70 school year.

While the 12-month contract will provide a number of teachers with a substantial increase (generally $1,400 to $1,500), over the salary received for teaching nine months this term, there are other teachers who will not fare so well. These are primarily teachers who have been teaching more than nine months and have been compensated for the extra time on a percentage of a nine-month contract. Vocational school instructors make up the bulk of this group, although there are others on the faculty who have been employed on a longer than nine-month basis. In some cases, the 1969-70 contract will be less than the 1968-1969 figure.

A copy of the salary schedule adopted by the board Monday evening is printed under the headline in this story.

Attached to each contract, which will be given to the teachers on Thursday, will be a cover letter signed by Supt. Johnson. The letter is headed: "Memo to all teachers, Independent School District 564, Thief River Falls, Minnesota". Contents of the letter follow:

"Attached you will find your teacher's contract for the coming school year submitted in accordance with Chapter 890, Laws of 1967. You have until April 1 to accept this contract by signing it and returning it to the undersigned for execution

Newfolden Petitioner Gives School Views

(Editor's Note: The following article was presented to the Times in "Letter to the Editor" form by Chester S. Larson, who has been delegated as spokesman for petitioners for school consolidation in the Newfolden school district. Because of its general interest, and the space previously devoted to a statement of fact and opinion by the Newfolden board of education, it is being published as a front page article rather than in the public opinion column.)

Dear Editor:

The recent "statement of position" of the Newfolden School Board prompts me to make some observations and raise a few questions. I am a resident of "rural Thief River Falls" and have spent a lifetime in the Holt community. I became delegated as one of the spokesmen for the petitioners when one of the respected members of our community was denied his constitutional right of petition by childish action by someone.

The article deals at some length on a report by the State Dept. of Education. Question: Why wasn't this information brought to the attention of the people in the community or at least to the school board in the proposed consolidation plans? Also, why wasn't something done about the old building? The tax base was smaller than at present, but with both personal property and real estate tax revenue a modest program certainly could have been undertaken, rather than just letting things deteriorate. The cost certainly would have been considerably less than at present for the same type of project.

Prior to the consolidation, it was indicated that there was no building program contemplated. However, the article states that the board had consulted people from the school district organization section and school facilities section of the State Dept. of Education. The article also states, "Several conferences were held between the school Supt., the architect and Mr. Tollerud, (of the State Department of Education), in order to plan a building".

One observation: these people are tax PAID, not tax PAYERS, and all have a vested interest in as elaborate a building program as finances will follow. Question: Where were the "elected representatives of the people" while these conferences were being held?

Yes, a citizens' committee was named, not "to get information and ideas", (the plans had already been made) but to sell the program to the people in the district.

In discussing alternatives, the article lists only two—build or close. It was not the intent of the petitioners or any knowlegable people that I have con-

Newfolden Sells School Bonds at 5.986 Per Cent

Bonds for $1,400,000 for construction of a new school at Newfolden were sold by the Newfolden board of education Tuesday. Purchasing the bonds was a group of banks, with the principal bank being the First National bank of Minneapolis, at an interest rate of 5.986 per cent.

Supt. Gene Kjellberg informed the Times that the school district had received a BAA rating on its bond issue, which he said was a very good rating. The bonds will be retired over a 20-year period. Bonds sold were $50,000 less than the $1,450,000 authorized.

Bids are now being called for general construction of the school with bids to be opened April 16, Supt. Kjellberg said.

Northern State Bank To Remodel

Plans for extensive interior and exterior remodeling of Northern State bank in Thief River Falls were announced today by G. A. Bello, president. Work is expected to start on the project about August 1 and will be completed in about six months after the starting date.

Architect's drawings have been prepared for the remodeling and expansion, with the total program to include use of the current Neal Fox studio and the removal of the Drotts Insurance building. The Fox studio area would be used for banking purposes, including executive offices, while the Drotts property—acquired by the bank earlier this year—would be used for bank parking.

Acquisition of the Drotts property will permit the bank to add another drive-in teller station as well as increase customer parking. The drive-in teller station will be of an island type, with a pneumatic tube transferring items from car to bank or bank to car.

A walk-up teller will also be provided in the remodeled building, with the teller area located inside the building. This will permit persons using the service after regular banking hours to transact their business or wait their turn in an area protected from outdoor elements.

New fixtures and entirely new arrangement will be included in the interior remodeling, Bello said. Safety deposit boxes will be extensively increased in number and the approximately 6,000 square feet of banking area will be carpeted throughout. The customer display and waiting area will be expanded and made more comfortable for bank users.

Exterior of the building will also be entirely changed. Much of the outside will be made up of panels of stone chips set in epoxy resin. The present main entrance will be walled off, and the main entrance will be to the east, where the insurance department entrance is presently located. Architects for the project are Dykins, Handford and Associates of Minneapolis.

"We recognize that a remodeling program of this scope will disrupt our normal banking procedure," Bello said, "but we are taking every precaution to cause as little inconvenience as possible to our customers. We are hopeful that they will join us in taking pride in the remodeling program, enabling us to remain in business at the same location we have had since the bank started in Thief River Falls in 1935."

The Drotts Insurance agency was purchased by the bank and the Drotts real estate agency expects to locate elsewhere in Thief River Falls after the bank exercises its ownership of the present building in June. Neal Fox told the Times that he has no definite plans for relocation but is considering construction of a home studio in the city.
